HOOVER MAKES PLEA FOR UNITY AT GETTYSBURG

President Visibly Moved in Holiday Address on Battlefield.

SPIRITUAL SOLIDARITY NEEDED, HE DECLARES

Lincoln Traits Extolled as Inspiration for U. S. People.

BLUE, GRAY VETERANS MINGLE ON ROSTRUM

Chief Executive Leaves for Hunting Lodge of Friend After Exercises.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 30 (A.P.).—Leading the Nation in its Memorial Day tribute to the war dead, President Hoover came to Gettysburg today, and amid the graves that dot the battleground, pleaded for preservation of the spiritual solidarity that has created a great people.

Then putting aside for the time the cares of official routine, the Chief Executive turned northward for a 150-mile automobile drive through the Allegheny mountains to the hunting and fishing lodge of Jay Cooke, Philadelphia financier, whose guest he is to be until early Sunday.

Thousands, packed on the hillside stretching away below the stand from which the President spoke, stood silent through the course of the address, the 1,020-word text of which was the briefest presidential address at Gettysburg since Lincoln's immortal speech in 1863. Speaking slowly and earnestly, visibly moved at times by his own words into the microphones which carried his voice to the massed crowd within view and the millions throughout the Nation, the President recalled the "lonely vision of Lincoln, whose immortal words dominate this scene."

Lays Wreath at Monument.

The spot where Lincoln spoke in dedicating the national cemetery is marked by a high monument at which Mr. Hoover paused and left his car to lay a memorial wreath while en route to the covered, flag-draped cupola from which he delivered his address. It was barely visible through the trees in back of the throng that circled the speaker's stand.

Bright sun beat down upon the scene upon every side and among the row on row of graves were flags which whipped in a brisk wind. On the graves also were flowers which had been strewn by hundreds of children who broke across the rolling road to scatter them as the President reached the cemetery.

Behind the President sat a remnant of the "thousand brigades which marched in that great conflict," the dark blue of the 56 Union veterans contrasting with the Confederate gray of a lone Confederate cavalryman, William Haines, aged 93, of Washington. He was the first survivor of the Southern ranks to sit on the platform at Gettysburg memorial exercises.

Mrs. M. O. Smith, 87, of Hanover, Pa., who sang in the choir on the platform when Lincoln dedicated the cemetery, was back in a place of honor today.

Grouped about the President also were Secretary of War Hurley, Henry

HOOVER HONORS SOLDIER DEAD

Henry Miller Service.

President Hoover paid the Nation's tribute to its heroic war dead in placing this wreath on the Gettysburg statue yesterday after his Memorial Day address on the famous battlefield in Pennsylvania.

Text of Hoover's Speech At Gettysburg Exercises

Following is the address yesterday of President Hoover at Gettysburg Battlefield:

Fellow Countrymen:

We stand today amidst monuments to the valor and glory of a generation of Americans, North and South, now well-nigh gone. Most of those who bore the burdens of the Civil War have joined their comrades who sleep beneath these mounds. Of a thousand brigades which marched in that great conflict, scarce a score remain.

To the dead we pay again our tribute of gratitude and devotion. To the living we extend heartfelt wishes for a continuation of peaceful years, serene in contemplation of their glorious youth. The time must come all too soon when these living ties of our generation with the historic past will have passed on. Then we shall have only cherished memories to remind us of those men who heroically died and those women who bravely suffered for great ideals or who lived on to consummate the reunion of our country, to give stability to its Government and peace to its people.

Every American's thought of this great battlefield of Gettysburg flashes with the instant vision of the lonely figure of Lincoln, whose immortal words dominate this scene. No monument has been or can be erected here so noble and enduring as that simple address which has become a part of this place. Greater than the tribute of granite or bronze remains that memorable message to the American people. That appeal for the unity of our people and the perpetuation of the fundamentals of our democracy is as vital today in our national thinking as it was when Lincoln spoke. Behind him were the 70 years of national experience that had passed between himself and Washington. His words from their span of the past rang with courage and assurance for the future. Though no President has been so beset, though no time in our history has been so dark, though never have strong men been so affected with doubts, yet in the midst of all that turmoil he found strength to lift his head above the clouds and proclaim that vision which the passing years have so fully confirmed.

Today nearly 70 years have passed since Lincoln spoke. Ours is a new day and ours new problems of the republic. There are times when these problems loom ominous and their solution difficult. Yet great as our difficulties may sometimes seem, we would be of little courage if in our concerns we had less of faith than Lincoln had in his far greater task.

Lincoln's counsels sounded strangely when spoken in the midst of war. His was the call of moderation. Our history would be even brighter than it is if his predecessors and his contemporaries had spoken as temperately as he, if they had been moved by charity toward all, by malice toward none.

We shall be wise to ponder here what precious wealth of human life might have been preserved, what rivers of tears might never have flowed, what anguish of souls need never have been, what spiritual division of our people might have been avoided, if only our leadership had always been tempered by the moderation and calm vision of Lincoln. Since his day reason has not always ruled instead of passion, knowledge has not always been sought instead of reliance upon improvised conjecture, patience has not ever delayed the impetuous feet of reckless ambition, quiet negotiation has not always replaced the clamor of the hustings, prudent common counsel has not invariably overcome the allurements of demagogic folly, good will has not always won the day over cynicism and vainglory. Yet the ideals which he inspired have served to mold our national life and have brought in time great spiritual unity. His words have poured their blessings of restraint and inspiration upon each new generation.

In the weaving of our destiny, the pattern may change, yet the woof and warp of our weaving must be those inspired ideals of unity, of ordered liberty, of equality of opportunity, of popular government and of peace to which this Nation was dedicated. Whatever the terms may be in which we enunciate these great Officers Declare Younger Is Exact Type of Nation's Fighters Overseas.

By DUNCAN HASELL.

Honored and honoring, beset on every hand with Memorial Day functions, parades and banquets, the man who selected America's Unknown Soldier yesterday was swept from obscurity into national prominence. From the moment of his arrival in Washington as the guest of The Washington Post, Sergt. Edward S. Younger, of Chicago, became the feature of the services with which this Nation, through its Capital's residents, honored the soldier dead.

It was a dazzling day for the sergeant, and one that he is not likely to forget. It was a day of many "firsts" for him. It was the first time that he saw the Unknown's tomb, though it was he who selected the body from four unidentified ones at Chalons-sur-Marne, France. It was the first time that he had ever marched at the head of a parade reviewed by the President. It was the first time that he had ever spoken over the radio, and it was the first time that he had been picked from the crowd as a character of national significance.

While honoring the soldier dead, Sergt. Younger did not forget the maimed—his buddies in Walter Reed Hospital, many without arms or legs, others suffering patiently with weights and machines attached to shattered limbs.

Walks Up and Down Wards.

Immediately after placing flowers on the Unknown's tomb in the feature event of Memorial Day services at Arlington, the sergeant hurried to the hospital, to walk up and down the wards, chatting with bed-ridden patients, seeking to inject in their memories of France something to lighten their bitter present.

When it became noised about that the man who picked the Unknown was on the grounds, scores of patients who could walk, hobble or push wheel chairs hastened to the Y. M. C. A hut to meet him. Although

Name of Henry P. Fletcher Again Comes to Fore for Tokyo Post.

VISITS WITH PRESIDENT

(Associated Press.)

Once again President Hoover is scanning his list of possible candidates for an ambassadorial post in an effort to select an envoy to Tokyo.

Considerable thought and care is being devoted by the Chief Executive to filling the post in view of its importance and the delicacy which attaches to the handling of affairs in the capital of the Far Eastern empire.

The designation is necessitated by the recent death of Albert H. Washburn, Minister to Austria, who had been selected for the Tokyo position. William R. Castle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State, has been filling the post as special ambassador during the London naval conference, but is now en route to the United States to resume his former duties.

The name of Henry P. Fletcher, of Greencastle, Pa., former Ambassador to Italy, Chile, Belgium and Mexico, and one-time Undersecretary of State, has again come to the fore as a candidate for the Tokyo post. A close friend of the President, Fletcher is

THE SPORTS WHIRL

The whirl of sports in the world of sports was at a dizzy pace yesterday.

The Athletics won two games from the Nats, 7-6, in thirteen innings, and 15-11, before 60,000.

Bobby Jones eliminated George Voigt, 1 up, and will meet Roger Wethered in the British amateur finals.

Bobby Arnold, 23-year-olds Chicagoan, won the Indianapolis Speedway classic, which saw the death of a riding mechanic.

Rogers Hornsby fractured an ankle and will be lost to the Cubs for six weeks.

Stanford led the qualifiers in the intercollegiate track meet.

Three Americans advanced to the semifinals in the French tennis championship.

These and other important sports events are told in detail in The Post's four-page sports section this morning.

The tariff bill which passed the House a year ago and has been in Senate ever since has evolved into a measure which Republican leaders now believe will become the law of the land.

Although a few minor obstacles in the form of points of order remain to be overcome, the majority chiefs are looking confidently to the Hawley-Smoot measure becoming the tariff act of 1930 some time in June, and thus displacing the Republican Fordney-McCumber law of 1922.

HOPS SUNDAY ON RETURN

New York, May 30 (A.P.).—Dr. Hugo Eckener, skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, tonight told the Chatham Station of the Radio Marine Corporation that he expected to land at Lakehurst, N. J., about 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

"Expect to land at Lakehurst 8:30," said the message. He did not give the Graf's position. The Radio Marine Corporation assumed Dr. Eckener meant Lakehurst time, which is Eastern daylight, as in previous messages he had specified when it was Greenwich mean time.

The message was received at the Chatham Station shortly before 7 p. m. (E. S. T.).

The Zeppelin was soaring northwesterly over the Atlantic Ocean at an average speed of well over 70 miles an hour.

But the big dirigible, which left Pernambuco at 9:13 a. m., (E. S. T.) Wednesday morning, will stay in this country only briefly. She will refuel at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station, unload passengers and mail and pick up others, and Sunday night will hear again across the Atlantic to Seville, the Spanish city whence she sailed for South America May 20.

When the Zeppelin left Pernambuco she intended to stop at Havana, but because of unfavorable weather and rapidly dwindling fuel, Dr. Hugo Eckener decided today to pass up the Cuban captial and head directly for Lakehurst.

The commander radioed Cuban officials he was sorry he could not visit their beautiful island but felt that the safety of those aboard his craft came before other considerations. Cubans were disapointed, for they

CHALONS-SUR-MARNE SCENE IS REENACTED

Tributes of Flags and Flowers on Graves of Arlington.

SPIRIT OF PEOPLE LAUDED BY ORATOR

Pilgrimages of Memory Are Made to Various Cemeteries.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The deep green of Arlington was splashed with color yesterday, leavened with the hues of myriad flags and flowers. And through the trees floated prayers and hymns—a grateful Nation's benediction for her warrior dead.

Ten thousand pilgrims made the Memorial Day journey to Arlington, including one pilgrim who had traveled far. He arrived with a pounding heart and bearing a garland of roses. On the highest hill, in front of a white marble tomb, he halted, clicked his heels and saluted. Then, gently, he laid his roses on the tomb.

That was Sergt. Edward S. Younger, erstwhile hero of the A. E. F., now a postal clerk in Chicago. For that brief moment yesterday, however, he was back in Chalons-sur-Marne; back in the little makeshift chapel where he stood in 1921.

High Light of Notable Day.

He was back there, and in front of him were the caskets of four soldiers. And on one of them he was to drop his tiny bunch of roses.

He did, and the one he selected, nameless though he was, is today the most loved warrior of them all—the Unknown Soldier.

The reenactment of the drama of Chalons-sur-Marne yesterday, made possible by The Washington Post, was the high light of a day dedicated to the dead.

The ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery came in the afternoon. In the forenoon there was a parade of tottering Union veterans, and so anxious was President Hoover to see it, that he held up his trip to Gettysburg for an hour.

Pilgrimages to Cemeteries.

Then there were pilgrimages to various cemeteries, to Mount St. Alban's, where lie Admiral Dewey and Woodrow Wilson; to the Soldiers Home Cemetery, with its dead of five wars; to Holy Rood, Oak Hill, Glenwood, Prospect Hill, St. Mary's, and other places of the dead.

For days the work of decorating the graves in Arlington had been going on, so that by yesterday there was not a mound that did not hold its poppy and its flag.

There was one, but it did not go long neglected. This was the monument to the Canadian dead of the World War. When the oversight was discovered, Maj. Paul McGahan, William F. Franklin and other Legionnaires made haste to provide the flags and flowers.

Bugle Sounds Again.

A bugle call, sounded by Sergt. Witchey, the man who sounded "Taps" at the burial of the Unknown, opened the exercises in the big amphitheater.

Sergt. Younger sat in a first row seat on the stage. On one side of him was the venerable Frank J. Young, commander of the local department of the Grand Army of the

CHURCH NEWS

Rabbi Abram Simon, in a fascinating essay on The Post's Church page today, says: "The Bible is the World's Best Seller because it is the World's Best Teller."

This brilliant and lovable priest of the oldest religion thinks that the Bible has a livable message for all people and that is why it never grows old.

A properly conducted Church Page in a secular newspaper also has its message, and it should be as vital a part of the newspaper as any other page within its covers.

The Post is starting such a page this morning. It is a modest beginning.—We hope to improve it with each Saturday issue of the paper. This we can do if the Washington ministers of all communions will be helpful with cooperation, with suggestions and with advice.

Our plan is to make this page different. We particularly want the news, the unusual happenings of the churches, and good feature stories about church people. To this end we invite conferences and ask for suggestions.

Business in Washington

By OSCAR J. COOLICAN,
President, Packard Washington Motor Car Co.

Late last summer it became apparent that there was a general overproduction and a buying excess both in commodities and securities, and that a production and sales recession was to be expected in 1930.

The automobile industry, sharing in this condition, had two legitimate production outlets, the replacement field and multiple car ownership. With these satisfied, excess production meant forced selling which was rampant last year.

Dealers, Nation-wide compelled to absorb the overproduction, effected forced sales, thus discounting a part of the future replacement field and trading in at excess valuations vast thousands of reasonably new cars. Used car inventories became dangerously overloaded.

Economically it was inevitable that such a condition could not continue and manufacturers had curtailed output prior to the financial breakdown of last fall.

Automobile production consuming a large percentage of other industrial commodities, any marked curtailment inevitably affects the output of these manufacturers and of freight car loadings. Employment and buying power are correspondingly affected.

No small part of the business recession through which we have been passing can be attributed to lower automobile production and sales, and with these curtailed, maintaining high employment ratios is another tribute to the managerial efficiency of the business.

Motor car sales registrations being the one sound barometer of improvement, or otherwise an indication of how fully the recession has been overcome are sales for the first four months' ended April 30, showing 79 per cent of the registrations in 1929 in the country's eighteen largest cities.

District of Columbia sales are 86 per cent for the same period, only two cities exceeding this result. Our own gross business is at even a higher percentage.

With sales steadily increasing and with production now gaited to actual demand, there seems every reason to expect continued improvement, and particularly so in Washington, affected less, as we are, by unemployment and changing industrial cycles.

Man and Woman Kill Wife To Keep Love Secret, Claim

Ohio Sheriff Announces Confession of Pair That They Lured Mother of Two Children to Lonely Spot and Shot Her Dead.

Ashtabula, Ohio, May 30 (A.P.).—Sheriff Frank Sheldon announced today that he had obtained signed confessions from Trilby Smith, 26, and Mrs. Maude Lowther, 22, to plotting the slaying of Smith's 28-year-old wife because they wanted her out of their love affair. Both were taken to Jefferson, the Ashtabula County seat, and will be arraigned tomorrow on charges yet to be determined, the sheriff said.

Smith confessed taking his wife and two small children to a lonely spot on a road south of here last night where Mrs. Lowther, who had concealed herself in a clump of bushes, stepped out and shot Mrs. Smith dead, according to the sheriff.

Smith took the children to a filling station nearby, calling police and telling them his wife was the victim of holdup men, while Mrs. Lowther went to the home where she was employed as a maid. Authorities were unable to find any trace of the holdup men described by Smith and after hours of questioning, he confessed the plot, implicating Mrs. Lowther, they announced.

Mrs. Lowther, who came here from Clarksburg, W. Va., two years ago, said she had been married twice, but was separated from her second husband. Smith did a trucking business. They said they became acquainted only two weeks ago.

River Man Rides Niagara Rapids in Steel Barrel

Caught Three Times in Treacherous Eddies, His Brother in Rowboat Frees Him—Trip Takes Best Part of Afternoon.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 30 (A.P.). William (Red) Hill, Daring River man, won for himself a new place today among the heroes of the Niagara by riding through the whirlpool and lower rapids in a specially constructed steel barrel. Three times the barrel was caught in the treacherous eddies, but relatives in a rowboat freed it.

Hill entered the stream from the American landing of the Maid of the Mist at 1:15 o'clock and emerged at Queenston Docks at 6:65 o'clock, his face bloody and his shoulders and arms battered from the pounding he received as the barrel was shot through the lower rapids. His wife and sixteen-day-old baby, with other members of his family were on hand to greet him.

Hill was assisted in his venture by his son, William Hill, jr.; his brother-in-law, Edward Sloggett, and brother, Charles Hill, who dared the dangerous currents of the stream in a rowboat to tow Hill out of the eddies when his craft was halted.

To the spectators at least one of the high lights of Hill's wild ride was his trip through the whirlpool rapids. His barrel was shot into the whirlpool with terrific force from the fast currents above and, as he reached the whirlpool, he raised the cover of the barrel to watch proceedings. Six times the barrel was Republic; on the other, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, grandson of the brilliant Civil War general.

In front of him, gathered on the wind-swept marble benches, were thousands of men, women and children; an assemblage that was a challenge to the charge that the Republic is ungrateful.

Looking around him, he saw the black hats of the G. A. R., the campaign hats of the men who fought against Spain, and the rakish overseas caps of his own buddies.

In a row in the rear he saw a group of men from Walter Reed, sitting there gripping their canes and their crutches. He could feel for them. After the Argonne, where he made his breast a barricade for bullets, he, too, was a casualty.

With the two clergymen on the platform, he found that he had much in common. The Rev. Jason Noble Pierce had been his chaplain when he was with the Second Division; the Rev. Francis J. Hurney was the chaplain on a transport that helped to take them over.

Gibson Orator of Day.

The orator of the day was Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, who served as a colonel in the World War.

"The strength of a nation," he declared, "is determined by the spirit of its people, not by its army or navy, its wealth, or the numbers within its borders.

"We saw our American spirit leading at Bunker Hill, Saratoga and Yorktown; on the seas during the War of 1812; at Buena Vista and Chapultepec; at Antietam, Gettysburg, the Wilderness and Appomatox; at El Caney, Santiago, and in the Harbor of Manila when the gates of Asia opened to the civilization of the West; at Chateau Thierry, Apermont, Belleau Wood, and along the Argonne; during the great commercial development of the country, in the winning of the West, and in all the victories of peace."

Throng Applauds Younger.

"Let us here pledge that that spirit shall never die. With it we can swing into the future with confidence and self-reliance and attain the highest development of an orderly and free government."

Halting midway in his oration, Representative Gibson announced the presence of Sergt. Younger. The latter stood up, removed his cap and bowed, while the throng in the amphitheater applauded.

A little later Col. Grant called him to the microphone. In the shy way that befits the fighting man, he made a brief speech and declared that he felt it a great honor to be there with the multitude.

Price of Nation's Wars.

Dr. Thomas E. Green, of the American Red Cross, declared that the men whose memory the pilgrims were gathered to revere were the price the Nation has paid in six wars. Each of them was fought, he said, that something might be vindicated and saved for the life of the world.

"Once in every 25 years of our national existence," he said, "we have drawn the sword in defense of what deserved the supreme sacrifice.

"The American Revolution was the vindication by our founding fathers of the truth 'That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just power from the consent of the governed.'

Problems Were Solved.

"The War of 1812 was an answer to the challenge of America's right to the freedom of the seas.

"The Mexican War was an extension of the rights and liberties of Americans to their fellow citizens on the Rio Grande.

"The great Civil War, fratricidal and tragic though it was, purged the lifeblood of the Nation of the malignant toxin of human slavery.

"The Spanish-American War was the first time our Nation ever struck an armed blow on foreign soil in defense of a people fighting for American ideals.

"The World War was for us a belated but a victorious entry into the supreme struggle between liberty and military despotism.

"All of these were the response of our national conscience to the defense of things that deserved to live."

"Star-Spangled Banner" Sung.

Called to the microphone by the voice of the Union veteran, Hosea B. Moulton, a voice squeaky with age, Dorothy Sherman Pierson sang the "Star-Spangled Banner," James G. Yaden read Gen. Logan's order establishing Memorial Day, Harlan Wood read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Miss Jeannette E. McCaffrey sang "There Is No Death," Mrs. Ruby Smith Stahl sang "The Recessional," and Father Hurney pronounced the benediction.

Sergt. Younger went back to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, gazed at it a moment, and then went on.

Some day, maybe, some one who looked on, will write an elegy about it.

ideals, whatever the new conditions to which we apply them, they must be held eternally valid. The common striving for these ideals, our common heritage as Americans and the infinite web of national sentiment—these are the things that have made us a great Nation, that have created a solidarity in a great people unparalleled in all human history.

The weaving of freedom is and always will be a struggle of law against lawlessness, of individual liberty against domination, of unity against sectionalism, of truth and honesty against demagoguery and misleading, of peace against fear and conflict. In the forming of this pattern, the abuse of politics often muddies the stream of constructive thought and dams back the flow of well-considered action.

In the solution of the problems of our times we have some new lamps to guide us. The light of science has revealed to us a new understanding of forces and a myriad of instruments of physical ease and comfort to add to the joy of life. The growth of communications, of education, of the press, have made possible a new unity of thought and purpose. But the light that guides our souls remains the same as that whereby our fathers were led. It is the store of knowledge, the great inspirations of men's souls, the ideals which they carry forward, that have lifted the Nation to ever greater heights.

The Union has become not merely a physical union of States, but rather is a spiritual union in common ideals of our people. Within it is room for every variety of opinion, every possibility of experiment in social progress. Out of such variety comes growth, but only if we preserve and maintain our spiritual solidarity.

The things of the spirit alone persist. It is in that field that the Nation makes its lasting progress. To cherish religious faith and the tolerance of all faiths; to reflect into every aspect of public life the spirit of charity, the practice of forbearance, and the restraint of passion while reason seeks the way; to lay aside blind prejudice and follow knowledge together; to pursue diligently the common welfare and find within its boundaries our private benefit; to enlarge the borders of opportunity for all and find our own within them; to enhance the greatness of the Nation and thereby find for ourselves an individual distinction; to face with courage and confident expectation the task set before us, these are the paths of true glory for the Nation. They will lead us to a life more abounding richer in satisfactions, more enduring in its achievements, more precious in its bequests to our children—a life not merely of conflict but filled with the joy of creative action.

LEADERSHIP HOOVER THEME IN ADDRESS AT GETTYSBURG

Only as the Chief Executive began speaking and at the end did applause resound. As Lincoln had stood 67 years ago and in his brief address awed the crowd into silence by the beauty of his thought, so Herbert Hoover stood today and called for leadership of the Nation, tempered by moderation and the calm vision of the Civil War President.

"Every American's thought of this great battlefield of Gettysburg flashes with the instant vision of the lonely figure of Lincoln, whose immortal words dominate this scene," he said. "No monument has been or can be erected here so noble and enduring as that simple address which has become a part of this place. Stops at Richey's Camp.

Leaving Washington after reviewing the Capital's Memorial Day parade from the east portico of the White House, Mr. Hoover and his cavalcade of nine cars, escorted by motorcycle policemen, made a rapid trip to the camp of Lawrence Richey, his secretary, at Catoctin Furnace, near Thurmont, Md. There the party lunched and the Chief Executive changed to his formal clothes. From Catoctin the cavalcade moved at a leisurely pace to Gettysburg, where they were met by the official escort, including the "Governor's Own" cavalry troop.

As the Chief Executive rode through the cheering crowds on to the cemetery, a battery of artillery, firing the presidential 21-gun salute, sent a roar of cannon across the monument marked hills which in the 60s echoed the more deadly roar of combatting armies.

Upon completion of the services here, the presidential party was escorted from the batlefield to the center of the city by the cavalry and then proceeded, with motorcycle escort, to Harrisburg and on through to Williamsport and the Cooke preserve, 30 miles farther into the heart of Pennsylvania.

Congressional Graves Are Decorated by 300

At the Congressional Cemetery yesterday morning more than 300 persons gathered as a tribute to the statesmen, soldiers, sailors and civilians who lie in the century-old burying-ground. The exercises were under the direction of G. J. McDermott, commander of the Gen. Henry W. Lawson Camp, United Spanish War Veterans.

The program started with "reveille" by trumpeters of the U. S. Navy Band, which furnished the music for the ceremonies. The Rev. Edward Gabeler, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church, delivered the invocation, followed by remarks by the post commander. The choir of Christ Church sang several selections, and there was an address by Representative Albert R. Hall, of Indiana. Col. W. Hodges, past commander of the Lawton Camp, read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and Mr. Gabeler pronounced the benediction. To close the ceremony the Army trumpeter played "Taps."

markedly fatigued by his strenuous morning and the excitement of events more foreign to him than France. Sergt. Younger refused to leave until he had shaken every hand, wished every one well, and done his best to cheer them with talk of wine and the demoiselles of France.

At noon yesterday the sergeant led an escort to the Unknown's Tomb, for the most impressive rites of the day. Holding a bouquet of white and pink roses, an almost exact replica of that which he used in the little chapel at Chalons-sur-Marne, back in 1921, he reverently approached the tomb, gently placed the flowers, saluted and turned away, visibly moved by his reunion with the "buddy" that he escorted across France to Havre, leaving it there for others to bring to America.

Several Gold Star Mothers, one of whom could scarcely control her tears, were accompanied to the tomb by the sergeant. After the ceremony he was seated on the stage of the amphitheater, with notables gathered to honor the dead. He was introduced by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d and Col. E. W. Gibson, who held him up as an example of the "modest, self-effacing type of soldier responsible for America's success in the war." Col. Harry N. Cootes, commandant at Fort Myer, added, "Sergt. Younger is exactly typical of the average American soldier who served over seas."

Meets Old Acquaintance.

At Arlington he met Mrs. H. H. Hawkins, 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, who had met him at Chalons-sur-Marne, upon the occasion of the Unknown's selection. "You haven't changed much, sergeant," she said.

Sergt. Younger also met Sergt. George E. Brown, who served as a pallbearer when the Unknown Soldier was buried in Arlington.

After the ceremonies he was taken on a sight-seeing tour before going to the National Broadcasting Co.'s studio to speak over a coast to coast hook-up. He recounted circumstances surrounding the Unknown's selection, and expressed his appreciation for honors shown him here. "I have been trying to visit the tomb for the past seven years," he said, "but my salary as a postal clerk in Chicago isn't very much, and I probably wouldn't have gotten here if The Post had not brought me down." He said that he had seen the cenotaph in London, where the English Unknown Soldier is buried, and also the tomb of France's Unknown in Paris.

One of Honor Guests at Dinner.

Last night the sergeant was one of the honor guests at a dinner in the Raleigh Hotel, given for the Memorial Day committee by The Washington Post.

Veterans Praise Modesty.

Veterans of the Civil, Spanish and World Wars united in praising his modesty, his ability and lack of bitterness over the recognition denied him until several days ago. Norman Baxter, managing editor of The Post, told the gathering that if The Post held any pride in bringing the sergeant here it was because of the fact that his presence tended to enhance the national significance and responsibilities of Memorial Day.

Hosea B. Moulton, past department commander of the G. A. R., spoke briefly in praise of men who had died in their country's service, adding that Memorial Day should serve as an inspiration to the living as well as a memorial to the dead.

Sergt. Younger thanked the committee for the recognition accorded him, and told of surprise upon receiving The Post's telegram inviting him to Washington. Before the gathering adjourned the sergeant was introduced to the 30-odd representatives of patriotic organizations, and the four gold star mothres in attendance.

Bugler Blows Taps Again.

Sergt. Frank Wtichey, who blew "taps" at the burial of the Unknown, performed a similar service while the assemblage stood at attention. Charles H. Reilly, past department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, presided.

Early yesterday morning Sergt. Younger was obligated in the V. F. W. by special arrangements. He received a number of congratulatory telegrams and the Federation of Postoffice Clerks sent him a large basket of flowers.

The sergeant expects to return to to his home in Chicago tonight, after inspecting the Capitol and the Veterans Bureau in company with Representative Royal Johnson, of South Dakota, who also served with distinction in France.

142 Members of G.A.R. Now Live in Washington

Past Commander George F. Williams, of the Sons of Union Veterans, spoke yesterday at the Memorial Day services at Oak Hill Cemetery on loss by death of the Grand Army of the Republic. Mr. Williams said that in 1892 there 3,600 members of the G. A. R. in Washington, and that today there are only 142. There were 180 in 1929.

The ceremonies at Oak Hill were in charge of the William B. Cushing Camp of the Sons of Union Veterans, and the auxiliary to the camp. A bugler from the Marine Corps rendered the assembly and taps, and a squad of eight men from the National Guard were present for the rifle salute. Past Commander John F. Hauck recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Aged Chicago Woman Lays Wreath on Tomb

In the interval between the official placing of wreaths on the Unknown Soldier's grave in Arlington yesterday, a lone woman, aged and crippled, waved to a guard from the sidelines to help her to the grave.

When a lieutenant offered his assistance, he found that she was Mrs. Sarah J. Paine, 87 years old, who lives in Chicago and had come all the way here to place a wreath in memory of her husband, a Civil War veteran.

Miss Buck Walter, of 315 W street northeast, saw Mrs. Paine struggling to get through the crowd to lay her tribute on the Unknown's Tomb, and offered her assistance, walking with her as she placed it beside the offering from the White House and the Gold Star Mothers.

Nicholson Addresses Glenwood Assembly

The Rev. R. Y. Nicholson yesterday addressed the assemblage gathered in the chapel in Glenwood Cemetery to do honor to the dead soldiers lying in Glenwood, Prospect Hill and St. Mary's cemeteries. Mr. Nicholson stressed the fact that there is a patriotism that consists in living for the country as well as in dying for it.

Graves in the three cemeteries were decorated by the Kit Carson Post of the G. A. R., the Woman's Relief Corps of the post, Harden Camp of the Spanish War Veterans, National Capitol Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and George Washington Post of the American Legion. Many school children of the Langley Junior High and the Emery schools also participated in the ceremonies.

Holy Rood Cemetery Is Scene of Exercises

Memorial Day services at Holy Rood Cemetery were conducted by the William B. Cushing camp, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, the George E. Killeen post of the American Legion, and Auxiliary No. 4 of the Sons of the Union Veterans.

Rossa F. Downing delivered the memorial address, and Helen F. Downing recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address. The invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. Henry P. White.

Confederate Army Aid Here to Advise Veterans

The apartment of Mrs. Anna Watt, of 2440 Sixteenth srteet, was entered last night and a diamond pin set with nine small diamonds, valued at $200, was stolen.

RITES HELD ABROAD FOR U. S. WAR DEAD

New Note Lent to Services by Presence of Gold Star Mothers.

GOOD-WILL OMEN SEEN

Paris, May 30 (A.P.).—America's Gold Star Mothers today lent a new note to Memorial Day in Europe.

The presence of several hundred war mothers of the United States at the several ceremonies in France furnished texts for speakers and inspired thousands who heard them with the significance of the observance which has been maintained in their sister republic for threescore years.

With all France paying homage to the American Gold Star Mothers and the sons whom they came here to honor, it was pointed out by officials that today's celebration and the pilgrimages would do more than diplomacy ever could to smooth out petty differences that had crept into Franco-American relations since the close of the great war.

Orators Praise Heroes.

A "silent but complete understanding between French and American women bereaved by the war" was dwelt upon in several different places by orators as certain to overcome the "barrier of language differences and difficulties of distance and endure about all temporary and petty interruptions."

The third contingent of mothers arriving at Cherbourg on the liner George Washington was just too late for the ceremonies, but those of other contingents were at Bony, where Gen. John J. Pershing spoke at Suresnes, where Ambassador Walter E. Edge was the speaker; at Chateau Thierry, to hear Theodore Rousseau, and at Romagne.

Familiar Scenes Enacted.

Save for the thousands of graves of war dead that stretched out before them, the Memorial Day participants in France saw scenes which have been going on in thousands of American communities. Since shortly after the close of the Civil War, while America has its cemeteries in which war veterans are grouped, they are few.

Here are fields of white crosses and green mounds beneath which doughboys and poilus sleep in everlasting glory.

At Bony, where Gen. Pershing and Maj. Gen. William H. Johnston were speakers, a solemn benediction was pronounced upon the dead by Mrs. Mary C. Stolger, of Miami, Fla., one of the Gold Star Mothers, whose son rests where he fell on the "Hindenburg Line."

Edge Lauds War Dead.

On the slopes of Mt. Valeriem, overlooking Paris, in the Suresnes Cemetery, Ambassador Edge lauded the American and French veterans and their departed brothers and spoke of a new era of peace. He praised the results of the recent London naval conference in which America and France joined in a new attempt at disarmament.

While morning observances were being held here, many cities throughout Europe were holding observances.

In Warsaw, Poland, American Ambassador John N. Willys placed a wreath upon the tomb of Poland's Unknown Hero. The staff of the American Embassy witnessed the ceremony.

Three hundred Americans in Isianbul, Turkey, held two separate celebrations for decoration of civilian graves, there being no American soldier dead in Turkey.

400 Attend Exercises At U. S. Soldiers Home

Memorial Day services were held at the National Cemtery at the United States Soldiers Home yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, the ceremonies taking place in front of the tomb of Gen. John A. Logan. J. H. Shepherd, assistant adjutant general, Department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic, was in charge of the service.

Representative Frank Crowther, of New York, addressed the gathering, which numbered more than 400 soldiers and civilians. Mrs. Catherine Austin sang "Tenting Tonight," and also "There Will Be One Vacant Chair." The invocation and the benediction were delivered by the chaplain of the Soldiers Home. Music was furnished by the Soldiers Home Band.

LEGION MONUMENT UNVEILED AT RITES

Cissel-Saxon Post, of Silver Spring, Commemorates Comrades in War.

PARADE OPENS EXERCISE

Memorial Day originated in the South, Representative W. C. Hammer, of North Carolina, told the gathering at the unveiling of a monument to Montgomery County's Company K, yesterday at Silver Spring. The representative said that April 25, 1866, the women of Columbus, Miss., gathered flowers and strewed them over the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers alike.

From this beginning the idea of a National Memorial Day has spread until in nearly every corner of the United States exercises were held yesterday in honor of the Nation's dead, he declared. Representative Hammer told service men present that theirs was the same duty that devolved upon the stricken soldiery of the South at the end of the war, to help in the rehabilitation of their country and to help in wiping out the antagonisms of war.

Former Senator Blair Lee, of Silver Spring, declared that he hoped this Nation would never have another war, but that if it became necessary, he hoped it would find America better prepared. Stedman Prescott, Rockville lawyer and war veteran; Capt. Frank L. Hewitt, of Silver Spring, also a war veteran and one of the commanders of the company in the war, also spoke.

The monument was erected by the members of the Cissel-Saxon Post, American Legion, of Silver Spring, of which B. Stone Leizear is commander. Singing of "America" was led by Mrs. Walter H. Oliver. The monument was unveiled by Sergt. Jasper Allen, of the Service Company, First National Guard, of Silver Spring, the successor to Company K. Following the firing of a volley by a squad of guardsmen, Bugler Joseph Spicer, of Walter Reed Hospital, sounded "Taps."

The exercises opened with a parade, in which the Service Company, the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department and other organizations took part. Invocation was said by the Rev. Wesley Loftis, pastor of the Silver Spring Baptist Church. The benediction was given by the Rev. Charles O. Rosensteel, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, Forest Glen.

Wreaths were placed on the stone by the Rev. Alfred Cheetham, vicar of the Silver Spring Episcopal Mission, for the Legion Post, and by John Feist, vice president of the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department. Maj. Howard W. Cutler presided. Mrs. Peggy Clark, president of the legion post's auxiliary, was introduced to the gathering.

LABOR AID PLEDGED TO WAR MEMORIAL

Group Promises Support in Drive to Complete $155,000 Fund.

$20,000 MORE NECESSARY

Assistance of organized labor was lent yesterday to the effort to complete financing of the District of Columbia World War Memorial. It is the aim of the group to obtain the $20,000 which is needed to reach the goal of $155,000, which will be the cost of the memorial. The fund now is $135,000.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, pledged the support of labor to the effort to raise the fund. Frank B. Noyes, chairman of the District of Columbia Memorial Association, in making this announcement said that construction may start next fall in West Potomac Park.

The memorial is to take the form of a white stone temple of classic design where band concerts may be played. It is to be located in a grove of trees between the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool and the Tidal Basin.

Following Mr. Green's pledge, the Washington Central Labor Union executive council appointed a committee of fourteen, headed by Frank Lee, vice president of the Mount Vernon Savings Bank, to organize the campaign for funds among the local labor group.

Dill Memorial Speaker At Battleground Rites

Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, was the chief speaker of the Memorial Day services at Battle Ground National Cemetery yesterday. Senator Dill paid a tribute to the 40 Civil War soldiers buried there, these all being men who had formed part of the defense of Washington during the war between the states.

Children of the public schools, under Mrs. Angus Lamond, jr., decorated the graves of the warrior dead. Dr. Henry A. Johnson, past commander, department of the Potomac, G. A. R. presided at the ceremony and introduced the speakers. Mr. John Claggett Proctor read an original poem, and several songs were sung by the Battle Ground Quartet. The band of the Third U. S. Cavalry furnished music for the occasion. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was delivered by Talbot O. Pulizzi, and John M. Kling, jr., recited the Star Spangled Banner.

10 DROWN AS CRAFT CAPSIZES IN PACIFIC

35 Saved, Fate of 14 Others Uncertain in Overloaded Water Taxi Tragedy.

TWO BODIES RECOVERED

Santa Monica, Calif., May 30 (A.P.).—At least ten persons drowned late today when an overloaded water taxi plying between the Santa Monica pier and two deep-sea fishing barges overturned three-quarters of a mile offshore. The water taxi carried 59 person.

Fairly heavy seas, which were running under a strong wind, handicapped efforts of rescue boats.

About an hour after the accident, 35 persons had been brought to shore and taken to hospitals after receiving emergency treatment with inhalators on the Santa Monica beach.

Commanders of rescue boats said they knew ten persons were dead and feared that the remainder of the passengers had drowned.

The boat was the Ameco under command of Capt. William Lightfoot. The accident occurred as the boat was returning from one of the fishing barges with a load of patrons, including men, women and children.

Witnesses among the thousands of persons who had thronged to the beaches for the memorial holiday said that as the craft left one of the barges, she appeared to wallow in the trough of a large wave and suddenly listed heavily.

Cries of the victims could be heard ashore as the craft settled on its side, precipitating the entire group of passengers into the ocean.

A nearby fishing boat, the Freedom, carrying a capacity load, was near the Ameco and sped under full power to the aid of the passengers. Thirty persons were picked out of the water by the Freedom. Two of them were dead. Capt. Lightfoot said 59 persons were aboard the Ameco.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IF this country is really grateful, then it will, of course, get around some day to honoring those countless men who on Memorial Day take to their motor cars and go out on the road and give battle to the buses.

They are the unsung heroes. No blaring trumpets and martial plume attends them. There is no glamour to their undertaking at all. One does not even hear the home people lined up on the streets cheering them as they go forth.

Yet they are dauntless, the legions of them. Well might they be called the hordes unafraid.

• • • •

THAT their cause seems hopeless, victory would never seem to be theirs, only emphasizes their courage, the strong hearts that beat beneath their breasts.

And make no mistake about this: No undertaking so inspired, attended by so much zeal as this great effort to make the roads safe from the buses, has ever yet failed.

History is replete with causes that moved against insurmountable obstacles but which prevailed in the end by virtue of their very stubbornness.

• • • •

THE day will yet come when there will be a decisive engagement on the Marlboro road and one can not resist a fiendish chuckle as he now visualizes it.

On that great day of reckoning a solid phalanx of Fords and Chevrolets will move boldly against one of these oncoming, swaggering monsters, with its reddish and green, weird eyes of nights and its swishing tail.

And there will be unbroken ranks of Oldsmobiles and Packards and Buicks right behind them, to give their moral support if nothing else. One is inclined to speak disparagingly of these heavier fellows because in the great fight up to now they have shown some cowardice.

• • • •

ONE would think that they would insist on being in front and putting their hefty shoulders against the first onslaught. But such is not the case.

It is in the little fellows that all those who believe in freedom of the roads must pin their faith. And they will be right there in the final show-down, strewn all over the ground, bruised and maimed, but happy in the thought that the monsters have been downed.

The plan of attack is even now being drawn up. Scores of the little fellows intend to hide in the bushes and when the unbroken ranks before the monster finally stop him they intend to rush out uttering little ghoulish squeaks and harrassing him from the rear and the flanks.

It will be a great day to see his panting form lying prostrate. There will be a great carnival of death. The little fellows will run merrily all over him and in and out of his eyes and ears.

Probably then the country will awaken to what is the due of these boys and erect a monument to them. Probably it will be a telegraph pole with a steering gear strewn around its neck.

WETS SEE INROADS IN POSITION OF DRYS

FEW MEASURES PASSED

Prohibition modificationists, casting back over the agitation which has wracked the Seventy-first Congress almost continually since its assemblage in extra session in April, 1929, are convinced today that inroads have been made on the hitherto impregnable position of the drys on Capitol Hill.

In support of this view they point to unassailable evidence that many of the drys are experiencing a change of heart, at least to the extent of recognizing the popular demand that the solution of the problem be approached in some other way than by mere augmentation of the Government's policy power.

The recent flurry in the Senate, which found such an outstanding dry as Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, father of the "five-and-ten" law, suggesting a referendum in his own State as the practical method of gauging sentiment on the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment, is being cited by the wets as indication of the way the wind is veering. A similar confession on the part of Senator Oddie (Republican), Nevada, and the acknowledgement of Senators Walsh, of Montana, and Watson, of Indiana, that they would be disposed to favor the referendum idea is being advanced seriously to support this view.

One Bill Enacted.

In a Congress, supposed to be overwhelmingly dry, and throughout a session of nearly fourteen months, in which the controversy raged unceasingly, only one prohibition bill, which can be characterized as "new legislation," has been enacted, despite the fact that the hoppers of both houses have been choked with dry and wet measures and Congress had endless hearings bearing on the controversy.

The bill which successfully ran the gantlet was the so-called transfer bill, removing the enforcement activities from the Treasury to Justice Department. Thus far, it is the only measure of the score or more recommended by the Wickersham law enforcement commission to make a dent, and its enactment is attributed largely to the general agreement that it was a thing that should have been done long ago, rather than evidence of the new and drastic dry step.

A bill to make the purchaser of liquor equally guilty with the seller, acknowledged to be the last word in Volsteadism, has slumbered in the Senate Judiciary Commission with the Blaine resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This same commission has done nothing with the Norris and Wheeler resolutions to investigate prohibition enforcement and the bills recommended by the law enforcement commission, except to approve several of the latter creating additional judgeships to cope with the intolerable conditions in the Federal courts and provide additional facilities for Federal penal institutions. Beyond hearing Attorney General Mitchell and George W. Wickersham, chiefly on these two problems, the committee, reputed to be dry by a large majority, has steadily refused to force a showdown on the prohibition question.

Judiciary Committee More Active.

Although the House Judiciary Committee, another dry organization, but with a wet chairman, representative Graham (Republican), Pennsylvania, has been more active, it delayed, until this last week, its report on the Wickersham measures. Three bills, designed to expedite the disposition of minor cases arising under the dry laws by altering the existing system of criminal procedure, have finally been approved and will get their innings before the House rules committee Tuesday to learn whether they will be given consideration by the House before Congress ends its labors next month.

Whatever the outcome, there will be no action on them in the Senate at this session, and much will be said against them in the House. Representative LaGuardia is preparing a minority report against one of the series, known as the commissioner bill, providing trial before United States commissioners for "petty" liquor offenses. This measure, as framed by the committee, has been described by LaGuardia as "a legislative monstrosity." The other two define petty offenses and amend the Jone "five-and-ten" law to prescribe penalties for "petty" "offenses."

Throughout the regular session this House committee has busied itself chiefly with hearings on the prohibition situation, pro and con, doing more perhaps than anything to bring out the facts which members of Congress are beginning to realize they must face.

Holding that the prohibition law is an outstanding example of the fallacy of attempting, through legal enactment, to change the moral character of our people, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, in a Memorial Day sermon here, insisted it was unreasonable to suppose a people could be made "temperate, chaste or honest merely by law or a watchful and vigilant constabulary."

TARRING VICTIM

DR. S. L. NEWSON.

TARRING WITNESSES GET PHONE WARNING

Woman's Voice Tells Pair Who Saw Dentist Flee to Leave Town.

SHERIFF SENDS GUARD

Hammond, La., May 30 (A.P.).—Willie Rownd and Riley Windom, residents of this city, who saw Dr. S. L. Newsom, Hammond dentist, running through the streets after he was tarred and feathered early Tuesday, told Sheriff Frank Edwards today that they had been warned to leave town.

They said a woman, whose voice they did not recognie, called them by telephone and gave the warning.

Windom declared the woman said, "Riley, you had better blow Hammond within the next 24 hours if you know what is good for you."

Rownd said the message he received was similar in substance.

They told the sheriff they were eating in a cafe when the dentist was dumped out in the street from an automobile.

Isaac Starns and his four brothers have been indicted for tarring and feathering Dr. Newsom. Starns said their action was caused by the dentist's attentions to his wife. Mrs. Starns and Dr. Newsom vigorously denied the accusation. Mrs. Starns has filed a divorce suit against her husband, charging that he defamed her character.

Sheriff Edwards assigned two deputies to guard Rownd and Windom, and they remained in the city today. Previously officers had been ordered to guard Dr. Newsom against further violence.

BUSINESS DULLNESS HELD INTERNATIONAL

Depression Period Through World Reflected by May Reports.

25 COUNTRIES AFFECTED

(Associated Press.)

The international character of business depression was reflected in the May reports to the Commerce Department by observers for the American Government in twenty-five countries representing every zone on the globe.

Virtually without exception trade commissioners in Asia, Europe, Latin America and elsewhere reported a prevailing dullness of business conditions. Some excerpts from the detailed review give a glimpse of the situations observed:

"Argentina—Business during May was quiet with continued weakness of peso exchange accentuating dullness usual at this time of year."

"Australia—New South Wales civil service salaries have been reduced one-eighth: Australian shipowners declare that they are in the worst position in the history of the Commonwealth and have refused to sign contracts with shippers."

Native Purchasing Power Declines.

"British Malaya—Native purchasing power continued on the decline and there is a noticeable shortage of cash coming in from consumers. Cessation in rubber tapping is expected to react adversely to May business."

Canada—"Business conditions continue generally quiet, with a slight improvement in industrial operations, though this is spotty."

Chile—"The government's policy of reducing taxation under the ordinary budget is creating a better business tone. Downward trend in commodity prices and other causes has resulted in smaller wholesale orders."

China—"Troop concentrations and disturbances continue to hamper trade in north, central and south China. A continually weakening silver exchange precludes import trade commitments, and until exchange is stabilized no adjustments can occur toward placing forward business on even a partially secure basis."

Merchants Heavily Overstocked.

Costa Rica—"Merchants are heavily overstocked and there is little demand for luxury articles. Collection of old debts is becoming more difficult."

Cuba—"The general tone is pessimistic and the tension throughout the Cuban business community persists."

Dominican Republic—"Price levels are so low as to offer little encouragement to agricultural producers."

Ecuador—"Imports into the entire country remain reduced."

"Haiti—"The general situation remains very unfavorable."

Honduras—"General business conditions on the north coast continue good, but collections are poor."

India—"Foreign trade for April was considerably lower than in 1929, due to lower commodity prices and disturbed conditions in the country."

Italian Taxes Below Normal.

Italy—"Returns for the first nine months of the fiscal year show central government taxes collected 2.56 per cent below those of the previous year."

Jamaica—"Business conditions were slightly below normal during May."

Japan—"Falling commodity prices and commercial inactivity continue in Japan."

Mexico—"Dullness prevails in most staple lines owing to low purchasing power in the interior."

Netherland East Indies—"Generally unfavorable conditions continue to prevail but slight improvement is expected next month."

Peru—"Depression continues unabated in Peru."

Philippine Islands: "The usual April decline is adding to the general depression prevailing since last year."

Porto Rico—"During the last two months economic conditions have shown undoubted improvement. Business in all lines is greatly encouraged."

New Zealand—"Prices for products are increasing slightly and the general outlook is better than at this time last month."

Trinidad—"Business slow."

HOOVER CONSIDERS POSSIBLE CHOICES FOR POST IN TOKYO

generally looked upon by both American and foreign diplomatic circles as one of the outstanding figures of the foreign service of the United States.

Mr. Fletcher, because of his intimate knowledge of South American affairs, was chosen by Mr. Hoover when he was President-elect to accompany him on his tour of the Latin-American republics.

With the President, he was to be a guest last night at the hunting lodge of Jay Cooke 3d, at Williamsport, Pa.

When he resigned as Ambassador to Italy, it was intimated publicly that Mr. Fletcher did so with a view to spending some time in his own country after many years of residence abroad. The belief here is, however, that Mr. Fletcher would have taken the ambassadorship to London if he had been offered it.

White House attaches last night confirmed the report that so far no name has been submitted to the Japanese foreign office for the usual approval.

The large number of noncareer diplomats appointed recently to European posts has led some foreign service officers to predict a career diplomat would be selected for Tokyo. Among those available in the career service, only two are prominent as possible candidates. These are Joseph C. Grew, of New Hampshire, now Ambassador to Turkey, and Hugh R. Wilson, of Illinois, Minister to Switzerland.

It has been intimated, however, that some of the President's closer advisers feel that the Tokyo post is one which should be filled by a noncareer diplomat or one of the type of former Ambassador Fletcher.

Others who have been mentioned as meeting the requirements for the post—involving the very necessary possession of a large private income to supplement the ambassador's salary of $17,500 yearly and a certain knowledge of diplomatic usage—are W. Cameron Forbes, of Boston, former Governor-General of the Phillipines, and Harry Chandler, owner of the Los Angeles Times and a close friend of the President.

William Phillips of Boston, who resigned as Minister to Canada last December, has also been mentioned, but since Mr. Phillips left the service that he might educate his children in the Unted States this might preclude his taking the post.

Two important questions now exist to engage the attention of the next ambassador to Tokyo. These are the London Naval agreement, which must be ratified by the Japanese and the problem of Japanese immigration in the United States.

BALTIMORE WOMAN LEAPS TO HER DEATH

Capital Resident In Hotel Room in New York as Tragedy Occurs.

ILL HEALTH CAUSE CITED

Leaping from her room on the thirteenth floor of the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City, yesterday afternoon Miss Charlotte T. Markell, a Baltimore private secretary, was instantly killed when her body struck the third floor shed in the courtyard, according to a special dispatch to The Post.

A Washington woman, Mrs. Thomas Allen, who gave an N street address, was among three women in the room who tried to stop Miss Markell as she ran to her death. Her name is not listed in the city directory.

Ill health, due to despondency over the recent death of her mother and a more recent operation, was assigned as the reason for the suicide. Miss Markell, who was about 33 years old, and Miss Lelia Miller, also of Baltimore, registered at the hotel on Wednesday. The former left her home about a week ago, it was learned, and went to the Rockefeller Hospital for consultation.

The young woman had just arisen from a midday rest and was still in pajamas when she leaped through the window. Miss Miller, who had expected to take Miss Markell back home on Monday, was hysterical last night. She said her cousin was ill, but in no financial difficulties.

CARAWAY RIDICULES LOBBYIST INFLUENCE

Senator Hits Professional Agents; Calls Men Who Hire Them "Suckers."

WILL MISS CANNON QUIZ

How Washington lobbyists look to a man who has spent the past seven months putting them on the griddle and watching them squirm was revealed yesterday by Chairman Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, of the Senate lobby investigating committee.

Memorial Day found Mr. Caraway in a reminiscent mood. He looked back over the long procession of witnesses that have passed through his inquisitorial chamber and drew the conclusion that the flourishing lobby industry in the National Capital demonstrates that modern eugenics has not interfered with the traditional birthrate of suckers.

If the late P. T. Barnum erred in propounding his one-per-minute calculation it was a mistake in the direction of conservatism, according to Mr. Caraway.

Lobbyists Are Criticized.

While every citizen has a right to petition Congress for anything he may want, in Mr. Caraway's philosophy, the employment of Washington lobbyists to urge such petitions falls rather in the category of that other inalienable right of every citizen to make a fool of himself if he so chooses. Most Washington lobbyists, Mr. Caraway has concluded, are "parasites preying on the public."

"They serve no useful purpose," he declared. "However much they may progress, the fact is that most of them have not even speaking acquaintance with any one in the legislative or administrative branches of the Government."

There was a touch of sadness in Mr. Caraway's review yesterday, for he is compelled to miss what may be the most dramatic phase of the entire investigation, the appearance on the stand next Tuesday of Bishop James Cannon, jr.

Will Miss Cannon Quiz.

Mr. Caraway has to go to Arkansas to deliver some school commencement addresses, so he will not be here to listen to the bishop's explanation of what happened to the $48,300 given him by E. C. Jameson, of New York, for use in the anti-Smith campaign of 1928 and so far unaccounted for.

Mr. Caraway's disappointment is shared by those who have been following the lobby hearings and who had been looking forward eagerly to a clash between the caustic-tongued chairman and the fiery clergyman who led the Southern Hoovercrat opposition to Gov. Smith, and to the governor's running mate, Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, who is Mr. Caraway's colleague.

Mr. Caraway believes that the way of the Washington lobbyist will be less lucrative in the future as a result of his committee's work.

"The investigation has given a fairly accurate picture of the leading groups who have infested Washington and sought to influence legislation and executive action for a number of years," he said.

Lobby Operations Hit.

"In most cases it pretty clearly appeared that the chief concern of the lobbyists was to find credulous people and induce them to contribute the funds which were alleged to be accumulated for the purpose of accomplishing ends they professed to seek. But in very many instances the contributions found their way into the pockets of professional lobbyists.

"Of the hundreds of associations and individuals who are domiciled in Washington and who may properly be described as lobbyists, the vast majority are simply preying upon the cupidity or desires of individuals and groups away from Washington, and whatever money is contributed is pocketed.

"They make no effort to influence legislation or executive action and have no influence to accomplish either."

Man Chews Bon Bon And Finds It's Torpedo

Baltimore, May 30 (A.P.).—Charles Boon, 57, Negro, couldn't determine whether the little package his son found in the road was a bon bon or a torpedo. He put it into his mouth and chewed it vigorously to determine the point. It turned out to be a torpedo.

Boon said he knows now it was a torpedo because bon bons never explode like that. Several of his teeth were knocked out and his mouth and face were cut. He was treated at a hospital.

Georgia Indicts Four On Insurrection Charge

Atlanta, Ga., May 30 (A.P.).—Mary Dalton and Ann Burlack, white girls and Gilner Brady and Henry Storey, Negroes, today were indicted by the Fulton County grand jury on charges of attempting to incite insurrection and circulating insurrectionary papers. Under an old Georgia statute the maximum penalty for attempting to incite insurrection is death.

The four were charged in the indictments with defying the authorities of Atlanta by attempting to hold an alleged Communist meeting and with circulating papers against the United States Government. Similar indictments were returned several weeks ago against Joe Carr and M. H Powers who are held without bail in the Fulton County Jail awaiting trial.

Backers Withdraw From Air Flight

Aviators Will Attempt to Reorganize for Hop to Buenos Aires.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., May 30 (A.P.). — R. Stauart Murray, representing the backers of the Connecticut-Buenos Aires nonstop flight of the airplane K of New Haven, announced tonight they had withdrawn their support from the project. He said all refueling points along the proposed route have been notified that plans have been abandoned.

The K of New Haven landed here today four hours after it had taken off from Hartford, on its proposed South American flight, when members of the crew said, the plane had developed an air leak in the oil line.

Two of the crew, Capt. Herbert C. Partridge and Lieut. Comdr. G. R. Pond, said they would attempt to reorganize plans for the flight.

Army Is Expected To Oust Brewster

Report of Sanity Awaited Before Officer Requests Suspect's Discharge.

Action of military officials is awaited by civil authorities in connection with the case of Private Howard L. Brewster, who will probably be discharged from the service following his confessions and denials of the murder of Mary Baker.

Capt. A. R. Bolling, Brewster's superior officer, will not apply for the discharge of the soldier until he receives the report of the mental tests given the suspect. The report is now in Baltimore at the headquarters of the Third Corps Area, of which Capt. Bolling's command is a part.

Investigation of the prisoner was at a standstill yesterday. Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly were not at their offices. Mr. Gloth has not decided upon what charge he will hold the suspect in the event that he is discharged from service.

Policeman Injured By Rum Car Driver

12 Gallons Liquor Taken, but Operator Dodges Bullet Fusillade.

A lone two-hour vigil in the shadows of Thirty-seventh street near M street northwest for a suspected rum-laden automobile last night almost cost Seventh Precinct Policeman William B. Kuhns injury or a worse fate when a Negro motorist sought to hit him while escaping through a fusillade of shots.

Kuhns exhibited bruises and a seizure of 12 gallons of liquor as a reward for his trouble. Acting on meager information that a load of liquor would be delivered along the block, he finally saw the car come to a stop, with motor running and lights out. The unidentified driver had deposited two cases on the sidewalk beside the machine when Kuhns emerged from nearby bushes with a command to halt.

The driver leaped to the seat and sent the machine lurching ahead at rapidly increasing speed toward Kuhns, who jumped out of its path as the car brushed by, knocking him to the ground. Kuhns fired three shots. Police immediately broadcast a report to all precincts to jail any wounded men answering to the Negro's description.

Magazine Replies To Critics of Poll

Ballots Sent Dry States Outnumbered Others, Digest Says.

Having completed its Nationwide poll on prohibition, the Literary Digest in today's issue "turns with alacrity to the task of proving that its critics, while nominally dry, are in a slangy sense 'all wet'" so far as their allegations of injustice in the periodical's balloting are concerned.

Instead of the west States being favored with more ballots, as charged, the magazine declares, a study of the tabulations will show that the dry States accidently got a slight excess of the query cards. The charges of the drys are answered in detail and with figures.

The final count of the straw vote in Washington, revealed yesterday by the Digest, shows that of the 16,847 ballots cast, 7,778 were for repeal of the dry law, 5,085 for modification and 3,984 for enforcement.

Manhole's Closing Balks Sewer Tragedy Repetition

Action in Capital Will Prevent Boys Here From Losing Lives Like Four in Baltimore; Fifth Victim Is Feared.

The death of four boys and probably a fifth in a sewer emergency drain in Baltimore has recalled the narrow escape five Washington lads had from a similar fate in a sewer main at Warren street, near Thirty-ninth, northwest on April 18. The opening on Reno road, near the Bureau of Standards, has been closed, however, according to Fourteenth Precinct police, so that there is no danger of a similar tragedy.

The stifled cries of one of the trapped boys was heard by a 9-year-old lad through a manhole. The fire rescue squad found the five yuoths unconscious from the gas in the sewer, but they were later revived.

Baltimore police recvoered the fourth body yesterday from the outlet of an emergency drain in which the boys were playing last Saturday when a storm flooded the underground passage. Fear that a fifth boy had met a similar death developed when Charles J. Christopher reported his son, Martin, 14 years old, had been missing since May 17 and had often played near the entrance of the sewer.

The bodies fuond were of Wilbert Alban, 15; Donald Moore, 13; Francis Welden, 9, and John Kelly, jr., 14.

LORD IRWIN STRIKES AT INDIA REBELLION

Two Ordinances Call for Immediate Cessation of Campaign.

26 HURT IN RAID ON SALT

Bombay, May 30 (A.P.).—The Indian government took new steps today to check the rising wave of civil disobedience. At Simla, Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India, promulgated two ordinances against the three features of the Gandhi civil disobedience campaign.

The first deals with the campaign to withhold payment of taxes, which the viceroy declares is "an appeal to the masses, which must, if successful, involve a grave reaction upon the administration and stability of the state." He said the campaign must be stopped in its initial stages.

The second ordinance deals with the growth of picketing of shops selling liquor and foreign cloth and with the boycotting of Indian government servants.

The viceroy states these activities form an important part of a movement designed to paralyze the government and coerce the public, and that it is necessary to provide powers adequate for dealing rapidly and effectively with them. He declares that the powers to deal with the molestation or boycott of government servants will come into force only in those areas in which the local government considers the situation demands them.

India generally passed a much quieter day than she has known in some weeks. Only in Dharasana were there untoward incidents, an attempted raid on the salt works this morning resulting in injuries to 26 volunteers and the usual crop of arrests.

Under the watchful eye of police, Dacca and Lucknow were on their good behavior. The rioting that has violently torn both cities since last week was checked.

An inquiry into the April riots in Peshawar continued without notable published developments. At Lucknow a similar investigation is to be opened.

Bombay was more occupied in discussing the proposed Indian boycott of an English cricket team that will shortly visit India than in preparing militant activities. The idea of the boycott originated with Hindu students and is being enthusiastically discussed throughout the city.

ZEPPELIN SPEEDING TO LAKEHURST GOAL

had made elaborate plans to receive the giant of the skies.

With that he nosed to the eastward and at 5:04 a. m., (E. S. T.), passed over San Juan, Porto Rico, rousing the inhabitants, who rushed outdoors to see the silvery Zeppelin framed against the tropical dawn.

At noon the Zeppelin's radio sender was picked up by American stations and her position was given as latitude 25.59 and longitude 68.52—, about 500 miles due east of Nassau, Bahamas, or 805 miles slightly northeast of Key West, Fla.

The Weather Bureau at Washington notified Dr. Eckener that he might strike bad weather off Cape Hatteras tonight, but Navy observers believed that if the dirigible kept up the speed of this trip it would escape the strongest winds, while the navigators might set a course to dodge the squalls.

Explains Fuel Shortage.

F. W. von Neister, representative of the Zeppelin Co. in the United States, tonight explained the Zeppelin's shortage of fuel as probably due to the intense tropical heat of South America.

"Under normal conditions," he said, "the supply of gaseous fuel in the Graf Zeppelin would be more than ample for the trip from Pernambuco to Havana and thence to Lakehurst without refueling, including a reasonable and safe fuel reserve.

"But the terrific tropical heat in Pernambuco, which caused great expansion of the fuel gas and lifting gas, probably reduced the ability of the Graf Zeppelin to take a full load of fuel and thereby made it necessary for Dr. Eckener to give up the idea of landing at Havana in order to arrive at Lakehurst with a fuel reserve which complies with the requirements for safe airship navigation."

(Associated Press.)

The Graf Zeppelin reported her 6 p. m. (E. S. T.) position yesterday to the Navy as 410 miles from Lakehurst, latitude 33.50, longitude 71.30.

Straight Line for New York.

The Zeppelin's message said the ship was making a straight line for New York. The position placed her on the eastern fringe of the Gulf Stream, 212 miles east-southeast of Cape Hatteras.

Comparing this position with the one given for 3 p. m. the Zeppelin was shown to have made more than 95 land miles per hour during the three-hour period.

The Zeppelin late yesterday sent the following radiogram to the Navy Department:

"Will arrive Lakehurst early Saturday morning. Exact time will be sent later."

Winchester Rites Staged by Legion

For First Time There Is No G. A. R. Member in Memorial Events.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., May 30.—For the first time since National Decoration Day was established shortly after close of the Civil War there was no member of the Grand Army of the Republic present today to participate in memorial exercises in the cemetery containing the bodies of over 5,000 American soldiers. Instead of the old G. A. R. Post conducting exercises, the ceremonies were in charge of Robert Y. Conrad Post, American Legion, many of them sons and grandsons of Confederate Veterans, who in the sixties fought against the men whose memory their offspring thus honored.

The program was in charge of Lieut. Nelson F. Richards, post commander, and Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read by Adjutant L. C. Hollis, grandson of a Confederate soldier. The memorial address was by Dr. Luther A. Thomas, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church.

All the graves and the various State and regimental association monuments were decorated with flowers and flags by the Ladies' National Memorial Association. The flags were sent by the War Department in Washington. The salutes were fired by Company I, 116th Infantry, Virginia National Guard.

Glenn Curtiss Flies Plane Again Over Historic Route

Man Who Won $10,000 in 1910 by Piloting Box Kite Airship From Albany to New York Rides in 1930 in Tri-Motored Ship.

New York, May 30—(A.P.).—Down the old air lane he took 20 years ago to write a new page in the history if aviation, Glenn H. Curtiss today flew from Albany to New York.

At the controls of a giant, twin-motored transport plane he retraced his flight of May 20, 1910, from the Capital City to Governor's Island in New York Harbor in almost exactly half the time it took him 20 years ago. Then he flew the 137 miles in 152 minutes. Today the time was 80 minutes.

In 1910 he flew alone, sitting on the front of a box kite plane that few aviators or today would risk their lives in. Today he carried with him 12 passengers and a co-pilot—Capt. Frank Courtney, of transatlantic fame. Three accompanying planes carried 30 more persons.

Mr. Curtiss had little to say at Curtiss field, Valley Stream, where the big transpirt landed after circling the old objective—Governors Island—but he did say that he enjoyed the trip immensely.

"I learned Storm King was still there," he said smiling, "the place I first learned that air went up and down as well as sideways." He referred to Storm King mountain, below Poughkeepsie, where he struck rough air on his first trip and again today.

In 1910 he won a prize of $10,000 offered by the New York World for the first flight from Albany to New York City, was greeted by admiring crawds and given the freedom of the city. Today there was only the usual holiday crowd at Curtiss Field, and little more than that at Albany Airport for the take-off.

Mr. Curtiss and his party, most of whom had flown from New York City i nthe morning, were guests of the Albany Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon there before retracing the historic flight to New York.

Among those making the flight today were Don Seitz, manager of the New York World 20 years ago and the man who gave Curtiss the $10,000 prize check; Frank Fussell, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored today's flight; Jacob Ten Eyck, offical starter of the flight 20 years ago and today taking his first ride in an airplane; Mayor John Boyd Thacher 2d, of Albany; Augustus S. Post, connected with Mr. Curtiss in the first flight, and Senator J. Griswold Webb, chairman of the State Air Commission.

ONE PRISONER SLAIN AS 47 ESSAY BREAK

Men Taken From Columbus Penitentiary After Fire Start Riot.

SHOT QUIETS OUTBREAK

London, Ohio, May 30 (A.P.).—Guards at the London State Prison Farm today shot one convict to death, who with 46 other inmates attempted to batter his way to freedom from a cell block. The 47 were among prisoners brought here from the Ohio State Penitentiary after the Easter Monday prison fire in which 320 convicts perished.

The prisoner shot was Sam Mazello of Trumbull County. Bullets pierced his head and heart when he and his mates refused to obey orders of the guards to stop the disturbance.

Shooting Climax to Unrest.

The shooting came as a climax to 48 hours of unrest within the prison. After the convicts had broken much of the equipment in their cells and began to storm the gates, Superintendent W. F. Amrine gave the order to fire on them. No prison wall surrounds the farm and had the prisoners escaped from the cell block they would have had free access to the outside.

When Mazello fell dead, the other convicts returned to their cells and became quiet. Amrine told them he would stand "no foolishness" and intended that no further disturbances should occur. The County Coroner who investigated the shooting gave a verdict of accidental death.

Member of "Dangerous Squad."

Officials of the prison said Mazello had been a member of Company K at the State penitentiary, the "dangerous squad," and that he had been one of the disturbing elements in the unrest at the penitentiary after the fire. He had been unruly at the prison farm also, they said.

Mazello was serving 1 to 15 years on a charge of burglary. He was received in 1925, paroled in 1926, and returned as a parole violator in 1928.

DR. WILSON DEFENDS TEMPERANCE BOARD

First Amendment Allows Lobbying Activities, Parley Is Told.

SECRET REPORT DENIED

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 30.—The 146th Baltimore annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church adjourned a long executive session today until tomorrow morning. It might hear Dr. Clarence True Wilson, chairman of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, defend the board from critics. He was especially emphatic in upholding the board in connection with lobbying charges, declaring it exercised its right under the first amendment of the Constitution, reciting the four provisions. "We are not trying to make Methodists of anybody," he said, "but are simply exercising the right which we are perfectly willing to allow any one else." He also denight the secret report charge and declared two columns of report had been published in Washington previous to the presentation of the charge of secrecy.

He also defended the action of the board in enlarging its building in Washington, that it might make more efficient its work.

Candidates Passed Upon.

The executive session was to pass upon the character and progress of candidates for the ministry as they advance from the first to the fourth year in their studies.

The probationers include seven in first-year studies, two in second and seven in third. While the executive session was on, "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung as a large flag stood unfurled in front of the pulpit. Another executive session will be held tomorrow morning. The names of the candidates passed will not be announced until Monday, when the appointments will be made known.

A move to have the appointments announced Sunday afternoon or evening was defeated, the conference voting that in line with its views on Sabbath observance, the appointment should be withheld until Monday. So many preachers leaving the city by train or automobile on Sunday would be disturbing to the city, it was held.

Dr. Wilson Conducts Service.

Dr. Wilson conducted the "Meditation on Pentecost" service, Dr. J. W. Thompson, of the faculty, talked to the conference on the work of Drew University, and the Rev. Thomas S. Long told of the progress being made at the Strawbridge Boys Home, near Westminster. Another educational address was by the Rev. Harry S. Upperman, which had to do with Baxter Seminary, located in the mountains of Tennessee.

The second annual young people's council was held this afternoon. The banquet of the board of examiners, whose work is considered at the executive session, was also held.

Visiting ministers will fill the pulpits of 20 churches of various denominations in Cumberland Sunday, while many will go to churches of outlying towns. Veterans Sponsor Cumberland Rites

Eleven of Remaining G. A. R. Members Invite Legion to Exercises.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 30.—Exercises in observance of Memorial Day were held here this morning in which veterans of all wars joined. Fort Cumberland Post, No. 13, American Legion, by invitation of Tyler Post, No. 5, Grand Army of the Republic, which has but eleven of its original 252 members left, had charge. The Spanish-American War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, mayor and council of Cumberland, Municipal Band, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Red Cross and Rotary, Monarch and Kiwanis Clubs took part.

The Municipal Band led the procession to Rose Hill Cemetery. Company G, First Regiment, Maryland National Guard, was in line, with the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars Drum Corps.

Mayor Thomas W. Koon spoke briefly at Rose Hill Cemetery, where the ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic was delivered by Commander S. S. Warnick, who at Winchester carried to Gen. Philip Sheridan the dispatch that caused him to make his famous ride. George Henderson, of the Allegany County bar, who was a captain in the World War overseas, delivered the address.

DRY SUPPORT VOTED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Solid Opposition Expressed on Modification by Assembly.

NEWSPAPERS ARE HIT

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 30 (A.P.).—A address on behalf of prohibition enforcement by Dr. Mark Matthews, of Seattle, brought the one hundred and forty-second general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. to a rising vote today for support of the eighteenth amendment and for solid opposition to any attempt to modify it.

The situation faced by President Wilson during the World War when he declared that an "invisible government" was working against him, is shared by President Hoover because an "invisible government" is working for the downfall of prohibition law, Dr. Matthews declared.

Dr. Matthews voiced his appeal for law enforcement in an address commending the report of the national loyalty commission of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., which he helped to compile.

The last general assembly sent a message to President Hoover encouraging him in "carrying out the policies he has so courageously announced in behalf of the observance and enforcement of the law." The report of the denomination's loyalty commission, which was unanimously approved today, concluded with the statement that "the traffic in intoxicating liquor is a constitutional outlaw and must never be legalized again."

Attack Liquor Interests.

The invisible empire working against the eighteenth amendment, Dr. Matthews declared, is represented chiefly by national and international liquor interests. The attack that is made upon the young people of today, he said, is just a part of the conspiracy against constitutional government.

The newspapers, he asserted, publish stories of motor accidents involving young people in which the first thought of the arresting officers is to "smell the breath" of the driver to learn whether he has been drinking.

"In the days of our fathers no newspaper would have dared to do that. The conduct of the young people of this generation is no worse than that of the youths of the preceding generation. The attack that is made upon them is unjust, unfair and false. Conscious of the responsibility of my words I wish to say that the statements made against them are premeditated perjury. It is a pure libel on the finest generation of youths that America has ever produced.

Will Be Youth's Defender.

"I don't condone the escapades of youth but I'll not leave them in the lurch. I'll be their defender always because they are living in an age of pernicious publication."

Dr. Matthews also described the agitation for a modification of the prohibition law as a part of the conspiracy against the statute. Statements that prohibition produced the bootlegger, the speakeasies, the blind pigs and the makers of homebrew are utterly false, he declared.

"The bootlegger was made in Massachusetts 150 years ago. The speakeasy and the blind pig were made by the saloons. Before prohibition, if there were 600 saloons in a town there were just as many speakeasies and blind pigs because those saloons had their back rooms and their own means of evading the revenue laws."

HOOVER'S APPROVAL OF TARIFF EXPECTED

istration pilots base their predictions President Hoover will approve the bill.

Although he has kept silent as to attitude on rates, Mr. Hoover has been unusually active in consulting with his leaders in Congress regarding the flexible provision, and now that one has finally emerged which is more acceptable to him than all the other alternative plans proposed, his signature of the bill is confidently expected.

Senate leaders yesterday claimed claimed they had the votes to pass the bill, and House chieftains anticipate little difficulty in getting it through that branch to the White House.

The conference report embracing the new flexible provision will be taken up in the Senate Monday. Debate may last the rest of the week on this and the original report containing most of the rate changes which the House has adopted. Separate votes will be taken on the two reports in the Senate and the House will be required to act only on the supplemental document to complete congressional action.

Republicans are rejoicing over the Democratic point of order against the first conference flexible provision which necessitated a rewriting of the clause. The first draft would have required the President to take either affirmative or negative action on a tariff commission rate recommendation within 60 days and if no action were taken the commission rate would have become operative.

As now written a commission rate would not become effective until approved by the Executive and he is given unlimited time to act.

The only restriction placed on the President which is not in existing law is that he must adhere to the commission rate in proclaiming changes in duties within the 50 per cent limitation whereas at present he can proclaim a different levy so long as it stays within the 50 per cent range.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, expressed little concern yesterday over the threatened points of order against rates on cherries, cheese, rayon and watches, which are contained in the first conference report. If the Democrats are successful in these moves, the finance committee chairman said, the conferees could speedily make the necessary corrections and get the report back on the floor for final action.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

The Washington traffic regulations are drawn to prevent various types of vehicles from obstructing each other. This is done in connection with street cars, which are given the right of way on their tracks over all except fire, police and other emergency vehicles.

There is a specific provision in the code which requires ordinary traffic moving in front of a street car to turn out on signal from the motorman. Example: A driver is moving ahead of a street car on his way up Fourteenth street northwest. The motorman sounds his bell, but the motorist keeps his position. He has violated the law and may be arrested and fined.

Convention to Pass Today on Report Urging Drvie on Strong Drink.

ELECTION IS SCHEDULED

Cleveland, May 30 (A.P.).—A report declaring a necessity for "a Nation-wide campaign of education in the matter of strong dring and obedience to all law" was submitted by the committee on prohibition and law enforcement of the Northern Baptist convention here today.

The report makes no recommendation as to when or under whose direction the campaign is to be held, but calls the Baptists and other religious groups to "stand unwaveringly in defense of temperance and law enforcement."

Motion pictures are partly to blame for the present difficulties confronting law enforcement, the report says.

A resolution with respect to action on the report is expected to come before the Baptists tomorrow.

Tomorrow's session will touch to a great extent upon prohibition questions. The principal speaker at the dinner tomorrow night will be Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant United States Attorney General in Charge of Prohibition Enforcement.

Election of officers is scheduled for tomorrow also, the name of Dr. Albert W. Beaven, of Rochester, N. Y., president of the Colgate Rochester Divinity School, being the only one submitted thus far for the presidency.

The committee on cooperation with the Federal Council Churches of Christ in America tomorrow will recommend that the Baptists give united support to that body. The report is expected to meet wih objecions from conservative Baptist delegates.

COMMUNITIES TO VIE AT FLOWER EXHIBIT

Montgomery County Groups Will Compete in Annual Somerset Show.

PEONIES TO BE FEATURE

Six Maryland communities will vie for honors in the spring flower show of the Montgomery County Suburban Garden Club to be held tonight and tomorrow in the Somerset schoolhouse. Interest is added to the club's second annual spring competition by reason of the fact that it is being staged in conjunction with the regional peony show of the American Peony Society, and is therefore attracting peony exhibits from Maryland, Virginia, District of Columbia, and West Virginia.

Friendship Heights, Somerset, Kenwood, Drummond, Chevy Chase Gardens, and Chevy Chase Terrace, all of which are represented in membership of the Montgomery County Suburban Garden Club, are pitted against each other in community and club exhibits.

The show will be open from 7 to 10 p. m. tonight and from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. tomorrow. All exhibits must be in place by 3 o'clock this afternoon, at which time judges will begin their work. The exhibit will be opened to the public with a concert by the Junior Orchestra of Somerset.

Ninety classes for flowers, fruits, and vegetables, including 30 classes for peonies alone, are provided for in the printed exhibit schedules, which have been given widespread distribution. Five prize awards will be made in each class. Classes have been provided for women's clubs, school and community exhibits, and scores of classes for exhibits of flowers by individuals.

Nine judges will make the awards. Mrs. E. E. Browne, wife of Representative Browne from Wisconsin, who is a large grower of peonies, will help judge the peony exhibits. She will be assisted by B. Y. Morrison and F. L. Mulford, of the Department of Agriculture.

Judges for the general flower show class include H. P. Simpson, a well-known iris grower; David Lumsden, of the Department of Agriculture, and Dr. Earl B. White, regional vice president of the American Peony Society, and a member of the Montgomery County Suburban Garden Club, who has won distinction as a peony grower.

The community, women's club and school exhibits will be judged by Stanley Holland and George Davis, prominent Washington florists, and Peter Bisset, of the Department of Agriculture.

More than 1,000 peony blooms have already been placed by each of two growers, Howard R. Watkins, of Somerset, and Dr. Earl B. White, of Kensington, both of whom are members of the Garden Club as well as of the American Peony Society. George W. Peyton, of Rapidan, Va., will today superintend the placing of the handsome exhibit sent by him for this show, as will many other growers.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson has received a communication from the State Board of Education in regard to the general plan for the distribution of elementary and equalization funds for the next school year, recently adopted. As a basis for distribution, it has set up a minmum school requirement for every county in the State. Superintendent Woodson states that this will affect the schools in Fairfax County to some extent.

The minimum requirement calls for one teacher for every 25 pupils in average attendance for the school year of 1929-30, the teacher to have not less than two years of professional training, though reimbursement will be allowed for teachers with less professional training for the school year 1930-31. For each unit of 25 pupils, teaching facilities shall be furnished from local funds; this shall consist of necessary wall maps, supplementary readers and reference books. The school room shall meet in a reasonable fashion the general requirements of law as to light, ventilation and sanitation with sanitary toilets, either within or outside of the building. A minimum term of eight months for every unit of 25 pupils shall be maintained.

On the basis of these minimum requirements the State board will pay to any county needing it the difference between the amount now received from State and local sources for teachers' salaries and the amount necessary for the operation of all the schools in the county for eight months.

For counties already maintaining superior school facilities a bonus will be allowed which approximates 10 per cent of the general appropriation for the current year plus the amount now received from the State elementary fund.

So far as funds will permit special provisions will be made to reimburse counties for the operation of small isolated schools operated with less than 25 pupils which can not be reasonably consolidated.

It is the purpose of the State Board of Education to make the quality of instruction the largest solitary factor in equalization and to this end, it purposes to appropriate $10 additional per month on a teacher's salary for each year of professional training.

Superintendent Woodson also stated that this will specially affect Fairfax County in view of the proposed school consolidation program that is being considered by the school board and the residents of the various communities at present. Such a consolidation would greatly increase the standards of the schools throughout the county.

Farmer, Starving, Refuses All Food

Man Near Danville, 60, Has Not Eaten for 18 Days in Suicide Attempt.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., May 30.—F. W. Davis, a farmer aged 60, who decided early in May to starve himself to death because he had grown too old to work and because he had no relatives, today was in an emaciated condition at his home at Mountain Hill, near here. He resisted the efforts of neighbors who have tried to change his attitude and has eaten no food since May 12, though he drinks water daily.

Dr. S. G. Hughes, called by neighbors to Davis' home last night, reported that he had been unable to prevail on the man to eat and that he seemed determined to die by starvation. Davis, the doctor said, was somewhat resentful of the doctor's visit and told him that he had made his will, disposing of money he had accumulated, and had also made his own funeral arrangements.

Davis, who is unmarried, was born in Wisconsin and came to Virginia 26 years ago, having been a tobacco planter. The physician was unable to predict how much longer Davis would live if he adheres to his present purpose.

BRADY BOMB CASE TO OPEN TUESDAY

State Likely to Be Aided by Surprise Witnesses in Rockville Court.

VENUE CHANGE SECURED

The State will be bulwarked with several surprise witnesses, it was intimated yesterday by J. Wilson Ryon, who is associated in the prosecution of the Seat Pleasant bombing case with State's Attorney J. Frank Parran, of Prince Georges County. The trial of Lawrence Leroy Brady, Washington automobile mechanic, and his brother, Herman Brady, on charge of murder in connection with the bombing, will begin Tuesday in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville.

Ryon intimated that the purpose of trip made by him and Sheriff Charles S. Early to Ohio was to interview these witnesses. He refused to make known their names or what they would testify to in the trial except to say that he believed that their evidence would considerably better the State's case.

The bomb, disguised as a Christmas package, exploded New Year's Day in the kitchen of the John Brady home in Seat Pleasant, killing Naomi Hall Brady, 18-year-old wife of Herman Brady and expectant mother, and her little sister and brother. Mrs. Hall and two other children were seriously injured in the explosion.

The change of venue to Montgomery County was asked by Defense Attorneys M. Hampton Magruder, State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer and Frank Hall, claiming that they did not feel their clients could receive a fair trial in Prince Georges County on account of public feeling. Albert M. Bouic, Rockville attorney, also is retained as defense counsel. State's Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., of Montgomery County, will assist the Prince Georges prosecutors.

Sheriff Charles S. Early has completed the summoning of witnesses both for the State and for the defense in the trial.

Representative P. J. Kvale, of Minnesota, was the principal speaker at the Peace Cross Memorial Day exercises yesterday in Bladensburg. The exercises were held under the auspices of the Snyder-Farmer Post, American Legion, of Hyattsville. Addresses also were made by prominent local men.

The exercises started with a parade from the National Guard Armory at Hyattsville in which the Hyattsville National Guard detachment and patriotic and civic organizations participated.

Exercises also were held at the Memorial fountain in front of the courthouse at Upper Marlboro by the local Legion post yesterday after a parade from Central avenue.

Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, along with the Woman's Auxiliary, held special exercises at the two memorial markers in Arlington County yesterday one in Clarendon and the other at Cherrydale. Wreaths were placed at the base of each marker, also on the graves of more than 50 Virginia World War dead in the Arlington National Cemetery.

The auxiliary, under the direction of past president, Mrs. Arthur J. Porter, visited Columbia Gardens Cemetery in Arlington County, where wreaths were placed upon the graves of Arthur Welch and Mrs. Florence Lundquist. Mrs. Lundquist was until her death a short time ago chaplain of the local auxiliary.

With all roads leading to the National Cemetery lined with hundreds of automobiles from early yesterday morning until a late hour yesterday afternoon not a single accident was reported by Sheriff Howard B. Fields last night.

Military police assisted the county officers at intersections of county and Government roads leading from both the Key and Highway Bridges.

In addition to no accidents being reported no reports were received from the county jail of any violations of any nature.

Despite the fact that the committee on military affairs of the House of Representatives have reported favorably on the bill recently introduced by Representative R. Walton Moore providing for the policing of the military roads in Arlington County, it is learned that in view of the probable early adjournment of Congress that the bill will not receive consideration at this session.

A letter made public yesterday by Ashton C. Jones, president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, from Representative R. Walton Moore reads:

"As you are interested in the matter of policing the military roads of Arlington County, you will see the bill I introduced some time ago has been favorably reported by the committee on military affairs. This puts us in train for enactment, but whether, in view of the probable very early adjournment of Congress, it will receive consideration in the present session is uncertain."

The bill, which has received the indorsement of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, Sheriff Howard B. Fields and all civic organizations within the county, provides that the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital shall, in addition to his duties of policing public roads and parks within the District of Columbia, be responsible for the proper policing for a distance of 5 miles from the boundaries of the District of Columbia of military roads in the State of Virginia designated by the Secretary of War leading out of the District of Columbia over which the United States has exclusive jurisdiction, and in the performance of such duty he is authorized to use the United States Park Police.

WAR DEAD PRAISED BY LEGION SPEAKER

Alexandria Post Conducts Only Public Observance of Memorial Day.

SWIMMING POOL OPENS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, staged the only public celebration here yesterday of Memorial Day, with exercises in historic Gadsby's Tavern, headquarters of the legion post, with Capt. Thurlow White, a member of the post, as the speaker. Capt. White paid tribute to the soldier dead who, in the World War and other wars, made the supreme sacrifice, to the end that their country might be made safe for democracy. His talk was historic, starting with the expedition of Burr Harrison and Giles Vandercaster to Conoy Island, in the Potomac, in 1699, and including their two expeditions to Ohio. He referred to the campaign of 1798 against the French, in which Alexandria had six companies, and those of 1812 and 1846, in the last named of which an Alexandrian, Capt. Robert E. Lee, commanded a company; of the War Between the States, 1861-65, the Spanish-American War in 1898, the expedition to Mexico in 1914, and finally of the World War, in which those present at the meeting had participated. He referred to the fact that the Memorial Day services are not alone for those who gave their lives in the World war, but those who fell in all wars in which this country has been engaged.

Commander Howard L. Arnold presided, and officers of the post conducted the ritualistic services of the American Legion for Memorial Day. In the morning a committee of members of the legion and auxiliary visited Arlington Cemetery, where flags were placed on the graves of the Alexandria war dead. The graves in the local cemeteries were decorated Thursday.

The cadet corps of the George Mason High School celebrated their recent victory in the military tournament held May 16 with Alexandria and Washington-Lee High Schools with a banquet at the George Mason Hotel Thursday night, at which 50 persons were present, including a number of school officials. Cadet Capt. Stuart Crickenberger, who has been named lieutenant-colonel of the combined cadet corps of the three schools, acted as toastmaster, and talks were given by Supt. R. C. Bowton, C. H. Strader, principal of George Mason High; Col. Clarence J. Deems, U. S. A., professor of military science and tactics at the Alexandria High School; Maj. Chauncey B. McNeill, U. S. A., instructor at Washington-Lee High, and Howard L. Arnold, commander of Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion.

Col. Edgar Warfield, State commander of the Confederate Veterans, will leave tomorrow night for Biloxi, Miss., to attend the anual reunion of Confederate Veterans, the Sons of Veterans and the Southern Memorial Association, June 3 to 6. J. William May and James G. Graham will represent R. E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, at the reunion.

Final exercises of the Episcopal High School of Virginia will be held at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in Liggett Hall of the high school, when a class of sixteen will be graduated and various wards will be made. Many parents and friends of the students will attend the exercises.

Capt. Hubert Moore, commanding the company of Marine Reserves which is being organized in Alexandria, has announced that 30 members have already been enrolled, and that only 10 more are needed to complete the quota. Rifles were received by the company several days ago. The members of the company will be sent to Quantico this summer for a training period of fifteen days.

Weather conditions prevented a large attendance at the scheduled opening of the Alexandria municipal swimming pools yesterday. The pools were formally opened, and a few of the officials in charge took a tentative dip, remaining in the water only a short time before they were forced to capitulate. Late in the afternoon several bathers braved the cold water, but none lasted very long.

There was no session of police court yesterday, as a result of which there will be an unusually large docket today. Approximately 25 persons were held yesterday for today's court, their alleged offenses including charges of violation of the prohibition ordinance, drunkenness, disorderly conduct and other offenses against the peace and dignity of the community.

Funeral services for Mrs. Clara L. Leadbeater, widow of Edward Stabler Leadbeater, who died Wednesday at her home, 213 South Pitt street, were held yesterday from Christ Episcopal Church, with the rector, the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Berryman Green, dean of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia. Interment was in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Pallbearers were John W. Herndon, David N. Rust, William G. Leadbeater, Andrew J. Hall, Clyde C. Lamond, jr., Slater Lamond, Robert M. Reese and Edward C. Leadbeater.

Gates, pastor of the Baptist Church, gave the address. Music was furnished by the Eckhart Band, the Eckhart school children and the Baptist Church Choir.

BUSINESS CLIMBING IN FIFTH BANK AREA

Slow but Definite Progress in Last Month, Says Federal Agent.

JOB CONDITIONS BETTER

Richmond, Va., May 30 (A.P.).—Business in the Fifth Federal Reserve District in April and the first half of May saw slow but definite progress toward recovery from the depression which began last fall, says the monthly review issued here today by William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent.

The review states that employment conditions improved somewhat during the period reported, although probably not so much as was expected with the opening of outside activities. The seasonal expansion of credit was less than usual, reporting member banks actually decreasing agricultural and commercial loans to their customers between April 9 and May 14.

While the volume of both reserve and member bank credit outstanding in the district is much smaller than at the same time last year, the report points out that bank deposits compare favorably with figures for May, 1929, a decline in demand deposits being practically offset by an increase in savings and time deposits.

The commercial failure record of the district was reported as one of the worst for several years, the number of failures being less than reported in April last year, but with liabilities which reached a higher figure than for any month since March, 1924.

Coal production was reported in excess of that of March, but was in smaller tonnage than in April, 1929, West Virginia continuing to lag behind Pennsylvania in output.

"The situation in the textile field showed no improvement last month," the report continues, "and many mills have adopted a policy of curtailment of operating time to prevent accumulation of manufactured goods.

"The retail stores, especially those selling clothing, did a larger volume of business in April than they did in April last year, due to the occurrence of Easter on April 20 this year and March 31 last year. Retail trade in April did not overcome the decline reported in March, however, and for the first four months of this year department store sales ran slightly below the sales in the first four months of 1929."

HOOVER AT GETTYSBURG.

Standing where Lincoln stood at Gettysburg, and speaking on a day when Americans suspend their activities while they give thought to their country and its defenders, President Hoover yesterday dwelt upon the spiritual union that binds the people of the United States, and the wisdom of moderation and tolerance in dealing with present national problems. The day and the theme were well conjoined. A President who takes to heart the example of Lincoln, and who appeals to his countrymen to apply Lincoln's immortal admonition to their current affairs, is sure to evoke a sympathetic response. Both the President and the people profit when they resolve, in all their strivings, to cultivate a spirit of charity and moderation, and to bear in mind that they are united in common ideals, however variously they may differ in their ideas as to the best methods of solving today's problems.

A noble sentiment, well worthy of the solemn occasion, was that expressed by President Hoover when he said:

> To cherish religious faith and the tolerance of all faiths; to reflect into every aspect of public life the spirit of charity, the practice of forbearance, and the restraint of passion while reason seeks the way; to lay aside blind prejudice and follow knowledge together; to pursue diligently the common welfare and find within its boundaries our private benefit; to enlarge the borders of opportunity for all and find our own within them; to enhance the greatness of the Nation and thereby find for ourselves an individual distinction; to face with courage and confident expectation the task set before us, these are the paths of true glory for the Nation.

The skeptic will say that these are counsels of perfection, which fallible mortals can not hope to observe. But no skeptic can say that they are wrong counsels, or that men should not strive to observe them. The Nation's ideals themselves are counsels of perfection, and may never be achieved, but no patriotic American could wish to abate them. Every influence and impulse that carries men toward their ideals is wholesome and valuable; and when a President at Gettysburg emphasizes the counsels of Lincoln his words sink deeply into the people's minds. He and they are refreshed and reinvigorated by imbibing the Americanism of Abraham Lincoln.

GET YOUR MAJORITY, THAT'S ALL.

The result of the Literary Digest straw vote is bitterly disputed, wets claiming that by any interpretation it shows widespread dissatisfaction with the existing order and drys asserting that it fails to reflect public sentiment. The effect of the poll is evidenced only in a wider discussion of the liquor issue, and this wide discussion, in turn, is reflected in the statements issued by Senators Jones, Walsh, of Montana, and Oddie to the effect that if and when the citizens of their States so request they stand ready to submit or support an amendment to the Constitution repealing or modifying the eighteenth amendment.

Whether these statements may be construed as "wet victories," as the antiprohibition elements contend, is a moot point. There is nothing unusual in a statement promising to give effect to the opinions of the voters, when and if they are clearly expressed. It is quite true, of course, that a year ago the average senator would not have had the courage to so much as admit that the eighteenth amendment should be changed. To that extent the three statements may be considered out of the ordinary. But the question arises: By what process are constituencies to put in motion the machinery for conducting a referendum? Senators Jones, Walsh and Oddie will vote dry until they have been instructed to vote otherwise; they will campaign as drys and their victories, if they are victorious, will be looked upon as vindication for the dry cause.

The three statements outline the proper course to adopt in an attempt to amend or alter the prohibition law. If the people desire a change they have it in their power to direct the actions of their legislators or to replace them with other legislators who are sympathetic to modification or repeal. The alteration of the eighteenth amendment depends merely upon the wish of the majority. Either modification or repeal can be accomplished if enough of the people want the change.

RANK OF AMERICAN CITIES.

Rivalry among American cities has been accentuated with the taking of the census, and the public is manifesting a keen interest in their growth. Returns have not yet been tabulated, but sufficient figures are available to make it apparent that the census will not give an accurate conception of the growth of each municipal area. The enumeration may be correct in every case, yet the varying policies of cities with respect to their suburbs make comparison on the basis of census figures very difficult.

Los Angeles is expected to romp into fifth place among the Nation's largest cities. Tabulations for the Los Angeles area show a remarkable growth, and the total population may be more than 1,300,000. This does not mean that Los Angeles has become a center of skyscrapers, a city of cliff-dwellers, but that in its ambition for bigness it has taken into its city limits all the other communities for many miles around. Los Angeles is now the largest city in the world—in area. It has grown by the addition method. Los Angeles' area is more than twice that of Chicago, and nearly four times that of Philadelphia, though its population is far less.

On the other hand, Boston will rank much farther down the list of large cities. Boston will continue to claim only a modest 800,000. Many of its inner wards will show a decrease in population, while its suburbs, not included in the city limits, will show remarkable growth. According to the Los Angeles method of calculation Boston is a city of some 2,000,000 inhabitants and ranks close to Philadelphia, the country's third city.

Pittsburgh made a desperate effort to spread out its protecting wings over all its suburbs before the census was taken, but it failed to secure the necessary legal sanction. As a result, about one-half of the 1,340,000 people in the metropolitan district of which Pittsburgh is the center will be officially accredited to that city. Instances of this kind are innumerable. Cincinnati can never claim that part of the city that lies on the other side of the Ohio, in Kentucky. Rivers divide the population of many cities between two States. Many other cities that might legally include all their suburbs within their political boundaries are not influenced by the popular scramble for bigness.

Census figures reveal that Manhattan is losing population to the outlying districts. Washington is growing more rapidly in its suburban areas. The modern tendency of city growth everywhere is toward the suburbs. Transportation facilities make it possible for cities to expand rather than to cramp their new population in closer quarters. This is the saving feature of the great migration cityward. Whether or not suburbs are included within political metropolitan areas, they have come to play a most important part in American city life.

WHAT DOES THE PUBLIC GET?

The new and superior gasoline blend, presented to the refining industry by the department of engineering research of the University of Michigan, may not result in any public benefit. By restoring to gasoline two ingredients that are largely removed by modern methods of producing and refining, namely, natural gasoline and naphtha, the resultant product has what is described as the "old-fashioned goodness." It affords increased power from the motor and makes for quicker starting. The blended gasoline is especially adapted to the modern motor and particularly fitted for all ranges of temperature to be found in the United States.

If the new process should result in lowered gasoline prices it would be of great economic benefit. But will it? The cracking process, by which a far greater percentage of usable gasoline is extracted from a given quantity of crude than was possible with the older distillation process, had the effect of increasing the reserve of crude and should have resulted in lowered prices. But the cracking process, to as great a degree as any other factor, explains the plight that the oil industry is in at the present time. Like the farmer, the oil man is producing out of all proportion to the demand. He is "cracking" as much crude as he was formerly distilling, and charging just as much. The public does not receive the benefit of cheaper fuel when new processes are developed.

The new blending process should have the effect of increasing the reserve of crude. Properly handled it would be of great economic benefit, especially in connection with conservation of natural resources. But if the industry adopts the new blend in the same way in which it adopted the cracking process, the discovery will have only evil effect. It remains to be seen whether the oil industry is sensible enough to use the blend in the interest of conservation.

ON VACATION.

One factor in the economic recovery of the country that has been given too little attention is the enormous tourist business which, with Memorial Day over and June upon us, will begin to thrive. Apparently the depression period is having little effect upon American travel, except to stimulate it. More passports are being issued by the State Department than ever before, and it is expected that the total for the year will run well over 200,000. Indications of travel within the country are not so definite, but this seems to suggest a year of unprecedented vacationing.

It is the travel within this country in which the business man is most interested. "Is it not well," asked Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, in a recent address, "to apply such steadying stimuli within our own country, especially at a time like the present, when the money thus expended can do much to aid the business revival that is unquestionably under way?" It is estimated that vacationists in the United States spend more than $5,000,000,000 per year, which puts the tourist business in the rank of the iron and steel industry and ahead of meat-packing, lumbering and oil industries. This money is widely distributed throughout the country. Westerners crossing the great prairies to see the metropolitan East and the beautiful National Capital will spend millions. Easterners seeking the wild spots and the national parks of the West will create a thriving business.

Statisticians have figured out that about 10 per cent of this vast fund is spent for transportation, nearly 17 per cent for lodgings, 25 per cent for food, 6 per cent for confections, 8 per cent for amusements and 11 per cent for garages and the supplies they offer. When these purchases are translated into raw products virtually every business and industry is stimulated by the vacation habit. The American anxious for restored prosperity will spend his vacation within his own country this year.

The practice of granting industrial workers vacations with pay is steadily gaining popularity. The Government has set an excellent example in allowing its employes liberal vacations, and industry is rapidly falling in line. It is now considered good business to send an employe away for a week or two weeks for recuperation and rest. He returns to his work in improved physical and mental condition. The deadening monotony of year-round work is broken and morale is improved. The actual value of a vacation can not, of course, be computed, but many employers report increased efficiency and larger profits under a vacation schedule.

During a vacation the workman becomes a consumer with an unusual capacity. Vacations in one industry contribute to the prosperity of another, and in the end the whole field of business is stimulated. Much of the unemployment left over from the slack business season could be absorbed by granting vacations to all industrial workers and employing additional men for the vacation season. Business and industrial leaders of America have not yet explored the full possibilities of the annual vacation.

Washington stands seventeenth among the principal cities in the suicide column in spite of being the seat of the National Legislature.

GERMANY FORGES AHEAD

From the Naval and Military Record.

French officers de vaisseau who, on different occasions and in various circumstances, had opportunities of closely examining the new German navy, do not conceal their admiration for material, personnel, spirit, and training methods. Outwardly, it is a force of secondary importance for those who view fleets from their paper value, whereas in reality it is, man for man and ship for ship, the most up-to-date striking force in existence, and the one also most deeply animated with an indomitable will of offensive a outrance to extend over the whole globe and to utilize every available means of warfare.

A bright and genial officer of the imperial republican fleet declared:

"In the last, or, rather, latest tussle, our great mistake was to underestimate the capabilities of sea power and to imagine that the issue depended solely upon the army. Had we known what we know today, luck would have stayed with us all through. The crime was to keep the ships in harbor, waiting for some miracle to be accomplished elsewhere, when the miracle and the key of victory were within our reach at sea. There is not a German boy who does not realize so much today. We were under the delusion that the British were better than ourselves, and a feeling like that nips initiative in the very bud, of course.

"True, English fleet seamen are fine chaps—proud beggars, too; but today our professional matrosen have nothing to envy any seamen in the world; they are the pick of the manhood of their great country. We can select them; we have the choice, and plentiful. France in no way can compete; Great Britain not quite. We make them like the sea and like their job, and like what eventually it might mean to them. As for spirit and national pride, well, they have only, to feel their chests bucking up, to look at the names of our new ships. They tell of the greatest, longest stand-up fight made against overwhelming odds under modern conditions. In truth, the British and the German are the only fleets that have fully 'faced the music' with the new weapons, the weapons of yesterday, I mean!

"As to ocean bases, points d'appui, and the like, their absolute necessity is not so evident as formerly; warships are not, as formerly, tied to coaling stations, especially when backed by friendly sea tramps and air tramps, too, and other merchant craft—so far as the term merchant may outlive the next declaration of war."

Not without misgivings, French observers in Germany note the powerful and unanimous national impulse that is backing the new maritime rise of the fatherland. The nominal introduction of democratic institutions in the working of the state has left unimpaired the efficiency of the navy and army departments and staffs created under the kaisers and unimpaired also the scientific research organization that was the pride of Germany before the war and is yet an asset of superiority over all comers.

Technically, Germans lead in practically every branch that makes for fighting excellence. The bold designs of the Bremen and Europa liners and of the new battleships and cruisers, the astounding transformation of the Columbus and Ballin class liners, the success in all countries of German motors and propelling devices, especially the M. A. N. and Bauer-Wach (exhaust turbines). The giant Dorniers and Junkers seaplanes and the world-famed Graf Zeppelins tell their own tale, without mentioning the ominous lead Germany is asserting and strengthening in the output of chemical and other "agricultural" products. Intense naval and colonial propaganda is turning the minds of young and pushful Germany toward the sea and distant ventures. Those "writings on the wall" are thought by some to be deserving of some notice at the moment when, in London, praiseworthy attempts are being made at settling the fate of this globe by means of eloquence and "scraps of paper." In the making of the future "defeated," but superiorly organized Germany, is strenuously preparing to have a say, and at her own time, acting while others do the talking.

Lewis County Herald: This is the time of year that a great many men go fishing, described by one writer as an art "with a worm at one end of the line and a fool at the other."

Mr. Average Man.

Atchison Globe: The average man is neither ignorant nor a highbrow. He isn't perfect morally, yet he isn't wicked. He isn't rich, but he manages to get enough money together to educate his children. He isn't profound in his opinions, but has considerable common sense. The average man is a pretty good sort.

MAKING HIS LAST STAND.

The ivory-billed woodpecker, king of its tribe, inhabiting the great cypress swamps, probably is making its last stand in Florida, says Nature Magazine. The last breeding record of this giant woodpecker was made by Dr. A. A. Allen, who found a pair nesting in central Florida in 1924. It is now against the law to kill this fine bird. The last stand of the Carolina paroquet was made in Florida. This beautiful little parrot was once abundant but was shot and trapped in such quantities and so persistently that not one has been seen for many years. The bird is now undoubtedly extinct.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

WORRIED.

It is silly to worry and fret,
Anxiety helps not at all,
I ought to be patient, and yet
I am nervously pacing the hall.
For mother and Janet are out
And nobody knows where they are,
But the thing that I worry about
Is, mother is driving the car!

I know that I ought to be calm,
I know that I ought to sit still,
But I fancy they've come to some harm;
I am certain they've suffered a spill.
I jump when the telephone rings,
I think it's a hospital call,
I shrink with the news that it brings
And I can't read the paper at all.

My nerves are tuned up to a pitch
That will stay till their faces I see,
I think they've gone in a ditch
And broken and bleeding may be,
At home they are long overdue,
I stand at the window and wait,
And wish to the good Lord I knew
What ever is keeping them late.

The maid's calmly dusting the chairs,
I hear the cook humming a song,
Each bent on her little affairs
Seems certain that nothing is wrong.
But I aimlessly wander about
Thinking surely in trouble they are,
When mother and Janet are out
And mother is driving the car!

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: For a week your world has been black and you have felt like a neglected stepchild suffering the wrath of heaven.

This morning you were up with the birds and as joyous as any of them. The little boil on your cheek had finished its career during the night and you were free of pain.

Do you know why?

I once saw a doctor lance a boil on the cheek of a 2-year-old child. The little fellow howled manfully as the doctor approached and then broke off in the midst of his loudest protest. He quit because the pain quit. The lancet had relieved the pressure.

That's the thing I want you to remember. In all this wide world of misery there are only two things that cause pain and sickness. They are pressure and poison.

When a tooth goes bolshevik there is local pain because the accumulated pus causes pressure on the nerve. And since there is no outlet for the poison, it is carried over the system to start little revolutions here and there and make you hate the world.

Pressure and poison. Nothing else.

The point is that these two lone causes of trouble are abnormal, and any person endowed with a sound body, as you are, need have very little acquaintance with them if he will live sensibly.

In a little while you will go away to school, and then you will learn how foolishly homo Americanus depends on cures.

He makes whoopee until late at night and fills up on aspirin next morning.

He eats indigestible things at midnight and takes a shot of salts in the cold gray dawn of the new day.

He takes on too much fuel and exercises too little and then takes something to annoy his liver or buys a machine to knead his midriff.

Always the same routine—folly followed by a pill to avert the natural consequences.

That's one reason why people die too soon—the corner drug store is too convenient.

A fresh oiling and a fresh coat of paint won't make any machine as good as new after it has been abused.

Sanitariums merely cheat the undertaker for a while; they don't undo the damage.

The worst part of it is that every mortal who gets the habit of "taking something for it" soon becomes a slave to medicines and forever thereafter keeps 40 bottles on the bathroom shelves.

Keep out of that broken-down crowd, my dear.

Avoid medicines as you would a pestilence.

Live sanely and moderately and you'll die of old age instead of drugstoreitis. Take nary a drop of medicine until some good doctor says you must—and if he's a good doctor he won't often say it. Love,

DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE SHIPWRECK-AMOS 'N' ANDY OUTRAGE.

Drastic action against the skippers of both ships is being demanded by the Great Unseen Audience following the S O S call which cut off Amos 'n' Andy the other night when the oil tanker W. W. Bruce was rammed by the British freighter Scottish Maiden. Amos 'n' Andy were cut off at a crucial moment in their radio skit when the tanker appeared to be sinking by the bow, and radio fans are demanding that an example be made of somebody.

* * * *

"We want a complete investigation of this outrage," thundered P. Felix Withers, spokesman for an indigation committee of Amos 'n' Andy fans. "For the skipper of either ship to say he did not know they were having their collision during the Amos 'n' Andy program is ridiculous. As a matter of fact, I believe the crash was caused by the fact that both skippers were off the bridge listening to it."

* * * *

Congress, in response to radio appeals, began an immediate examination of Capt. John Barrow, of the W. W. Bruce, the skipper of the Scottish Maiden still being at sea. The examination follows:

Q. What time did the collision occur?

A. About 7:05 p. m.

Q. Did you send out the S O S at once?

A. I did.

Q. Didn't you know Amos 'n' Andy were on the air at the time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yet you deliberately sent out the S O S call, which you knew would interrupt the program?

A. I'm afraid I did, sir.

Q. Can you in any way justify such conduct.

A. Well, the Scottish Maiden had put a big hole in us and we were sinking.

Q. You weren't sinking very fast, were you?

A. I thought so. Our decks were awash in no time and I had to think of the lives of the crew.

Q. You don't mean to sit there and tell this committee you thought of the crew ahead of Amos 'n' Andy?

A. Well, you see it was very rough and——

O. Answer the question. Did you or did you not give your first thoughts to your crew, regardless of Amos 'n' Andy?

A. I guess I did.

Q. How about the Kingfish and Ruby Taylor? Didn't you consider them in this matter?

A. I thought of them, of course; but the water was coming in very fast and my sailors were up to their waists.

Q. Did the sailors know the S O S signal was going out despite the Amos 'n' Andy program?

A. They did.

Q. So they put their own lives above the pleasure of the Great Unseen Audience, eh?

A. (Very guiltily). Now that they appreciate their mistake they are very sorry, sir.

Q. That's all very well, but what we want is a guarantee this sort of thing can never happen again. What would you suggest?

A. Well, I'd suggest that all navigation be suspended during the Amos 'n' Andy program.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Curbstone Salutes to Flag by Doffing the Hat Repeatedly Becomes Rather Absurd, Says Correspondent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope what I have to say here will not be misunderstood by any 100 per cent American. Watching the veterans on the march down Thirteenth street Memorial Day morning it occurred to me that there should be some simple, sensible rule for doing honor to the flag carried in street parades. Taking off the hat every time the flag passes, at short intervals, as was the case on this occasion, really seems to cheapen the ceremony.

Of course, the sidewalk public is anxious to do the proper thing, but I do not think a finicky saluting of the flag should be required of us. It does not seem exactly American. The American eagle is not a finicky bird. Uncle Sam is not finicky. The music of the drums and bugles and brass bands is not finicky. Constant doffing of the hat as a parade passes does become finicky.

I think it would be much more dignified and impressive to remove the hat at the passing of the first flag, standing uncovered for a minute, more or less, and let that serve for the entire parade. If that does not seem sufficient, the ceremony might be repeated as the head of each division passed in the case of a very long procession, like that on inauguration day.

I notice there are a few who seem to realize the bad form of the present custom.

Let us hope that in the course of time it will be judiciously modified, so that, on the curbstone salute to the flag, there will no longer be the perfunctory lifting of hats which I have called finicky.

CURBSTONE CITIZEN.

Dial Phones Cause Complications—Telephone Company Not as Accommodating as of Yore.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We do not dislike the dial because we are lazy, but time is a great factor in all business lives, and in the case of your humble servant, when one wears glasses and has to fish for them with one's arms full of bundles and no place to lay them down, it is more than human nature to put up with the dial.

The telephone company has been year by year putting more on the public and getting from under themselves. At one time one could ask the time of day, and get a polite response. That was cut out during the war; then the services of the information bureau was abolished to a great extent, and now they are giving us no service at all.

As to your assertion that the women are too lazy to sew and bake, we are all compelled to help bring home the bacon and that takes all of our time. I know, for I am one of that class. ANERUL.

Pennsylvania Workman Shows Why Flexible Provision Is Necessary—European Mass Production a Danger.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Tariff rates should be made flexible, based upon wages and selling price. When any gouging is attempted, an immediate correction should be made. We can never make a tariff to please Europe and those "patriotic" Americans who built factories in Europe, expecting to send cheap labor stuff into this country.

This country can establish a flexible tariff so as to make immediate remedies at any time necessary. We have the best consuming market in the world when everything goes well, but we can not operate at full blast when Europe sends in too much stuff. Europe can mass produce as well as we, and on cheap labor. That is the danger. WORKMAN.

Homestead, Pa., May 28.

A Few Questions Raised by the Dial Phone Controversy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It might be well for the defenders of the dial telephones to get together in their positions.

In one column we read that these nuisances are the last word in progress and their critics are invited to return to stage coach days, and in the parallel column we are assured that they have been in successful operation in rural Midwestern communities "for 25 or 30" years.

Also it would be interesting to learn just why they were installed. We read of "greater economy of operation and increased efficiency," which usually means, in polite language, putting more workers out of jobs. We also read some vague hopes that this increased economy may result in reduced rates.

Will any one please mention a few instances in which a privately owned public utility corporation has ever voluntarily reduced its rates, or in which any one except its stockholders have gotten any financial benefit from "economy of operation?" WILLIS J. RUTLEDGE.

One Man in a Million Had Sense Enough to Save Bird Life.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When a robin's nest was found in a railroad car at a Chicago railroad dock, the following order was issued by Charles E. Devlin, superintendent: "Under no circumstances is that car to be moved. Air dump No. X905055 must stay. If possible, don't even move the other cars on the same track, but first and last, keep that car stationary until the eggs are not only hatched, but until the robins can fly."

Mr. Devlin did what probably one man in a million would have done, and he deserves a great deal of credit. Too many birds meet death through the laws of nature each year. Cats, snakes, owls, hawks, rats and mice kill them. Young boys kill birds with air rifles and sling shots, and many nests containing eggs are destroyed by youngsters. If there were only more "Mr. Devlins" the birds would multiply more rapidly and thus bring pleasure to thousands of persons by their songs and aiding mankind in his fight against insects. A. W. K.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Girl To Make Bow Before Court

Miss Washington Will Be Presented Early in July.

By JEAN ELIOT.

AT the last court at Buckingham Palace, which is to be held early in July, one of the most charming of Washington's group of next season's debutantes will be presented. She is Miss Helen Lee Washington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lee Washington. As Miss Washington has been at school in Aiken, S. C., the later date was chosen in lieu of one of the four courts held in May.

Mr. and Mrs. Washington, with their pretty daughter, will sail for England on June 7 and will be joined there by their son, Mr. Sydney L. H. Washington, who went abroad a few weeks ago and has been traveling in Germany with a group of friends.

A charming sentiment attaches to Miss Washington's debut at the Court of St. James, where her mother was presented many years ago. For her father was for several years United States consul general in London and Miss Washington was born in England. When they go abroad Mrs. Washington will take with her the gown in which she was presented in the hope that it may be modernized for her daughter to wear when she makes her curtsy to royalty. Mrs. Washington was also presented at the Italian court in her girlhood.

Retired from the Foreign Service after a most distinguished career, Mr. Washington returned to the Capital, where he was born, to make his home, and he and Mrs. Washington are established at 1830 Phelps place.

They are making plans to introduce their daughter here next winter. Miss Washington is known as Lee, to distinguish her from her mother, another Helen.

The Washingtons are globe trotters, Mr. Washington's service with the State Department having taken him pretty much all over the world. He has had duty at Cairo, Alexandretta, at Valencia and at Geneva, where he had previously read law at the University of Geneva. Later he was consul general at Cape Town, at Marseilles, and for a good many years he was consul general at large for the European district. Before going to London he served for a while as consul general at Liverpool. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, and belongs to such clubs as the Metropolitan, the Montgomery Country Club and the New York Yacht Club.

The trip they are planning this summer will mark Mr. and Mrs. Washington's first visit to London, where they have a host of friends, since they left England some two years ago.

Pence, who have been detailed to his suite as military and naval aids. He will be welcomed at Union Station by an official group.

In the afternoon he will be received by President Hoover, who will return the visit immediately afterward, calling upon the President-elect of Colombia at the Colombian Legation.

The Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro will entertain at dinner on Tuesday evening in honor of Dr. Olaya, and on Wednesday he will be entertained at dinner by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson. Dr. Olaya has accepted the invitation of the Women's National Press Club to be its guest at luncheon on Tuesday, and on Thursday he will be entertained at luncheon by the governing board of the Pan-American Union. He will leave that evening for a short stay in Chicago, accompanied by his daughters, Senorita Maria Olaya and Senorita Lucia Olaya. Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

By banning that weird hodge-podge of actual and fictitious life in the jungle, known as "Ingagi," from theaters controlled by members of his organization, Will H. Hays seems to have rendered the picture's sponsors a genuine service.

Having already mopped up a fortune in the R-K-O and a few other circuit houses, "Ingagi" now finds itself, under the Hays ban, sought by practically every independent exhibitor in the land—and there are plenty of them, believe it or not—at rentals that average higher than those obtainable from the M. P. P. D. A. theaters.

Despite a bizarre climacteric sequence that is so daring as to cause at least a raising of the eyebrows—and I didn't say highbrows—"Ingagi," strangely enough, has escaped censorial emasculation in virtually every State in the Union, including those in which the movie laws are most stringent. This, no doubt, is due to the fact that for the greater part of its length the film is absolutely authentic in its presentation of goings-on in the heart of the darkest continent.

It ought to be, since it combines snatches from a majority of all the jungle pictures ever made, embodying, as the saying goes, the best features of each!

Wilfred Lucas, one of the earliest heroes of the silver sheet, who deserted the stage for the screen and later returned to the footlights, is back with the cinema again. His latest role is that of a prize fight promoter in "The Arizona Kid," starring Warner Baxter at the Fox.

Some light may be shed on the importance attached to the piece by the fact that the original manuscript of "Journey's End," the war play by R. C. Sheriff, that is thrilling audiences at the RKO-Keith Theater, where it enters its second week today, was auctioned at the peace commemoration dinner given recently in Guild Hall, London, for $7,275. It was at this figure that the MS was knocked down to Sir Walter Lawrence, who immediately announced that he would present it to the Nation. Sir Herbert Morgan was the auctioneer, and Sir James Matthew Barrie, something of an author on his own account, the one who began the bidding at $2,500.

And this fellow Sheriff is a chap of only 32!

In case you think this is a new team of feminine funmakers convulsing audiences at the Columbia in "Caught Short," you should remember that Marie Dressler and Polly Moran have been previously seen together in "Bringing Up Father," "The Callahans and the Murphys," "The Hollywood Revue" and "Chasing Rainbows."

And Marie receives about five times Polly's salary. Figure it out for yourself, it's not a hard one.

From all appearances you might as well make up your mind that you can not escape the Sidneys in one form or another.

Go to a movie and the genially Hebraic countenance of George Sidney is as apt as not to smile down at you. Notice the stage presentation credits and you will see the name of Louis K. Sidney as the guy responsible. Turn on the radio and sooner or later you will hear Mabel Sidney greeting you with a song.

If you are still not satisfied after all that, drop in at Loew's Palace this week and you will be regaled by Jack Sidney and his "Frolickers of 1930."

But who wants to escape the Sidneys? It is San Rubin asking the question, not I—or should it be me?

My ear-to-the-ground department reports, by the grape vine route, that there is a new master of ceremonies, of the permanent variety—meaning two consecutive weeks or longer—coming into the Fox Theater to assume the role last played by Alexander Callam. S. J. are the initials, unless they are having a lot of fun by reversing Jack Stebbins' on me.

And Bob Long has just called up to say that he is week-ending in the old home town. Robert, who was for many years assistant manager of the B. F. Keith Theater here, and I had some remote connection with the opening of the Rialto way back in 1918, and have never gotten over it. For many years he has called Philadelphia home—which is punishment enough.

Would you call Ford to support the abolition of cheap motor cars, Heinz the prohibition of packing pickles, Rockefeller the discontinuance of moderate gas prices? Then why call admirals in the case of the naval limitations treaty?

Well, it might be in the newsreel sometime.

At the Age Women Dread

"Three years ago I was in bed three months with a nervous breakdown. After that I had to lie down often. I have four children, the youngest 21, and I board two little schoolgirls. I try to keep my home as a mother should but I am at the age so many women dread. Since taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel 100% stronger. I am not so nervous and my appetite is better."—Mrs. Della Hutsell, 623 East 1st Street, Casper, Wyoming.

New Cleric Takes Pulpit in Capital

Rev. John Temple to Make Initial Appearance Tomorrow.

A new minister makes his bow to Washington tomorrow in one of the oldest churches here, Christ Episcopal Church, Georgetown. He is the Rev. John Temple, of Winona, Minn., in which city he was ordained to the ministry.

Dr. Temple is said to be a young man of decided gifts, a recognized scholar and a preacher of ability and eloquence. He was chosen by Christ Church from among a large number whose names were presented to the vestry, which spent six months conducting an extensive investigation throughout the country to get a minister of the best possible qualifications.

Christ Church is one of the oldest religious societies in Washington, having been organized in 1817. Thirteen years ago it celebrated its centennial.

ST. LOUIS BANK LOOT IS PUT AT $1,000,000

President Says Institution Is Solvent, in Refusing Offer to Sell.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD

St. Louis, Mo., May 30 (A.P.).—Looting of the safe deposit vault of the Grand National Bank last Sunday was revealed today as a $1,000,000 burglary, virtually equivalent to the $1,050,000 combined capital and surplus of the institution.

President Ed Mays announced the bank's loss as $43,000 in cash and about $350,000 in securities deposited by customers as collateral for loans, instead of $20,000 cash only, as previously announced. Customers' losses have been tabulated as approximately $640,000.

Insisting the bank is solvent and able to handle its own affairs, the board of directors today rejected an offer by the Vandeventer National Bank to purchase its business and take over its new quarters. The building was erected by the insurance company of which Mays also is president and which reported losses of $232,000 in negotiable bonds in the burglary.

An investigation of affairs of the insurance company was begun today.

President Mays late today announced the resignation of Gifford J. Herbert, cashier of the bank, and the dismissal of William A. Brittin, custodian of the safe deposit vaults. Both men are under $50,000 bond and are booked at police headquarters as "suspected of embezzlement." Herbert ordered a police guard removed from the bank a few days before the looting and has admitted, police said, that he was in the bank last Sunday morning, but said he went there to use the wash room and had observed nothing wrong.

Brittin's story is that he and the bank porter were bound and gagged by the burglars, who then leisurely broke open the deposit boxes.

Mays said Herbert resigned voluntarily because of his arrest. Herbert has refused to explain why he ordered the police guard removed.

Masonic Temple Dedication Held

$553,000 Structure Will Serve as Headquarters for 5,000 Members.

Ceremonies incident to the dedication of the new Masonic Temple at Tenht and U streets northwest were attended yesterday by delegations from seven states and from Ontario, Canada. The building is the home of the Acacia Grand Lodge of colored Masons, its subordinate lodges and branches in this jurisdiction, with a membership of 2,000 Master Masons and 3,000 ladies of the Eastern Star.

The temple, erected at a cost of $553,000, is a stone structure six stories high with basement, arcade, mezzanine, two auditoriums, chambers for the Royal Arch, Commandery, Shrine and Eastern Star rooms for men, offices for the grand lodge and trustees, a library and storage rooms.

Past Grand Master John Edgar Smith served as master of ceremonies at the dedication. The address of welcome was made by Nelson E. Weatherless, past grand master, and responded to by Cornwiel Banton, grand master of Delawore, and Grace J. Hughes, grand royal matron.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

CONSIDERING that the Radio Commission has no power of censorship over radio programs, it deserves commendation for the promptness with which it decided to refuse to renew the license of KVEP, Portland, Oreg.

Under the cloak of fighting chain stores, Robert Gordon Duncan, self-styled "Oregon Wildcat," had been using the station as a medium to vilify Portland citizens with profanity and obscenity. Among his mildest epithets were "skunk," "yellow cur," "reprobate" and "vulture."

Of course, the commission found William D. Shaeffer, owner of KVEP, guilty of enough other charges to deny him a renewal, but his real offense was one of permitting an offensive program to be broadcast.

Judge Ira E. Robinson, former chairman, very aptly commented: "License to insult one's enemies as well as the decency of American society has no protection under the radio law. The commission knows its duty in instances like this, and it may be relied upon to fulfill it in the public interest."

ADVANCE information with regard to what innovations will be revealed at the radio show at Atlantic City next week is very scarce.

One report is that it may be a radio show without many new sets because manufacturers are afraid to show what they have until they see what the other fellows have up their sleeves. At any rate, up to now there has been much secrecy about the exhibition.

There is one thing certain, however, and that is that Charles McK. Saltzman, chairman of the Radio Commission, who is to be the main speaker of the convention Wednesday, is sure to have a large audience to listen to his speech notwithstanding the fact that he will not permit it to be broadcast.

The reason for this is that all delegates and alternates must attend under penalty of a $50 fine. Delegates, when they go to Atlantic City, are not so keen to sit around and listen to speeches, and the Radio Manufacturers Association has hit upon this idea to insure full attendance at their meetings.

WHAT looks as if it might be the opening gun of former Senator Jim Reed's presidential campaign is the fiery Missourian's reinjecting himself into Missouri politics with an address, "The Crime of Prohibition, the March of Monopoly and the Centralization of Government," on Saturday evening, June 7 (WMAL, 8 p. m.).

Walter Damrosch will conclude his symphony concert series for the season tonight (WRC, 8 p. m.) with a program of Wagnerian compositions as follows:

Introduction to Act III of "Die Meistersinger;" Sounds of the Forest, from "Siegfried;" Siegfried's Funeral Music, from "Twilight of the Gods;" Good Friday Spell, from "Parsifal," and Bacchanale, from "Tannhauser."

PAUL ROBESON, American Negro actor now playing in London, will be the first of his race to be heard in a transatlantic broadcast.

The topic he has selected to discuss is "How It Feels for an American Negro to Play Othello to an English Audience," (WMAL, 12:30 p. m., Sunday, June 8).

Mabel Wayne, lately signed for broadcasting, is the composer of "In a Little Spanish Town" and "Ramona." The former brought her $50,000, though it took her only 20 minutes to write it.

During the broadcasting of a memorial service yesterday a member of the congregation sang with such vigor as to almost divide attention with the choir. Fortunately the possessor of the loud (but not good) voice was not seated near the microphone.

The present series of talks by Ambassadors and Ministers is definitely scheduled until February, 1931.

INSTEAD of personal appearances, a well-known concern will produce 52 canned radio programs for release July 1. Each recording will run 30 minutes and be broadcast simultaneously over smaller stations throughout the country.

Some of Paris' latest handmade tricks. (Dah-ray designs)

Paris, May 30.

SOMETIMES it's a lot of fun to be Dah-ray, and live in Paris and notice how this or that smart little gadget or fancy suddenly springs to life over night, enthusiastically accepted by all and sundry—so enthusiastically in fact that you yourself feel as though you just can't live without it. Casting all highfalutin' ideas of individuality to the winds, out you dash to the nearest gadget department and get yourself one, a gadget—not the department.

Well, one of the latest gadget successes is collars and cuffs for your sweaters and sports dresses.

They are made just like the samplers mother used to make except that the design is different. The little squares of tailor's canvas lend themselves ideally to the particular kind of stitch that separates these collars and cuffs, and the embroidery is done in colored wools or raffia.

One sees them on sweaters, on tweed sports dresses and suits, on shantung sports dresses. And just for fun, the collar and cuffs are very often matched by either a hat of the beret variety, or a tiny bonnet shaped one, which looks for all the world like a baby's bonnet or like those worn by our Puritan ancestors.

Or again a collar and cuff may be matched by either a bag or a belt. All the articles are unlined and unhemmed, the edge simply bound with the thread.

• • • •

We knew you couldn't possibly live without some of these "sampler" collar and cuff sets, so the very first thing we up and did was to find out how to go about making them! Then we designed some special sets for you, one with a matching beret which is simply adorable, another with a darling bonnet—and then, just to be really helpful, one of those new and interesting wool lace sweaters that are bloused and have huge sleeves, and tuck in under your skirt. I don't see how you can possibly not rush to the writing desk and address one envelope to Dare, Washington Post, and another one to yourself to put in it, so that you can get the illustrated leaflet of directions telling you how to make all these cute gadgets.

Little Tot's Corner.

Petite Adorable is growing up now, and soon she is going to be quite a little Mad-am-mwah-zelle.

At the moment she is all studious and busy, trying to pass exams—and all her adopted Mammas and Aunties are turning their thoughts to vacation togs for her.

Cotton and silk tussor, or shantung as we call it here, are the favored materials for children's summer wear. And plain pastel shades are smarter than prints.

In coats, light weight woolens and reps are the best. In hats, light weight straws, rather wide brims, and lots of cunning little wash hats in linen, shantung or pique.

Some leaflets left telling you how to make the comfy bathtowel robes which you step into after the bath in place of a bath towel.

• • • •

Then, there's the weekly Dare fashion letter which you should look for regularly in the Sunday Washington Post.

Au revoir!

It's always seemed a job to me
To try to catch a Goofus Flea.
I tried by holding one to scorn
Thinking when he felt forlorn,
And when I saw his spirits sag,
I'd simply put him in a bag.
But he just stood and grinned at me
And it was very plain to see
He wouldn't let his spirits slip—
In fact he kept a stiffer lip!

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

Last Saturday we stressed the importance of leading toward tenaces rather than from them, and an example was given of the benefit of leading toward Ace-Queen-Jack combinations. It frequently is necessary to lead twice toward such holdings to make the three tricks, as the chances are that the adverse King is doubly guarded.

But it is not toward Ace-Queen-Jack alone that it is important to lead from the opposite hand. When one of the Declarer's hands holds an Ace-King-Jack and the other does not contain the Queen of the suit a finess should be tried unless the total in the two hands is nine or more. Even with less than nine, do not finesse on the first round of the suit with the above combination, if it can be arranged conveniently to win one trick in it before trying the finesse. The reason for this is that one adversary may hold the lone Queen, and winning one trick insures that the singleton Queen will not take a trick.

Other combinations of cards that should be led toward rather than from are: Ace-Jack-Ten, Ace-Jack-Nine, King-Queen-x, King-Jack-x, King-x, Queen-Jack-x, and Queen-Ten-x.

The following hand will illustrate the advantage of leading toward Queen-Ten, rather than from that suit. It will be noted that if South, playing a No Trump and winning the first Club trick, should lead a Diamond, he would make one less Diamond trick than if he put North in the lead with a Spade to lead a Diamond; and after West won the Diamond and led a second club, North was put in a second time to lead a second Diamond. With North leading Diamonds twice (South finessing the first lead), Declarer would win three diamonds; if South led a Diamond, he would capture only two tricks in that suit.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF May 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 p. m. to 7:30 a. m., and from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date are not very favorable, and things are apt to get on your "nerve." Do today's duty, and fight today's temptations, and all will be well! There is sunshine around the corner.

The child born on this May 31 will have a pleasant temperament, and will seldom be worried or out of temper. It will have one of the strongest virtues, courage—physical, moral and mental. It will have a number of small talents.

You do not possess an even temperament, and although you at times laughingly ride the crest of the waves, there are other times when you are sunk in the depths of self-pity and the "blues." It is easy and comforting for you to think that you are a misunderstood creature, battling with an adverse world. You suffer the pains of a martyr, without receiving any of their glory. There are no ills or evils in life without their joyous and joyful antidotes; it only takes a willing heart to find them. Turn your thoughts outward, broaden your horizon, and you will be carried away from self.

A love for outward show and social ambition is shown in your horoscope. You love fine surroundings, whether in your home, locality or scenery. You possess higher ambitions than are attainable, and you fail to realize apparent possibilities. You give a free rein to your sensations, feeling and passions. You carry your heart on your sleeve, and your thoughts on your face. You are rather slow to anger, and equally hard to appease, and you probably never truly forgive or forget a real injury. You will marry twice, or have more than one ardent love affair. Treachery is indicated from one of your own sex. You are very demonstrative in your affections.

Successful people born May 31:
1—John A. Andrews, war Governor of Massachusetts.
2—Walt. Whitman, poet.
3—William Rockefeller, capitalist.
4—William H. Low, artist.
5—Cynthia M. W. Alden, journalist
6—Frances Alda, operatic soprano.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me when the climbing hybrid tea roses bloom and if they bloom as profusely as the bush roses of the same type.

HELEN G.

These are not quite so free flowering as the bush type of hybrid tea rose, but they produce a large crop of beautiful flowers in June with a quite liberal scattering of flowers throughout the season.

Is the hugonis (golden rose of China) hardly in this location?

MISS ANNE T. L.

Yes, the hugonis is ruggedly hardy everywhere in America.

Please tell me of the best or at least one of the best ground-cover plants for growing under trees where nothing in the way of grass will live.

Janet G. N.

I know of nothing better than the Japanese spurge. (pashysandra).

Please tell when to prune honeysuckle to keep it from becoming a tangled mass. I like this old-fashioned vine, but it does have a bad habit of getting out of bounds.

Mrs. Joseph H. T.

Prune it back well in the spring, being sure at that time to remove all the dead or very old wood. After that, every time you mow your lawn snip a few inches off your honeysuckle vine.

Please tell me whether you think peonies should be frequently fed the previous season with bonemeal and frequently watered in order to bloom profusely. ALICE T. H.

Yes, they should have a little bonemeal scattered over the soil in which they are growing about once a month Water them every day.

Pleaes tell me whether forget-me-nots require a shady location. I want to grow some for the first time and am uncertain where to plant them

A NEW GARDENER.

Yes, forget-me-nots succeed best in moist, shady situations. If you wanted them for early summer flowering they should have been planted in frames in July or August. Sown in the spring they will not bloom before fall. It will repay you to set out plants which have been started in the greenhouse.

Please tell me if Canterbury bells are perennials. I am growing them for the first time this year.

MRS. CHARLES B.

Most of the campanulas (Canterbury bells) are biennials. For this reason seed must be sown each year in order to have plants which will bloom the next year. Sow the seed between May and August. Use rich soil and keep the seedlings well watered.

Please tell me how to increase my supply of day lilies. I want to give some to my neighbor.

MRS. HENRY H.

The division of the root clumps is the easiest method of propagating the day lilies. Some produce seeds which grow readily if planted soon after ripening.

Please tell me how often to mow a well-established grass plot in May and June. I understand about the care it requires later in the season.

MISS F. T. Y.

Mow your grass every time the blades become tall enough to reach between the knives of the mower.

PORTRAIT FINISHED AFTER GIBBONS DIED

Woman Convert Ends Task Begun Years Ago When He Sought Sitting.

VALUE IS SET AT $10,000

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

The cardinal was growing old. Soon he would fall on the last sleep, but before he went he wished to leave behind him a memento to a dear friend, Miss Shriver, of Westminster, Carroll County, Md.

One day in 1919 he called at the studio of his friend, Miss Marie de Ford Keller, in the St. James Apartments, near the cathedral, on North Charles street, in Baltimore. She is a noted portrait painter, and 30 years before she had painted his portait.

"My child," said he to the artist, "can you give me a sitting?"

She was his spiritual child, for he had brought her into the church many years before, when she first painted his portrait.

He sat for a long time while she sketched his head, and then he came back many times afterward, growing feebler all the while. Often she would leave her studio and run two blocks to his residence to sit with him a few moments and make other sketches.

Clothing, Chair Skethed In.

"Why does his eminence give that little old woman so much of his time?" the younger members of his household asked each other. But they never asked him. He never denied her his door.

When she had finished the head of the Shriver portrait and had merely sketched in the clothing and the chair in which the cardinal sat, he went to see it in the little studio at the top of the St. James. His 85 years bore heavily on his bowed frame, and the artist had graved them into his wonderful face and head.

"My child, can't you make me a little younger?" he asked.

And so the Shriver portrait, finished in 1921, shows a young and vibrant cardinal, which James Gibbons was not at that time. He wanted it so, and his friend was happy to have a portrait of him as he looked when he was first elevated to the red hat.

Treasured His Memory.

But the artist treasured the memory of her friend as he was when giving her the many sittings for his portrait, and she made another sketch of the noble face and head. And when he died she got his robes and she sketched them in, and then she began to paint the face and head from memory and from love.

For ten years now Miss Keller has been at work on this painting. There were several years when she had to lay aside her brush and her palette because of illness. But all the time she was thinking of the cardinal and of the portrait she wished to live to complete. Now, after ten years hard work it is complete, one of the most remarkable portraits ever done by an American artist.

"This is my masterpiece," she said to me, Wednesday, when I saw the portrait in her studio. "I have literally painted it on my knees in veneration for the cardinal."

Portrait is Striking.

It is a very lage canvas, probably 8 by 10 feet, and crowds the little studio, already filled with many other works from this talented brush. As you enter the studio the artist holds you at the door and she takes a position that forces you to look into a mirror hung in one corner of the room. There you get your first glimpse of the cardinal, and you gasp.

"He lives," you say softly to yourself.

The lights so fall on the postrait and are so reflected in the mirror that the portrait seems hung at the end of a long, high vaulted chamber, the nave of a cathedral. The cardinal's face shows his great age, but it is spiritualized, and about the pose there is that great dignity that characterized his whole life.

A cultured Jew was taken to the studio to see the portrait and he was so amazed at the achievement of the artist that he said: "You have shown the magnificence of the Catholic Church in the robes of office, but you show the cardinal in that ascetic head."

Critics Praise Portrait.

Competent critics like Gerald W. Johnson, of the Baltimore Evening Sun, agree with this cultured Jew, that "the face dominates the picture. It is a thin, ascetic countenance, the face of Gibbons in his old age—the face of a powerful man who was yet master of his own strength."

This is what Miss Keller says she has endeavored to depict, the love and veneration she felt for the man and for the priest, the thing that a talented artist is able to paint into a face which even the best photographers can never catch and retain on their plates.

Every day the little artist has run 6 miles, so one of her most intimate friends told me, putting a few touches here and there to the canvas and then running to the door of her studio for a glimpse into that mirror to see if it was correct. All the while the cardinal's red robes have been draped in a chair in the studio just as if he sat there clothed in them.

Artist Born in Germany.

Miss Keller is a native of Worms, Germany, the Worms where Luther lived and wrought. She came to this country a child, was educated in New York, studied art at the Art Students League, walking 2 miles back and forth every day to save car fare, and completed her art course in Munich under the eye of Lenbach, who has a noted portrait of Bismarck in the Corcoran Gallery here.

As a very young woman she secured a position in the Maryland Institute at Baltimore, and has lived there ever since. A phrenologist, studying her head, advised her to paint the cardinal's portrait.

To her surprise and delight he agreed to sit for her. That portrait led to her conversion to Catholicism and to an intimate friendship that ended only with Cardinal Gibbons' death.

Miss Keller has exhibited at the Corcoran Art Gallery and is going to send another exhibit this year. She will not send the Cardinal's portrait, but a genre painting. The Cardinal will be exhibited at the Alcazar Hall, in Baltimore. She values it at $10,000. It may eventually be permanently placed in Baltimore, and it may come to Washington. That depends upon who buys it.

This artist has many notable canvases of many notable Marylanders hung in Baltimore and elsewhere.

Dr. Taylor to Be Absent.

Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, will be absent from his pulpit tomorrow, having gone South to preach the baccalaureate sermon for Coker College, S. C. In his absence Dr. William Cumming, of Baltimore, will preach at the Central Presbyterian Church on Sunday, both morning and night.

School to Hold Outdoor Program.

An outdoor program and tea will constitute the closing exercises of the St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts from 3 to 7 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Bible, The World's Best Seller

By RABBI ABRAM SIMON, Ph. D.

RABBI ABRAM SIMON.

The mortality table of the World's Best Sellers discloses an average expectancy of one year. Whatever their intrinsic merit, good advertising and a popular flare must not be overlooked in an estimate of their extraordinary sales. Their glory is transient; their taste but ephemeral. "Vanity Fair," "Huckleberry Finn," "The Way of All Flesh" and the "Gettysburg Address" were slow in winning appreciation, but they are literature. They strike a universal chord.

How about the Bible? The Literary Digest states that the sale of the Bible, including Old and New Testament, amounted in 1922 to 14,000,000 in the United States and to 36,500,000 copies in the world. What does this staggering figure signify? Our age is not in a theological mood. It does not appear to have a bias for religious literature. Tritely we call ours a scientific, an industrial era. Facts and figures look large. It is not a church-going century.

The Bible has been subjected to the severest criticism, weighed in the balance and found wanting, according to popular verdict. God, prayer and the Good Book are sneeringly referred to as the mid-Victorian toys of women and children. What does this industrial, cynical, thirsty America want with fourteen million Bibles in one year? And this sale is continuous. Evidently the Bible is not of one day. Evidently Robert Ingersoll did not drive out the Scriptures when he discovered the mistakes of Moses. Evidently, Mencken's new "Treatise on the Gods" will soon go the way of all flesh. Evidently, the Bible's popularity must be other than sex appeal, jazz delirium, triangle complications and war hysteria.

What is the secret of the Bible's stubborn hold? Is it mere human stupidity, mental impoverishment, crass superstition? If so, humanity writes its own indictment—and smothers its guilt in the gilt pages of the Psalms.

Does the science of the Bible explain it? Surely not. The Bible was never meant to teach astronomy and geology, physics and chemistry. The surprising fact is that its enormous output keeps pace with intellectual advance. Even though the Garden of Eden ceases to be a matter of geography, it is still a spiritual experience. Granted that biology demonstrates the impossibility of the emergence of Eve from Adam's rib, the idea that woman is the crown placed by Divinity on the brow of the creative process is, nevertheless, a heartening teaching, even in the twentieth century.

Adam and Eve may not have been the lonely couple in Paradise, but the unity of the race from a common pair is the sublime assertion of the solidarity of humanity. And if Joshua did not make the sun and moon stand still, does that invalidate the noble reflection that the intensification of enthusiasm so doubles human energy and activity as to render the day apparently longer. No energetic man wants the sun to set before he has finished his task. Doubling enthusiasm is the best daylight saving proposition. Do you want to discredit the Bible because Jonah could not have been swallowed by a whale? Can you not appreciate the purpose of the allegory which points to the forgiving grace of God to the benighted heathens, even while it ridicules a prophet who tries to run away from God and duty? The last word in the assaults of biblical criticism has not robbed the Bible of its spiritual beauty, its moral passion, its divine love, its religious satisfactions, its human appeal.

Is the Bible as great literature the reason for its popularity? There is no style like the Bible's; there is no Bible like ours. That can not be its determining criterion.

My answer is that the Bible is the world's best seller because it is the world's best teller. It tells its story of the unfolding and enfolding love, justice and wisdom of God; of that the world will never tire. Man refuses to be a child in a universe orphaned of Divine law and fatherly love. Man resents his parity with the proton. The Bible is man's stimulating argument and assurance for idealism. It does not attempt to demonstrate the existence of God, because the Bible is saturated with divinity.

The Bible is the best teller of human and divine purpose. The high seriousness and the sacredness of human life break through every line thereof. The Bible is the eternal psalm of life, its dignity, its solemnity, its responsibility, its purposefulness, its joy, its sorrow, its unifying explanation in the grace and purpose of a Heavenly Father. The Bible tells the story of hope, of hope here, of hope in the eternal march of the human spirit beyond this value of experience. For this reason, the Bible remains mankind's family album.

Upon the background of eternity the human actors live and struggle and suffer, even as you and I. There is the same coddling cradle, the same altar of troth, the same yawning grave. Duty as duty, human destiny and the majesty of the soul have not changed, and the "heart has its reasons which reason can not know."

The Bible is the religious and ethical textbook, even though some of its texts represent an evolutionary progress from a lower to a higher plane. The Bible continues to outgrow its crudities and outlive its critics.

The Bible's extraordinary sale is due to man's insatiable soul. Man continues to be incurably religious, and less and less denominational and sectarian.

JUBILEE RITES SET AT RUSSIAN CHURCH

SPECIAL MUSIC PLANNED

A noted archpriest, the Very Rev. Leonid Tourkevitch, dean of the Russian Cathedral in the United States, will assist the rector, Archpriest Vichislav Gindlin, in the services at St. Alexander'r Russian Orthodox Church, 1317 Twelfth street northwest, tomorrow at the celebration of the fifth anniversary of the founding of the church here.

A second service will be held in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Church of the Epiphany on G street, with preaching by Father Tourkevitch in the English language. The choir of St. Alexander's Church will assist in these services.

Father Gindlin was sent to Washington in 1925 by Archbishop Metropolitan Platon, head of the Orthodox Church in the United States and Canada. He had no chapel and no congregation, but Bishop James E. Freeman furnished him with the former St. Alban's Chapel, and soon he had the latter worshiping there.

In the autumn of 1926 Father Gindlin rented a house for his services, and a little later purchased a lot on which St. Alexander's Church has been built.

SARGENT'S SERVICE IN CHURCH PRAISED

First Presbyterian's Layman Helped to Establish Missions Here.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY AID

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

Dr. Byron Sunderland, the longtime and eloquent pastor of the historic old First Presbyterian Church on Four-and-One-Half street northwest, had a way with him which seemed to draw men especially. When he was in the full swing of his glorious ministry here, after the scars of war had rather been healed over, his preaching attracted a young man named Theodore F. Sargent, who joined his church in 1873.

For 57 years now this young man has been an energetic member of that congregation; for 42 years he has been one of its ruling elders, many of these years the senior elder of the congregation. In 1901 he was sent as a commissioner to the general assembly. Now he is in Cincinnati again a commissioner. He probably is the oldest lay member of that body; surely he is the oldest ruling elder there, oldest ruling elder there.

This is no ordinary distinction that has come to this quiet Washingtonian. Religious work has been a passion with him, and in all the long and honorable history of the Presbyterian Church in the Capital few laymen or clergymen have achieved as much as he has been a part of it.

Joins City Missionary Society.

One of the oldest of the church institutions here is the City Missionary Society, established in 1842, and noted for the zealous men and women of distinction who were among its workers. This society depended upon the Sabbath school for its workers, and as soon as he joined the church Mr. Sargent enrolled under its banner. Its labors were spent among the destitute poor of the city, who were visited with both material and spiritual blessings. It was considered an honor to do this work.

At one of the annual meetings of the society, President Grover Cleveland dropped in as a casual visitor. He and the pastor were very intimate friends. Dr. Sunderland married him, took his bride into the church and baptized all of their babies. Listening to the reports made by the workers—and it is to their honor and to Mr. Cleveland's that he was treated as any other visitor—the President broke into tears at a recital of the woes of one poor family, and as long as he remained in the White House he was a contributor to the purse of the society.

Mr. Sargent was president of this society for 12 years, and served a number of years as superintendent of the Mission School. These missionary labors were the foundation stones of his other work in the church militant and triumphant. They still continue, so let us glance at the fruit of them.

In 1883 he started a prayer meeting on Union street southwest, which, in 1886, led to the opening of a regular mission there, with preaching services every Sabbath night. A number of families were added to the church before the mission closed in 1889.

Helps Establish Mission.

In 1906, with the help of Elders Walsh and Beveridge, he established a mission, with preaching service, at 316 Thirteenth street northeast, which grew into a Sunday school of 100 children and added to the membership of the church.

In the same year, he opened the first cottage prayer meeting at Chevy Chase at the home of Harry M. Martin, in Cumberland Lane. Mr. Martin gave warm-hearted cooperation in this prayer service, and soon others were drawn into it. A Sabbath school was opened at the postoffice building. A lot was purchased on the circle by Mr. Martin, and the splendid Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. J. H. Hollister is the pistor, is the result.

Twenty years later this good man was still looking about for places to hold religious services, and in 1925-26 he opened the first religious service held in Cottage City, with a view to establishing a Presbyterian Church there. The Rev. G. G. Kundhal and his associates later took over the work, and St. Paul Presbyterian Church is the result.

Oldest Ruling Elder.

Elected ruling elder by the congregation in 1888, he was ordained May 3 of that year, and not a year since has he failed of reelection. In point of service he has held this highest office in the gift of the Presbyterian Church 42 years, longer than any man now living in Washington. Some of the churches will continue an elder only three years in succession, but not so the old First Church.

A year after joining the church he was made treasurer and held the office eighteen consecutive years. He has been president of the congregation eleven years and president of the board of trustees one year. For 30 years he has been a member of the presbytery.

When Dr. Sunderland retired from his long pastorate, Mr. Sargent was chosen, and delivered before the presbytery a eulogy on his life, service and character. On the dedication of the new chapel of the First Church on Massachusetts avenue he delivered the dedicatory address, November 28, 1927. For many years he was superintendent of the Sunday school of First Church, and on its centennial anniversary, May, 1919, he delivered the address. This Sunday school is the oldest in Washington. He has written its history; also a brief history of First Church.

(If any other church in Washington wishes to match Mr. Sargent's really splendid record, let its pastor notify the writer of this sketch. There must be many fine church workers in this city.)

DR. NEAL ANDERSON TO DEDICATE ORGAN

FINE CONCERT PLANNED

A Presbyterian [illegible], who is both an orator of great renown and a musician of note, will complete the dedication of the Church of the Pilgrims tomorrow. This church is the national shrine of the Southern Presbyterian communion, and the minister is the Rev. Neal L. Anderson, of Savannah, Ga., pastor of the Independent Presbyterian Church of that city.

At the morning service Dr. Anderson and the Rev. Andrew R. Bird, pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, will administer Holy Communion for the first time in the new edifice. In the evening Dr. Anderson will dedicate the Sarah E. Morrison organ, said to be one of the finest in the city. It is the gift of Mrs. Cameron Morrison, of Charlotte, N. C.

No church in the South has had a more remarkable history than the one of which Dr. Anderson is the minister. Some very great preachers have filled its pulpit, and Lowell Mason, the famous composer of church music, was its organist for years. It was in this church that his most famous compositions, "Safely Through Another Week," "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" were first sung. Dr. Anderson is bringing with him the original scores of these great missionary hymns and will display them during the dedicatory services.

William E. Zeuch, of Boston, Mass., one of the foremost organists in America, will open the new organ with the following program from the great composers:

Grand coeur dialogue, Gigout; canon, Schumann; largo, Handel; Carillon-sortie, Mulet; "On the Lilting Springtime," Stebbins; "Reverie," Dickinson; fantasie and fugue in G minor, Bach; "Londonderry Air," traditional; "Meditation," Sturges; "Ave Marie Stella," Dupre; andantino, Chauvet; march, "Pomp and Circumstance," Elgar.

Dr. Darby to Talk At Cumberland U.

Federation Envoys Plan to Attend Conference in Boston.

The Rev. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Federation of Churches, is out of the city for a few days attending the commencement of his alma mater, Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn. He will preach the baccalaureate sermon there tomorrow morning. Dr. Darby graduated from the college department of Cumberland in 1895, and from the theological seminary in 1898. The institution is almost 100 years old and has been one of the leading schools of the Presbyterian Church in the South for a long period. It is located near Nashville, the capital of Tennessee.

The social service committee of the Federation, at its meeting on May 27, indorsed pending legislation asking the removal of alley dwellings in Washington within the next ten years and providing for the use of this property in other ways.

Mrs. Lorna W. Smith, juvenile court worker, and Mrs. E. W. Murray, hospital worker, will attend the meeting of the National Conference of Social Work to be held in Boston, June 15, during which there will be daily meetings of church workers employed by individual congregations, by denominations or by interdenominational groups, in cities or States.

Rites by Young People.

The young people of Chevy Chase Baptist Church will have charge of the services tomorrow night, at which time the theme will be "Hymns of the Denominations." The pastor, the Rev. Edward O. Clark, will tell the story of the hymns.

Union Vesper Services Set.

All of the churches fronting on Chevy Chase Circle, throughout the summer, hold union vesper services. The first of these services will be held on the churchyard of the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening, June 22.

The Church at Work.

By DR. HARVEY BAKER SMITH, Pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church.

God and the grocer must be met, if our needs are satisfied. Begging from door to door, one may eke out existence, but a good grocer makes for assured health.

A definite and satisfactory church membership gives spiritual strength and assurance of soul.

The church as an institution is not an end. When it has become overcentered and autocratic men have sought the kingdom of God outside of her walls.

Christianity is first of all a life of adventure with Jesus. Every institution of the church that gives the spirit of Jesus its liberty, lives in the affection created by its service.

Christ is the inspiration of the program and power of the church, but its critics have often saved it from becoming man-centered.

The church needs more firemen and fewer brakemen.

In the midst of a materialistic generation the church has not escaped the increasing financial demands, but her ministry must not "become sacred poodle dogs of the rich."

A message from God is our vital need. The preacher is its voice.

The church and its ministry will find joy in the words of a dying soldier to whom the chaplain came and asked what he wanted. The soldier said, "Tell me about God. That is your business. You ought to know."

DR. C. C. RASMUSSEN WILL ASSUME POST

New Pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church Takes Up Duties Tomorrow.

STRUCTURE IS HISTORIC

Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen will assume the pastorate of the Luther Place Memorial Church tomorrow, preaching at both morning and evening services. He comes to the noted old church at Thomas Circle from Harrisburg, Pa., where he has been pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Messiah for eight years. He has also been president of the East Pennsylvania Synod of the United Lutheran Church—the youngest man ever elected to that office—and president of the Sabbath School Association of Pennsylvania.

Among the plans which Dr. Rasmussen has mapped out is the building up of a strong nucleus for the appropriate participation of Lutherans in the Washington Bicentennial in 1932.

The Luther Place Memorial is one of the historic churches of the city. Its first pastor, Dr. J. G. Butler, was the friend of Abraham Lincoln and was at different times chaplain of both the House and the Senate, a distinction accorded to no other man in the history of the Government. It was built as a memorial to peace and has pews dedicated to the memories of both Gen. Grant and Gen. Lee.

It also is probably the only church in the National Capital that has memorial windows to all the great leaders of Protestantism, including Wycliffe and Zwingli, Huss and Calvin, Wesley and Knox.

Envoy and Staff To Attend Service

Italian Ambassador Plans Participation at Thanksgiving.

Senator Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambassador, and his entire staff, in their official capacity, will attend a special service of thanksgiving at Holy Rosary Church, Third and F streets northwest, tomorrow morning at 10:30.

A solemn high mass will be celebrated, followed by the chanting of "Te Deum." The Right Rev. Mgr. L. P. Manzetti, of Baltimore, will preach the sermon.

This rite is under the auspices of the Italian Catholic Society of Washington, and commemorates the 82d anniversary of the promulgation of a Constitution for the Italian Nation by King Carlo Alberto of Sardinia. It is the foremost national holiday of Italy and is observed all over the kingdom.

Evensong Proves Popular Service

Usual Rites Will Be Held in Washington Cathedral Tomorrow.

For nearly thirty years the people's open-air evensong around the Peace Cross in the Cathedral Close has been a magnate that has drawn an enlarging crowd to the Washington Cathedral at Mount St. Alban. The first of these services for this summer will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which time the Rev. G. Freeland Peter will preach. Dr. Peter is canon and chancellor of the cathedral.

A cordial invitation is extended by cathedral authorities not only to residents of Washington, but visitors in the city to attend these people's open-air evensongs.

Two pilgrimages will be held tomorrow through the crypts of the cathedral and to objects of religious devotion and interest in the Cathedral Close, led by the Rev. John W. Gummere of the cathedral staff of clergy. The morning pilgrimage will start at 12:30 p. m. from Bethlehem Chapel and the afternoon pilgrimage will begin at 5:15 p. m. from the Peace Cross at the close of the people's open-air evensong.

Sunday Night Service Question Will Be Topic

One of the most difficult problems confronting the churches of Washington is the Sunday night services. A number of the churches do not hold them. Some of those that do have but small attendances. A few have all of the pews filled.

This question will be discussed at a forum to be held at the West Baptist Church Thursday night, with the pastor, the Rev. C. B. Austin, leading. The forum questions will be:

"Can the church afford to close its doors for the Sunday evening service?"

"What constitutes a good church member?"

"What is the chief business of the church?"

"Can we progress without the Church?"

LUTHERAN. LUTHERAN.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

The Congregation of Luther Place Memorial Church, at Thomas Circle, extends to every one interested a special invitation to worship with it on Sunday, June 1, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. in honor of the assumption of the pastorate by Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, D. D.

Dr. Rasmussen comes to Washington from the Lutheran Church of the Messiah, of Harrisburg, Pa., one of the largest congregations in the United Lutheran Church in America. He stood first in his class, both in prep school and college, took highest rank in the seminary, and is one of the youngest ministers ever elected to the presidency of a major synod in his denomination.

Under Dr. Rasmussen Luther Place is inaugurating a challenging program. Still on the sunny side of forty, he possesses unbounded energy, is an inspiring leader, and brings to his pulpit a message that grips both the mind and the heart.

The Congregation's appeal to all who have no church connection in Washington is that they "Come and worship with us."

MACKS POUND OUT 7-6 AND 15-11 VICTORIES OVER NATS; JONES CONQUERS VOIGT, MEETS WETHERED FOR TITLE

ATLANTAN IS FORCED TO RALLY TO DEFEAT VOIGT ON 18TH GREEN

Former Capital Star Has 2-Hole Lead on Incoming Nine.

Jones' Par 4 Takes Last Hole as Foe Putts Weakly.

By FRANK H. KING.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 30 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones and Roger Wethered will play 36 holes tomorrow, over the historic St. Andrews course, for the British amateur golf championship, the only major title the American has not won.

The tall, slender Englishman and the plump powerful Georgian have fought their way through seven grueling matches to meet again in match play as they did as rival Walker Cup team captains at Sandwich two weeks ago when Jones won eight up and seven to play, in the 36-hole match. They had met as Walker Cup privates in 1922, Jones winning, three and two.

In another thrilling all-American match today, Jones defeated George Voigt, one up, in a battle in which he was two down at the thirteenth hole and had to stage a great rally to square the match and then go on to win at the home hole.

Wethered won his way to the final with a victory over Easter Hartley, two up and one to play.

Voigt Wins Morning Test, 5 and 4.

In the quarter-finals in the morning, Voigt defeated the crack Artizan player, William Sutton, five up and four to play, while Jones disposed of young Eric Fiddian, four and three. Young Fiddian had the opportunity to become the Diana Fishwick of men's golf in Great Britain but the big occasion was too much for him. Fiddian's style and fine swing nevertheless created a good impression on Jones.

In the lower half of the draw, Wethered eliminated Henry Howell, a Welsh merchant, and Hartley defeated Douglas Grant, American living in London, after Grant, who is nearly 60 years of age, cracked at the finish. Grant was one up at the seventeenth but lost the eighteenth and nineteenth holes.

Jones-Voigt Duel Real Thriller.

St. Andrews golf fans, who have watched the Jones campaign this week for the British title were all primed for the all-American clash between Bobby and George in the afternoon, but they hardly expected an epic duel with thrust and parry at every hole, increasing in intensity and suspense to the very last green where 6,000 wildly excited persons saw the finish.

If Jones wins tomorrow he must recall a 15-foot putt at the seventeenth where with a birdie four at this treacherous 467-yard hole he gained a half when Voigt's ball was only inches from the cup.

Jones won the match at the eighteenth where Voigt misjudged the distance and his iron stopped in the "Valley of Sin," a deep dip in the putting surface with a steep rise to the level of the cup. Jones had made a great iron shot to the green, on the flag all the way, and he just missed a birdie three, to win the hole with a par four to Voigt's five.

3,000 See Pair of Birdies On Opening Hole.

A gallery of 3,000 persons assembled for the start of the semifinal match between Jones and Voigt and was rewarded with a great thrill at the first hole when it was halved in birdie threes.

The two Americans drove about the same distance, each more than 250 yards. Voigt pitched across the Swilcan burn and rolled 60 feet past the flag. Jones pitched short and ran to within 15 feet of the pin.

Voigt holed his downhill putt for a birdie three, but Jones came right to drop his for the half amid great applause.

Jones went one up at the second where he scored a par four to five for Voigt. George was trapped in "Cheape's Bunker" and although he slashed into the sand and dug the ball out he was 40 yards short of the green, while Bobby was on with his second. Jones putted dead from 20 feet and when Voigt ran over the green he conceded the hole. Jones, one up.

Voigt Halves the Third With 3-Foot Putt.

The third was halved in fours. Jones outdrove Voigt, but both pitches rolled past the pin to the back of the green. Voigt putted 3

StanfordTops Track Meet Qualifiers

Places 13 in Trials With S. California Qualifying 12.

Javelin, Shot Records Fall; Wykoff Beats Dyer in Sprint.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

HARVARD STADIUM, Cambridge, Mass., May 30 (A.P.).—To the tingling tune of record-shattering performances, Stanford's brawn and Southern California's speed were pitted against each other today in a stirring prelude to the battle between these two Pacific Coast universities for the East's blue ribbon track and field title—the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. championship.

Two meet records were broken, one of them involving a new American mark, and a third was equaled, all by California talent, as Stanford and University of Southern California finished neck and neck in the struggle for qualifying places in eleven of the fifteen championship events, preliminary to the finals tomorrow.

After the smoke of battle had cleared, Stanford held a scant lead with thirteen qualifying places and the possibility of gaining one more if a dispute is settled overnight in the Cardinals' favor. Southern California placed twelve men, exhibiting all-around strength that may prove the downfall of Stanford tomorrow when the points begin to count.

Harvard Leads East With 7 Qualifiers.

Harvard led the Eastern contingent with seven qualifiers, thereby strengthening Crimson hopes in the "second" division fight for third place. Otherwise the field was strung out, with Michigan tied at four places each with Cornell, Pennsylvania, New York University, Colgate, Yale, Dartmouth and Syracuse. California qualified three.

Harlow Rothert started the meet with a sensational toss of 52 feet ¼ inch in the shotput, shattering his own meet record of 50 feet 3 inches by nearly 2 feet and at the same time setting a new American mark. His heave surpassed the former national standard of 51 feet 11⅝ inches, registered by Herman Brix, at Fresno, Calif., in April, 1929. It was exactly 7 inches short of the new world's record credited to the German, Emil Hirshfeld.

The second meet record to tumble was in the javelin throw, where blond, lanky Kenneth Churchill of the University of California, tossed the spear 207 feet 8½ inches. This displaced the old championship standing of 205 feet 7⅝ inches, made by Creth Hines of Georgetown in 1927.

Wykoff Provides Sprint Fireworks.

The sprint fireworks of the day were furnished by flying Frank Wykoff, ace of the Southern California speed boys, who returned to the scene of his Olympic tryout triumphs of 1928 to outrace his Stanford rival, Hector Dyer, in the 100-yard dash semifinals and equal the meet record of 9 7-10 seconds. Dyer was penalized a yard for false starting, but he trailed Wykoff by fully 3 yards at the finish

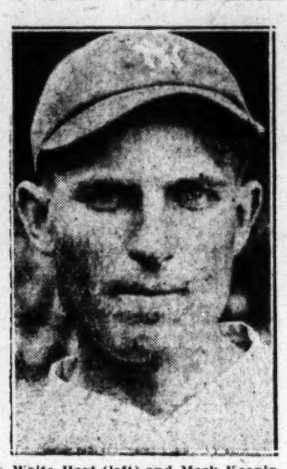
HOYT, KOENIG SENT TO DETROIT BY YANKS IN SWAP FOR THREE



Waite Hoyt (left) and Mark Koenig, veterans of Yankee pennant-winning teams, who were traded to the Detroit Tigers yesterday.

Obtain Carroll, Rice, Wuestling in Deal With Tigers.

NEW YORK, May 30 (A.P.).—Pitcher Waite Hoyt and Shortstop Mark Koenig have been traded to Detroit for Pitcher Owen Carroll, Outfielder Harry Rice and Infielder George Westling, the New York Yankee management announced today.

The trade, one of the most important of the season, came suddenly today, although negotiations have been pending between the clubs since last February, when Bob Shawkey, manager of the Yanks, and Bucky Harris, pilot of the Tigers, conferred in Miami, Fla.

Although getting "three for two" with no cash involved in the deal, the Yanks parted with a pair of important factors in their pennant winning surges of 1926, 1927 and 1928. Hoyt, who is 31 years old, came to the Yanks is 1921 after two years with the Boston Red Sox and a brief tour of the minors. He has been with the Yankees ever since and pitched splendid ball. His best seasons were 1927 and 1928, when he won 22 and lost 7, and 23 and lost 7, respectively. He won only ten games while losing nine last season and has not been effective this year.

Koenig came to the Yankees in 1925 from St. Paul in the American Association. He was the regular shortstop, hitting .319 in 1928, until displaced by Lynn Lary this season. He is 26 years old. Both Koenig and Hoyt are right-handers.

Although the supplanting of Koenig at shortstop for the Yankees was reported due to Mark's failing eyesight, this was denied officially by Koenig and the Yankee management. Carroll, Rice and Westling are due to

In the Wake of the Game

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Before the games started both teams lined up in front of the plate and were presented with "buddie" poppies by one of the local legion posts.

MORNING GAME.

It looked as though Bishop and Miller might collide while both were chasing Goslin's looper in the first stanza. Bishop gave way, however, just in time to avoid being trampled upon by the fast-charging outfielder.

Liska walked Bishop on four successive balls opening the game for the Athletics. Seven Mackmen faced him in this round, but only three were charged with times at bat, due to another walk, a hit batsman and sacrifice.

For the first time since May 16, when the Nats beat the A's in a double-header here, Connie Mack was on the job managing his team. He has been out of action, having some wisdom teeth extracted and was expected to okeep away from baseball even longer because of complications which set in.

SCHMELING PROMISES TO BE FIGHTING CHAMPION

German Owes U. S. Much, He Says

Confident He'll Beat Sharkey and Defend Title in America.

Lack of Experience No Great Handicap, Max Declares.

By MAX SCHMELING.
(As told to Jimmy Powers.)

ENDICOTT, N. Y., May 29.—After I win the championship of the world the night of June 12—and understand, I am not boasting, I am honestly confident I can and will win—I do not intend to take the title with me and run back home to Germany and put it in the moth balls, as the expression goes.

Every champion promises to be a fighting champion. That is old stuff. I am a business man and a good business man fights where he gets the most money and the most money is in the United States, ja?

They say it takes five years for a good heavyweight to come along and that even if the championship is won by Sharkey or me who is there to fight? There are always fighters in this world and they pop up when you least expect them. It did not take me five years to come along. Of course, I've had more than five years' professional experience, but I mean it did not take five years to come from nowhere to a championship shot. It did not take Luis Firpo that long to come along and remember the great fight he put up against Dempsey.

Experience Did Not Help His Foes.

They say I have not the experience that Sharkey has because Sharkey fought Jack Dempsey, Harry Wills, George Godfrey, Tom Heeney, John Risko, Tommy Loughran and Mike McTigue. O. K., but remember Firpo had no experience and all of Risko's experience and all of Paulino's experience could not help them against me.

If I win the championship I will go back to Germany, but that will be only for a visit. After a German is my home and my countrymen have not had a heavyweight champion of the world ever. I owe something to America and I am grateful for the opportunities this country gave me. There is no other place in the world where I could advanced quickly and to such big purses.

I remember when I first fought Joe Monte in the Garden. I was impressed by the lights and the crowds and the fact that I was fighting in the Garden. You know the Garden has a great reputation all over Europe. Fighters over there look upon it as their goal. It is considered a sort of golden paradise.

So you see, after struggling in Europe and not getting so much, I come to America and get a championship fight. Naturally, if there is any future fighting to be done it will be done here.

Would Give Sharkey Return Match.

If the fight is close and I win, I will gladly give Sharkey a return match. If there is a heavyweight elimination tournament held and America nominates its leading man to try to wrest the title back from me it matter is within six months or a year, I will gladly give him the same opportunity that now is being given me.

So do not think that I am going to grab the title and run home to Germany with it and nurse it along for years and years without jeopardizing it. That is not only unfair, but it is also poor business, as a mythical belt will not buy what you call call groceries at the corner grocery store. Is it not so?

Dempsey Picks Sharkey To Win Over German

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 30 (A. P.).—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world who has traded blows with Jack Sharkey, believes the latter will defeat Max Schmeling, the German contender, in their match June 12, in New York.

Dempsey arrived here yesterday from Amarillo, Tex., to confer with Spencer Penrose, local capitalist, concerning the staging in Colorado Springs next summer of an important fight, possibly of championship caliber. Dempsey said he believed an outdoor fight in Colorado would draw 50,000 persons.

The former champion said the outcome of the Sharkey-Schmeling controversy would "have absolutely no effect" on his future plans.

Fort Myer Poloists Win at Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 30.—After giving a team of the Maryland Polo Club, a handicap of three goals, the team of the Sixteenth Field Artillery, from Fort Myer, today won a Memorial Day polo game at Stevenson Field, 8 to 5. Two falls added to the thrills of the game, which was played on a slippery field that made riding difficult and hazardous. In the first of six chukkers, Lieut. Mark McClure, of the Army, was thrown from his pony, but remounted and continued in the game. Crowded near the Soldiers' gcal post by Lieut. Guy C. Benson, of the Army, the mount of Lieut. Pack McFarland, was thrown, spilling the rider, who was bruised badly on the arm. Despite his fall, Lieut. McClure was the outstanding player for the Artillerymen, making four goals.

—Churchill Downs Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Kentucky Oaks for 3-year-old fillies, $10,000 added, up for its fifty-sixth running, features the closing day of the Churchill Downs meeting which has been unusually successful, both in the class of horses and the attendance. In its current season, it has had its most successful derby, a rich race that is the oldest in the country in point of continuous running and this year attracted the largest crowd in its history and proved colorful in many respects, the winner, the jockey on the winner and the foreign sportsman, Lord Derby himself, who graced the occasion.

FEATURE RACE.

The Oaks is a long race for fillies at this season, being a mile and a quarter. R. L. Clark's GALADAY, a fleet daughter of Sir Galahad III, sire of Gallant Fox, is selected to win the stake on her excellent form. She has beaten Michigan Boy and others and was third to Flying Heels in last Autumn Pimlico Futurity. H. P. Headley's ALCIBIADES which has shown good form this year, winning over Honey Locust and a starter in the Derby, is rated the contender, while THISTLE ANN is regarded next best with H. P. Whitney's NIATO fourth. This should be an attractive renewal of a race for breeders which is as old as the Derby itself.

FIRST RACE—The first race for 2-year-olds has a large field which finds the log Cabin Stud's BELEN running second to IN HASTE in his only start, rated best of the large field. BATLE SWEEP will have ARUNDEL to beat for the place. ARUNDEL, from the Camden barn, will have a strong Kentucky following.

SECOND RACE—SCOTLAND is rather uncertain but he has class and occasionally beats horses in his class and this may be one of those days, so he is picked with some reservations to win. MARY'S TOY, winner last out over Orator, should be very dangerous and will win if SCOTLAND is not up to his best. ESTIN is next best.

THIRD RACE—OLD CALLY should win back in the third race, DUELIST being the toughest of the opposition, and it may be a real duel. MYTH has a chance to show. SCOTLAND'S victory over Valdosta two races back gives him a good chance.

FOURTH RACE—AGITATOR will have FIDDLER to beat in the fourth event and looks like he could do so. Winning four races in a row and then in the money in his last two is very good grounds for picking him. FAIR ROSALIND will be close enough up to get third money. SUPRYSE may improve.

SIXTH RACE—MARY COBB, a consistent filly, looks much the best in the sixth race. NORMAHAL should hold the others safe. PLUMBAGO for the rest of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—VACATION is well named for an easy victory in the last race before quite a long vacation for Col. Winn's Beautiful Course and should score over KENTUCKY ACE and CONGO II.

WHICHONE, Harry Payne Whitney's star colt, will start at Belmont Park today as favorite in the famous Withers for 3-year-olds.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZOOM, $6.10, $3.50, $2.74; BETTY ANN, $4.14, $3.40; ROLL 'EM DOWN, $6.02.

ZOOM, prominent from start, but racing in close quarters first three-quarters, went around opposition on the far turn and, closing strongly, had much in reserve at end. BETTY ANN, also forward from start and saving ground to the turn, was lucky to get through. ROLL 'EM DOWN held RUTH MAYES never far back. Latter, forced wide while improving position after first three-eighths, held on gamely in the drive. RUTH MAYES away slowly and far back to final furlong, closed with a rush and finished fastest of all. HONI SOIT suffered from lack of racing room. WIDELY KNOWN fell near the three-furlong pole.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUTPOST, $6.24, $3.66, $2.88; VERMICULITE, $4.04, $3.36; ABBETH, $6.90.

OUTPOST worked way to front and, shaking off RACKETEER, withstood a strong bid from VERMICULITE in a hard drive. VERMICULITE, away slow and pinched back at start, moved up steadily on outside of OUTPOST rounding the turn, then held on well through stretch. ABBETH, away slowly and forced wide while improving position, made a game bid midway of stretch, but faltered slightly from early efforts. LAZY SUSAN broke slowly and, outrun to the main stretch, closed a big gap. PANDEAN raced in close quarters most of the journey.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:23½. Off at 3:26. Winner, H. P. Whitney's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELYSIUM, $31.00, $13.06, $8.62; TWILL, $5.64, $4.16; BELLE OF BOURBON, $5.56.

ELYSIUM raced in close quarters early part, taken to outside reaching stretch. TWILL suffered from crowding to the far turn, moved up steadily when clear, raced BELLE OF BOURBON into defeat and just failed to hold winner safe. BELLE OF BOURBON broke fast, raced well to the final drive, then tired. THUNDER NYMPH raced in very close quarters. FUDGE away slowly, closed fast. TEA GREEN had no mishaps. PERSONNEL quit badly after showing early speed.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. The River Valley Club. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:09½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY CLARENCE, $7.92, $3.96, $3.36; GO TO IT, $3.32, $2.82; FARM HAND, $3.74.

LADY CLARENCE followed GO TO IT under steadying restraint, saved all possible ground to the first turn, moved up stretch where, responding gamely when taken to outside, raced around the leader, but was doing best at end. GO TO IT took the lead at once, held on determinedly when repeatedly challenged through stretch and only faltered in last sixteenth under pressure. FARM HAND, very fractious at post, was never far back, was forced slightly wide when improving position, held on gamely through stretch to outstay MIDSOLEA. MIDSOLEA, outrun first part, came with a burst of speed in final quarter, then hung when put to a drive. BOBBY POWERS tired badly after reaching the main stretch.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. The Bashford Manor Stakes. For 2-year-old colts, geldings. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went up stretch at 4:41. Off at 4:48. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BACK LOG, $12.78, $6.62, $5.62; DON LEON, $35.02, $22.40; LA SALLE, $13.16.

BACK LOG, away fast, moved to the front with a rush on outside and, continuing strongly through stretch, had enough left to hold DON LEON. Latter broke slowly, but as soon sent into contention, lost some ground going into stretch but, holding on as gamely was gradually getting to winner last sixteenth. LA SALLE, outpaced early and in close quarters on the turn, came with a rush on outside and outfinished contention and finished near the finish. TACK was used up racing into contention and weakened near the finish. BILL MORRIS quit early.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HERRICK, $5.86, $3.22, out; CHIP, $3.72, out; DIXIE LAD, out.

HERRICK, under restraint, but losing ground on stretch turn, came on outside of DOCTOR PARRISH when making his move through stretch and, taking command, just lasted to hold CHIP safe. Latter was in close quarters first part of it and, taken to outside on turn, responded to urging when straightened out and was rapidly getting to the leader near the end. DIXIE LAD, far back first six furlongs, came gamely all the last furlong, overhauled DOCTOR PARRISH in last few strides. Latter opened up a good early lead while saving ground, but weakened badly through the stretch. MR. DICK tired after reaching the far turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:57½. Off at 5:59. Winner, L. Jones' blk. f. EVERBLUE, restrained to the far turn, moved up with a burst o fspeed on outside when called upon and, racing WHISK ARROW into submission, drew far out. CHATTERBLACK, in tight quarters, was forced back on th turn, closed gamely when clear. BROWN FLASH was allowed to drop far back first five furlongs, then taken to inside through stretch, closed very strong. PRINCESS VIRGINIA could not reach a contending position. MARGATE was forced back nearing stretch turn when WHISK ARROW came over sharply. ORATOR was in close quarters on back stretch and had to be taken back. WHISK ARROW stopped badly after going into a brief lead near turn.

Misses Dunham and Walker Meet for Singles Title.

DOOLY MITCHELL, Bob Considine, Tom Mangan, and Deane Judd were the winners in important matches of the City of Washington tennis championships played yesterday on the Sixteenth Street Reservoir Courts, earning the right to compete in the semifinal round which will be staged this morning.

The day resulted in a sweeping triumph for the top seeded players, Mitchell, Mangan, Considine and Judd, being seeded numbered one, two, three and four, respectively.

Horse and Boy Down; Recover to Win Race

Hagerstown, Md., May 30—Ray Baker, Washington boy, who rode Impertinent to victory in the sixth race this afternoon at the Hagerstown Fair Grounds, showed more than ordinary gameness after being thrown by his mount while the field was being alligned.

Baker's legs were caught beneath his mount as she reared and fell. As Baker was being carried to the secretary's office, Impertinent was being taken back to the paddock to obtain another rider. Baker took off his colors and then sat up. He shook himself and declared that no bones were broken so far as he was concerned.

The young Washingtonian insisted upon riding and virtually pulled the colors away from another rider. Impertinent then reared as she was being led on to the track and her head struck Baker in the mouth, bringing forth blood. Only a few knew that Baker had remounted, and he did not receive the applause ordinarily he would have been given had the spectators known the fact.

Impertinent, an eight to one shot, led from beginning to end.

3 U. S. TENNIS STARS NEAR TITLES

Tilden, Mrs. Moody, Miss Jacobs Score in France.

By THOMAS T. TOPPING.

AUTEUIL, France, May 30 (A.P.)—America, with only five representatives in a starting field of 79 men and 44 women, landed three of them in the semifinals of the French hard court tennis championships today.

Bill Tilden, through a comfortable victory at 6—1, 6—1, 7—5, over the 6-foot 7-inch Irishman, Lyttleton Rogers, kept the United States in the running for the men's singles title and tomorrow will clash with his old rival, Jean Borotra, of France.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, defending her women's crown, found it unnecessary to remove her sweater to dispose of Helena Rost, of Germany, 6—0, 6—1, while Helen Jacobs, after a rather shaky start, assumed the upper hand over Mrs. Phoebe Watson, of England, and won at 5—7, 6—3, 6—1.

Miss Jacobs' Victory Especially Sweet.

Victory was especially sweet for America's No. 2 ranking woman player as it was Mrs. Watson who lowered Miss Jacobs' colors last year in the Wightman Cup series and the semifinals of the United States championship.

The veteran, Elizabeth Ryan, was the only American to fall by the wayside, losing to Cecille Aussem, of Germany. Fraulein Aussem won at 4—6, 6—1, 6—0, when Miss Ryan's game collapsed after carrying the first set. In the semifinals, Mrs. Moody is to meet Fraulein Aussem, while Miss Jacobs encounters Elia de Alvarez, of Spain. Senorita de Alvarez won a quarter-final victory over Mme. Simone Mathieu, of France, 6—3, 7—5.

To win the men's singles title, Tilden probably will face the task of defeating two of the French "Musketeers" on successive days. While he meets Borotra in one semifinal, Henri Cochet plays Baron Humbert de Morpurgo, of Italy, in the other and is heavily favored to come through to the title round.

Big Bill Tries Experimenting.

Against the Giant Rogers, Tilden won the first two sets by aggressive play, and with the match safely in hand, proceeded to experiment with drop shots, chop strokes and lops which he felt would be needed against Borotra in the semifinals, and if he defeats the Basque, against Cochet in the finals.

Mrs. Moody had her easiest match of the tournament. Fraulein Rost was able to give her no real opposition.

Mention of the name of any player other than Mrs. Moody as likely to capture the women's singles title is regarded as tennis heresy.

BRITISH AMATEUR FINALISTS

ROGER WETHERED, British hope, and Bobby Jones (inset), who will meet today for the title.

JONES BEATS VOIGT BY ONE UP

Atlantan Cuts Down Lead and Wins on Final Green.

feet from the cup, while Jones sent his ball dead. Voigt made the putt to insure the half.

The fourth was halved in 5s after Voigt had a great chance to win and square the match. Jones again had the longer drive, his ball stopping just short of the "Cottage Bunker" from which he holed his eagle two Monday. Voigt's second was 30 feet from the pin, while the wind carried Jones' high mashie pitch into a trap to the left. Jones exploded 6 feet from the hole. Voigt's first putt rolled 3 feet past the cup. Jones missed and then Voigt missed again, leaving a half in 5s and Jones still one up.

Voigt Squares Match At the Fifth.

Voigt squared the match at the fifth hole with a birdie four to Jones' par five. Jones' drive was only a yard ahead of that from Voigt's club. Voigt's No. 1 iron shot skimmed over the green and scattered the crowd at the back, stopping a few feet beyond the green's edge. Jones was on, 90 feet from the cup. Each putt was short and Norman Boase, chairman of the British championship committee, acting as a referee, had to measure to see who was away. Voigt was away by a bare 2 inches and he holed his putt of about 5 feet. Jones missed his, the ball running past the cup and the match was all square.

Jones again went one up at the sixth when he scored a par four to five for Voigt. Bobby outdrove George a few yards and Voigt had to play his second from a heathery lie at the left of the fairway. His run-up failed to make a mound before the green, while Jones ran 30 feet past the pin. Voigt used his aluminum putter from off the green and was again short. Jones' approach putt was dead. Voigt missed from 12 feet and lost the hole.

Jones Misses Putt, Squaring Match.

Voigt again squared the match at the seventh, when he was down in par 4, while Jones took three putts and finished with a 5. Over the rolling hillocks of this fairway the New Yorker outdrove the Atlantan for the first time in the match. Both seconds rested ten feet beyond the pin, with Jones slightly inside. Voigt putted dead, while Jones ran three feet past and he then missed the short putt.

The short eighth was halved in par threes. Voigt's tee shot into a stiff wind, was twenty feet to the right of the cup, while Jones was six feet short. Voigt putted dead, but Jones ran past the cup and almost laid Voight a stymie. George, however, holed out as did Jones, for the half, and the match was still square.

The ninth was halved with a pair of par fours and the match at the turn was all square.

Jones was slightly in front from the tee at the ninth. Voigt's approach was twelve yards short of the cup, while Jones was ten yards past. Jones holed an 18-inch putt for his four and conceded Voigt one only slightly longer, leaving the match all square as they started on the second nine.

Tenth Hole Halved With Fours.

The tenth was halved in par fours. Both Jones and Voigt almost drove the 312-yard green, with Voigt about ten yards behind George ran up 18 feet from the cup and Jones about 9 feet. The approach putts trickled past the cup and it was a half at four, with the match still square.

Voigt went 1 up at the eleventh, this marking the first time he had been in the lead, when he was down in par 3 at the short hole to 4 for Jones. Voigt played for the famous Eden green with a high mashie shot, which arched with the wind and stopped hole high, 15 feet from the cup. Jones tried to reach the green with a low shot, his ball striking in blown sand in front of the green and seemed likely to run up to the cup. Instead it raced up the sloping green, scattering the crowd back of the green and ran down the bank of the Eden River. Jones chipped back 6 feet from the cup. Voigt put his approach putt on the lip of the cup. Jones' ball again slipped past the hole, giving Voigt the lead.

Both Sink Putts For Half.

The twelfth was halved in fours. Jones outdrove Voigt 20 yards. George's pitch overran the green and he was 15 feet past the cup coming back. Jones' putt from 20 feet almost left Voigt stymied, but he holed the putt and Jones followed suit, Bob's putt being from 4 feet. Voigt remained one up.

Voigt went 2 up at the thirteenth when he was down in 4 to 5 for Jones. Bobby, with a little slice on his drive, found his ball in the rough, and his second was just short of a bunker. Voigt drove in the fairway but topped his iron shot. However, his next found a good spot on the plateau near the green. The crowd then gasped as Jones completely fluffed a mashie pitch, the ball going about 10 yards. Voigt ran his 9 feet from the pin. Jones holed his putt from 12 feet, but Voigt got his down also to win the hole.

Jones Cuts Lead by Winning 14th.

Jones reduced Voigt's lead to 1 by winning the fourteenth with a birdie 4. Voigt drove out of bounds and almost put his second effort out, the ball stopping near the stone boundary wall. Jones played a great brassie shot straight over "hell bunker" and pitched his next hole high. Voigt was in trouble all the way, and finally took 6 while Jones holed his birdie 4, leaving Voigt 1 up.

The fifteenth was halved in 5s. Voigt outdrove Jones a few yards, and the seconds of both almost found trouble near the green. Voigt sent a mashie niblick 9 feet from the pin, while Jones ran his ball up with a putter. Voigt missed his putt and so did Jones, leaving a half and Voigt still 1 up.

Jones won the sixteenth with a four to Voigt's five. Voigt's tee shot caught a trap and he blasted out kneeling but could get no distance. Jones played a great iron to the green hole high. Jones with two putts for a win sent his ball to the lip of the cup.

Jones Sinks 15-Foot Putt for Half.

The seventeenth was halved in birdie fours and the match was still square. At the critical seventeenth hole Jones cut all the distance possible over the projecting buildings. He had an advantage of 15 yards in distance. George had to play a dangerous second shot, risking being short on in "the road." He elected to play safe in a little hollow before the green. Jones followed sending his ball into the same dip. Bobby then played first and ran his up over the treacherous dips and waves of the green. The ball took them all but stopped 15 feet from the hole. Voigt ran his stone dead. Jones stepped up, and surveying the line very deliberately, plumped the ball straight into the cup. There was a great cheer from the crowd as the match went home all square.

A par four was good enough to win the eighteenth and the match for Jones, as Voigt took five. Play at the home hole was delayed, as the surging crowds rushed forward, seeking points of vantage.

Voigt Outdriven on Decisive Hole.

Jones was ahedd from the tee. Voigt's iron struck the green, but on a dangerous slope of a big dip and the ball rolled back into a little valley, still on the green but ten feet below the level of the cup.

Jones' drive was perfectly placed and opened up a slope to the hole. He hit an iron straight for the flag, the ball striking the green 80 feet from the pin and rolling six feet past.

Voigt studied his ball and the line of his putt carefully, walking several times up and down the slope, but he failed to gauge the force needed and he was four feet short.

Jones putting for a birdie 3 left his ball an inch to the left of the cup, the crowd thought it would drop and started to applaud, the applause changing to a sigh as the ball remained on the edge.

Voigt still had a putt for a half and deliberately stroked his ball, but it ran past the cup, as George went over and threw his arm around Bobby's shoulder, as the cheering crowds engulfed the pair.

HORNSBY OUT WITH ANKLE BROKEN

Cubs' Star Injured Sliding; Lost for Six Weeks.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, May 30 (A.P.).—Pennant aspirations of the championship Chicago Cubs, already lowered by the sudden death of Pitcher Hal Carlson and a hospital sized casualty list, were given another staggering blow today when Rogers Hornsby, one of the greatest natural hitters in the game, fractured his left ankle.

The injury, which occurred as the famous "Rajah" tried to slide into third base during the morning game of the St. Louis Cardinal-Cub Memorial day double-header, will force Hornsby out of the game at least six weeks. The break may cost the Cubs their second successive championship in the National League, hopes for which have rested largely on Hornsby and his big bat and smart field generalship.

Carrying on despite his painful right heel, which had bothered him all spring, Hornsby looked more like his old self today than at any time this season. He covered his position at second base remarkably well and rapped out a single and double that were the big blows in the Cubs' 2 to 0 victory subsequently. It was after his double in the third inning that the injury jinx overtook the "Rajah"

Favors Sore Foot In Sliding.

Noticing that Orsatti, Card right-fielder, had made a wild throw after catching Kiki Cuyler's fly, Hornsby made a dash for third base, "Sparky" Adams, St. Louis third baseman, retrieved the wild throw quickly and Hornsby was caught 10 feet from the base. Instead of reversng his dash and going back to second, he attempted to slide, favoring his sore right foot and twisting about so his left pointed toward the bag. In doing so, the leg crashed against pitcher Sylvester Johnson, covering the bag, and was fractured.

The injury was described by the Cub physician as a transverse fracture of the external malleolous of the left fibula. The fibula is the smaller of the two bones of the leg below the knee and binding the ankle.

The accident to the star, purchased for almost $400,000 in cash and players from the Boston Braves in the winter season of 1928-29, was a sad blow to the Cubs, but Hornsby himself appeared most affected.

Hornsby Is Most Affected.

"Just when I was favoring my right foot, I fracture my left ankle," he said sorrowfully. "This season has been a tough one for the Cubs in so far as accidents, and to me especially. I had high hopes of going through my major league career without such an accident as this and now it happens in my sixteenth season. It's tough enough on a fellow anyway when he gets older as his legs aren't what they used to be."

Clarence Blair, Cub rookie, probably will replace Hornsby at second, although Manager Joe McCarthy may switch his infield about with Clyde Beck at second and Blair at third until Lester Bell, another Cub invalid, recovers from his sore salary wing.

RACE WINNER

BOBBY ARNOLD.

YOUNG CHICAGOAN AUTO RACE VICTOR

the perilous 500 miles. He pulled into the pits after speeding 278 miles and spent three precious minutes taking on fuel and changing his rear tires. Then he hopped back into his gray-painted racer, with a huge No. 4 painted on the hood, and rode off to victory with never a challenge.

Arnold won $20,000 as first prize, and also bagged approximately $17,000 in lap prizes, receiving $100 for each lap in which he led the race. In addition, he won other prizes offered by accessory manufacturers, to make his total winnings $52,150.

The race proved disastrous to the two foreign entries and also to De Paolo, one of the American favorites The foreign entries were Italian made cars. The first of the Italian entries, a 16-cylinder creation, surrendered before 25 miles had been reeled off, due to ignition trouble. The other Italian entry, an 8-cylinder car, was weaved off the course after the first ten drivers had finished. It was plodding along with 40 miles still to go when officials flagged the invader down.

De Paolo, winner of the race in 1925 and one of the favorites today was forced out of the competition due to the collision in which five other cars were wrecked. Roberts, the relief driver, had just taken De Paolo's place when the crackup occurred.

If the crash involving the six cars had not occurred, it is certain that Arnold would have smashed the track record for the race. The smashup was so disastrous in its mechanical effects that officials slowed the other machines down to 5 miles an hour for 4 minutes until the wreckage could be cleared off the track.

report to the club in Chicago next Tuesday.

The trade promises to bolster some of the Yankees' weaknesses of the young season. Carroll, a right-handed pitcher who came to Detroit from Holy Cross College in 1925, is expected to bolster the pitching staff that was aided recently by the acquisition of Charlie Ruffing from the Red Sox. Carroll is 28 years old. He won 10 and lost 6 in 1927 and won 16 while losing 12 in 1928 for an earned run average of 3.28. Last year he slumped, losing 17, while winning 9.

Rice is expected to fill the hole in left field by the failure of Dusty Cooke to develop as expected. Rice, a left-handed batter, is 29 years old, and came to Detroit in 1928 in a trade with St. Louis. He has been in the major leagues since 1923, and batted below .300 only in one full season. He hit for .359 in 1925 and .304 last year.

Wuestling has been carried by Detroit as a substitute shortstop for a couple of seasons.

BROWN WILL FACE A'S TODAY

Will Meet Walberg in Southpaw Battle at Philadelphia.

Special to The Washington Post.

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Pa., May 30.—The Nationals and Mackmen battle again here tomorrow afternoon, when another crowd of goodly proportions is expected to turn out. Philadelphians take their baseball mighty seriously and the scrap between the Athletics and Capital City team for the league leadership has them on edge. The Macks reduced the Nats' lead to a game today and will be out to gain a tie for first place before renewing the series in Washington Sunday.

Lloyd Brown, who held the Elephants to but three scattered hits and yet was beaten in Washington less than two weeks ago, gives evidence of having improved as regards control, a weakness which marked his last effort against the Yankees on Monday, and promises to give the Mackmen a real battle on the pitching mound tomorrow.

Connie Mack is expected to call upon Rube Walberg, whom the Nats pounded off the hill when he last opposed them.

Cronin's Brilliant Play Surprise.

Picking out improvement in unexpected places, it seems to be the general opinion among the scribes throughout the circuit that one reason the Nationals have made their surprising showing this season is the general all-around work of Shortstop Joe Cronin. As they see things, it is not surprising that the other hitters are hitting or that the Nats are getting good pitching, for they showed their capability in these respects in the waning days of last season. Cronin, however, according to them, has completely upset the dope.

With this in mind, the writer put the question up to the young shortfielder as to what he believed was responsible for his improvement both at bat and afield. And, the player gave two reasons. The first was that he took his time getting into condition in the South, and the second, having to do with his batting, was that his newly adopted stance at the swinging block not only gives him more power, but also enables him to better follow the ball.

Lost No Weight in Training.

"When I reported at Biloxi this spring," said the 'San Francisco Keed' "Johnson told me to take my time getting ready and that I need not worry about losing out as a regular. With all doubt regarding my job off my mind, I worked along at an easy clip and managed to harden myself without losing a few pounds of weight which I had gained during the off season and figured I needed. As a result I believe that I am in better physical condition than I have ever been at the start of a season.

"At bat, I discovered last season that I was not getting much power in my swings and my present stance, which I adopted after considerable experimenting, enables me to hit out from the shoulders and, also, I believe to judge better and time the balls thrown up by opposing pitchers. The extra weight I am carrying is in my shoulders and across my chest and I believe that it is helping give me a little more hitting power than I had last season."

Crowds Jam Entrance To Shibe Park.

Sardines are packed no tighter than the crowd which surrounded Shibe Park between games this afternoon, automobiles not being able to get within three squares of Stadium. With a 25,000 crowd pouring out an hour later than expected, as a result of the extra-inning morning game, and most of these joining the jam of 20,000 at the time clamoring to get in to see the afternoon fracas, one can imagine how nice and roomy was the vicinity just outside the gates.

While not winning his own game, Ad Liska did his best in slightly weakening the A's for the afternoon contest. It was his foul which Mickey Cochrane was chasing in the eighth inning on which the brilliant receiver turned his ankle, this keeping him inactive for the balance of the day and possibly for tmorrow too.

Probably 200 Washingtonians were on hand at today's games here, most of them having motored up for the holiday. They were so excited at times, especially in the first encounter, that they made almost as much noise as did the other thousands of home rooters.

CARLOS
THAT HAPPY WEDDING DAY—
HEAVEN EYES— LIVES IN DEADLY FEAR SHE KNOWS CARLOS— HE IS UNSCRUPULOUS AND WILL STOOP TO ANY DEED— WHAT LURKS IN HIS EVIL MIND?
WHAT IS HIS SCHEME? WHAT IS HE UP TO?
I'D LIKE TO KNOW WHO THE BIRD IS THAT'S PROWLING AROUND THIS HOUSE—
FOOT PRINTS AGAIN IN ANDY'S BACK YARD—
CAN IT BE THE GREAT MOGUL DIAMOND THAT IS THE CAUSE OF HER BAD LUCK?

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

TWO PERSONS DIE, NINE ARE INJURED IN ACCIDENT WAVE

Woman Killed as Auto Hits Telegraph Pole While Driver Sleeps.

THREE OTHERS HURT THROUGH SAME CRASH

Man Crushed Under Machine Overturned on Road by Blowout.

Two persons were killed and nine injured yesterday in automobile accidents in the District and nearby Maryland.

The dead are Mrs. Madeline Martin, 22 years old, of Philadelphia, and Alonzo Barnes, colored, of Sixth street northeast.

Mrs. Martin was injured fatally while riding in a car driven by Edward R. Radcliffe, of Philadelphia, which overturned after crashing into a telegraph pole near Savage, Md., when the driver fell asleep, Maryland State police reported. She died en route to the University of Maryland Hospital in Baltimore.

Three Others Injured.

David Martin, husband of the dead woman, suffered a fractured hip. Selma Abbott, of Philadelphia, another passenger, is believed critically injured. She is in the University Hospital at Baltimore with a fractured skull. Mr. Radcliffe escaped with slight injuries. He was exonerated by a coroner's jury, called by Justice of the Peace H. U. Gosnell, of Savage.

Barnes was killed when a tire on the car he was driving blew out near Rockville, Md., on the Gaithersburg pike, causing the car to overturn in a ditch. He was crushed under the car and was pronounced dead by Dr. J. W. Beard, of Rockville. Foster Rocher, colored, 438 New York avenue northwest, a passenger, is in critical condition at Montgomery County General Hospital, Sandy Spring, with a crushed skull and internal injuries.

Two Cars Crash.

William Madden, also colored, of the same address, another passenger, was less seriously injured. He also is in the hospital. The injured were taken to the hospital by Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley and Policeman W. H. Merson, of Rockville headquarters.

Two persons were injured yesterday on the road between Rockville and Norbeck when a car driven by John S. Saville, 615 Maryland avenue, Riverdale, Md., crashed into a car driven by Miss Mary Norton, a nurse at the Christ Child Society farm, who was backing out of the farm entrance.

Mrs. Saville was treated by Dr. William A. Linthicum, of Rockville, for a fractured knee, and her husband for cuts on the head. No arrests were made.

Private Suffers Skull Fracture.

Concussion and a fracture of the skull were suffered by Private Cyril Aaron, 24 years old, of Fort Washington, Md., yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by Gustaf H. Lofgren, 32 years old, of Colmar Manor, Md.

The accident occurred at Eleventh and G streets northeast. Aaron was taken to Casualty Hospital and was later transferred to Walter Reed Hospital. Private James Boyd, also of Fort Washington, who was with Aaron, escaped with slight injuries. Lofgren was booked at the Eleventh Precinct on a charge of reckless driving. He was released on $500 bond.

Florine Bowen, colored, 17 years old, of 1226 R street northwest, sustained a cut upper lip and a dislocated thumb early last night at Tenth and U streets northwest, when she was hit by a hit-and-run automobile. She was treated at Freedmen's Hospital. Eighth Precinct police held Burton Barburr, colored, of Falls Church, Va., for investigation as owner of the car said to have hit the girl.

Confession Is Claimed In $800 Metal Theft

Confessing, according to detectives, that he had stolen $800 worth of sheet metal from the York Corrugating Co., Thomas Leonard Mattingly, of Capital Heights, Md., an employe of the company, was arrested yesterday on several charges of grand larceny.

Thefts of the metal have been noticed by officials of the company since last February. Detectives Arthur Fihelly and Benjamin Kuehling, who investigated the case and made the arrest, were told. Mattingly was quoted as having told the detectives that he was forced to steal the metal to support his wife and family.

Man Accused in Theft Of Purse From Woman

Screams of a woman robbed of a pocketbook containing 12 cents early last night created excitement at Eighth and E streets northwest and ended with the arrest of a Negro by Traffic Policeman James P. Miller, at the head of a pursuing crowd.

The Negro, booked at the First Precinct Station for investigation, gave his name as Maurice Morton, alias Jerry E. O'Brien, 17 years old, of Q street, near Fourteenth street northwest. Mrs. Conoetto Tataro, 50 years old, of 110 G street northwest, claimed the man snatched her pocketbook.

Police Telephone Boxes Instaled in Bethesda

Police telephone call boxes for the Bethesda suburban area have been installed and will be placed in operation Sunday. Three boxes have been placed at strategic positions through the area at which the policemen on patrol can report to the Bethesda substation at regular intervals.

Should an emergency arise, the man on duty in the substation presses a switch, which turns on a red light at each box to notify patrolmen to call headquarters. Much better police protection is expected with the new system.

AGE, YOUTH MARCH IN HONOR OF DEAD

President Reviews Parade of War Veterans From White House.

MAWSON LEADS COLUMN

Led by the venerable department commander, Samuel G. Mawson, yesterday the faded veterans of the Civil War and spruce soldiers of later wars swung past the White House while the President reviewed them, and the Marine Band blared out the strains of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

They almost missed review by the President. Told that Mr. Hoover would watch the marchers if the parade would start before scheduled time, Mr. Mawson sent back word that the parade would not start earlier, because no cars would be ready for the veterans. It took Capt. Charles H. Reilly, one of his aids, nearly a quarter of an hour to persuade Mr. Mawson, who was also grand marshal, to start. Meanwhile, word had come from the White House that the President would defer his departure for Gettysburg until the marching line had passed.

Mr. Mawson, with his aids, Capt. Reilly, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and H. B. Coulter, of the United Spanish War Veterans; Harvey L. Miller, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Francis L. Miller, of the American Legion, led the line past the east portico of the White House, which formed an extempore reviewing stand. Mrs. Hoover, in a wheel chair, made her first public appearance since her recent illness.

Many proud youngsters marched with the veterans. The little white-clad legs of a boy in a sailor uniform fairly twinkled as he danced along beside the long strides of a soldier of the Spanish War.

Mr. Mawson, for all his 84 years, marched as straight and stiff as the ramrod of the gun he carried through the Civil War. His frosty blue eyes looked ahead as he seemed not to notice the cheers and applause that greeted him. He is a veteran, not only of the Civil War, but of the Spanish-American War, and the Sioux Indian campaign of 1874.

Leading the column of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was a tiny and extremely excited bull terrier, in charge of Miss Thelma Bonini. The dog, which wore the blue of the organization, is known on other than state occasions as Hotsy-Totsy.

At Thirteenth street and Ohio avenue, just before the parade disbanded, Mr. Mawson and his staff stood at attention on the curb to review the marching line. As the units fell out of line, they went aboard special trains and buses which were to carry them to Arlington for the ceremonies of the afternoon.

TRIBUTES TO HEROES ARE FOUND ON DUMP

Wreaths Meant for Graves of War Dead to Be Put There Today.

SEARCHING QUIZ BEGUN

It was National Memorial Day to most of America yesterday, but to at least one moronic intelligence it was just another opportunity to shirk a bit of toil.

As the result, apparently, of some one's desire to evade exertion, six wreaths, sent special delivery through the postoffice to be placed upon the graves of designated war veterans in Arlington National Cemetery, found their way instead to the dump.

Immediately upon learning of the situation late yesterday, Robert R. Dye, superintendent of the cemetery, began an exhaustive investigation to place the blame, and arranged to have the six wreaths placed upon the proper graves early today.

All the employes in the cemetery office were quizzed in detail, and all expressed surprise and anger that any one could so desecrate the memories of the Nation's heroic dead as to toss upon a dump tributes sent by sorrowing relatives, who, perhaps, had endured actual privations in order to honor their departed loved ones.

Although he explained that he was not yet in possession of the facts, Mr. Dye expressed a belief that the blame should rest upon lazy or careless messengers.

"I just know that no one in our office would do such a thing," he said. "Even if any of the six men working here should be so depraved, so lacking in respect, it would have been more work to have carted those wreaths from the office to the dump than it would have been to place them on the graves for which they were intended. But I have not completed my investigation, and if it should be found that any one connected in any way with Arlington National Cemetery had anything to do with it, that person is through, done, discharged immediately."

Several days before National Memorial Day, cut flowers to be placed on the graves at Arlington are brought to the cemetery by the truck load, and piled at convenient spots where Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts or other organizations or individuals may select such blossoms as they desire and place them upon any grave or graves they choose.

There were two such towering piles of flowers between the entrance to the cemetery and the office, and it is Mr. Dye's theory that the messengers who delivered the six wreaths, realizing that the heaps of flowers were intended to decorate the graves, decided to save themselves a few steps and deposited their burdens there.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was in a stew. It couldn't have been an oyster stew, because this month hasn't an "R" in it; but she was in a stew, nevertheless—trying to get away over the week-end.

"Sometimes I think the week-end is right under your hat, Luella," I shot, as she directed me to do a thousand things at once—make the reservations, pack the bags, put away the silver. There I was hopping about like a man with the heebeegeebees. It had me all nervous, so I dropped her suitcase and broke a hand mirror.

"Seven years' bad luck," shouted Luella, and sank in the chair exhausted.

"Why do you leave everything for the last minute?" I asked.

"Who left everything for the last minute?"

"You did——"

* * * * *

SHE looked at her wrist-watch. "It isn't the last minute yet," she said, calming herself. "We've got an hour and a half. Did you call the cab?"

What I called the cab wasn't anything to what I called the operator before calling the cab. As I jiggled the phone, Luella ran over and snatched the receiver.

"Here, let me do it," she commanded, "you'll have the whole telephone company disorganized. While I phone, you run over next door and ask them to take care of the cat for us—and write a note to the milk man. Tell him not to leave any more milk 'till further notice—and the ice man——"

"Holy smokes——"

SHE bore down on me: "You stop carrying-on like that," she commanded, "or I won't go on this trip——"

Personally, I didn't believe we could ever make it—but we managed to get started, got in the cab, and just when we got around the bend in the road Luella remembered something she had forgotten.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear," she sighed, "Whattum I gonna do?"

"We'll have to go back for it," I told her, and ordered the driver to turn around. He turned around and wanted to know what I said: "For the love o' Mike," I bawled, "turn this jitney around and——"

* * * * *

LUELLA was standing above me, shouting at the man: "Don't turn around," she ordered, "or——"

"Or what?"

"Or we'll miss the boat——"

"The boat. What boat? I thought we were going on a train——"

She sank back in the seat: "The train? Did you order reservations for the train?"

"Certainly——"

That was what they call the payoff.

What we did was go back and get out our own car, take it to the garage. When the new spark plugs are put in, and the old ignition system fixed up, we're going to motor down to one of the near-by resorts for the week-end, carrying, of course, our week-ends with us.

Boy, don't forget the hats!

Horseshoe Prize Won by Johnson

Representative of Nebraska Defeats Vestal in Annual Tilt.

In a one-time rural pastime between two one-time country lads, Representative Fred G. Johnson, (Republican), Nebraska, defeated Representative Albert H. Vestal (Republican), Indiana, yesterday, 21 to 20, to win the horseshoe pitching championship of Congress in Griffith Stadium.

They won their way into the finals by respectively trouncing Representative Thomas S. McMillan (Democrat), South Carolina, and Representative F. Dickinson Letts (Republican), Iowa. By winning the matches, Representative Johnson was awarded a set of silver plated horseshoes.

Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, and Representative Clarence J. McLeod (Republican), Michigan, acted as guest announcers in a radio broadcast through Station WRC. Both finalists in the competition later described the matches. The Navy Band played.

Mr. Ziegler, according to police reports, chewed a number of poison tablets before swallowing them at the National Press Club Building. He told hospital attendants that he did not want to live, it was reported.

VETERANS' HOMAGE PAID TO WAR DEAD

Many Organizations Place Wreaths on Tomb of Unknown Soldier.

40 MOTHERS AT GRAVE

Military processions one after the other passed in review before the Unknown Soldier's Tomb yesterday morning before the regular program which started at 1 o'clock.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, marching before the Amphitheater at 12 o'clock, presented colors, placed their wreath on the tomb and marched past, to be followed shortly after by the American Legion, attended by its band. The Disabled Veterans were the last to march past, with their drums rolling, and their wreath was also added to the ever-growing mass of floral tributes.

During the entire morning a lone sentry maintained a guard at the side of the tomb, no interruption of the permanent custom being allowed. A guard is constantly walking the terrace immediately in front of the marble cenotaph.

Thousands Attend Services.

Thousands swarmed over the entire cemetery all morning and afternoon. The first regular service held in the cemetery was a memorial service at 11 o'clock to the departed members of the Jane O. Delano Post of the American Legion, which is composed of World War nurses. Members of the Anieta McGhee Post of Spanish War Nurses also held a memorial service at 11 o'clock, the service being conducted by Mrs. Susie Saunders Adams, president of the local camp.

An affecting touch was added to the Gold Star Mothers pilgrimage to the tomb by Mme. Gabralle Heurdier, from the Province of Orleans, France, who accompanied the American group to the cemetery to place a wreath in the name of the French women who lost sons in the great conflict.

Tears dimmed the little white-haired woman's eyes as she advanced through the guard of honor and the banks of American flags and placed the large design in the form of a gold star by the side of the contribution from the American women.

French Visitor Speaks.

"From the women of France," she said as she laid it reverently on the tomb, "who love the women of America for having given their sons to aid us during the great fight."

She likes the Americans, she said, and had enjoyed a four-month visit here more than she could tell. She was under the supervision of the Washington Chapter of the bereaved mothers yesterday, and remained with them during the ceremonies.

Mrs. George Gordon Seibold, the national president of the American Gold Star Mothers, was in charge of the ceremonies conducted by that organization at the tomb. More than 40 of the mothers attended, some of whom are leaving shortly for the trip to the graves of their sons in France.

The National Capitol Post, No. 127, of the United Veterans of Foreign Wars, placed a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb. Ernest Wickstrand, commander of the post, officiated.

At the Argonne Cross in Arlington Cemetery services were held yesterday morning by the American Women's Legion, whose first national president, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, placed a wreath sent by Mrs. Herbert Hoover in commemoration of the World War dead. Mrs. Acheson F. Hassan, national president, placed the wreath for the national organization. The brief exercises also included a short address by Dr. H. D. Sterrett, the recitation of the American Creed, and the sounding of taps by Sergt. Wichey.

$999,668 IS TOTAL OF HEALTH BUDGET FOR 1932 PROGRAM

CHIEF WATSON FIXES NEEDS AT $2,541,490

Equipment, Building, Sites Asked for Department in New Figures.

Existing arrangements for isolation of persons suffering from minor contagious diseases are "very unsatisfactory," while past appropriations for school health work have not provided the service needed by school children, Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, told the District Commissioners in his estimates for work of the health department for 1932.

Dr. Fowler's estimates totaled $999,668, of which $450,000 is to provide for construction of a new isolation ward at Gallinger Municipal Hospital and $50,000 for its furnishing.

In his estimates for handling contagious diseases Dr. Fowler asked for $48,398, an increase of $398 over the 1931 figure, to provide for improvements in the smallpox hospital and quarantine station. He asked for $29,000, an increase of $5,000 over the $24,000 carried in the 1931 bill reported to the Senate, to provide for payment of Garfield and Providence Hospitals for care of patients suffering from minor contagious diseases.

Only Two Isolation Wards.

These two hospitals provide the only isolation wards, Dr. Fowler pointed out, adding that both protest that the $2.10 and $2 per day they receive, respectively, for care of District patients does not meet the cost of service.

"The present arrangement is very unsatisfactory," the health officer said, and added that it is probable that at least one of the hospitals will refuse to renew its contract with the District next year.

An increase of $12,000 was asked for the school sanitation and hygiene work. The 1931 bill provides for two additional inspectors and two more nurses, but Dr. Fowler said, "while helpful," this increase to the staff "does not nearly meet the needs." Each health inspector is charged with looking after 5,000 school children, while each nurse has 6,000 to look after. The increase asked in estimates would provide five additional medical inspectors and five additional nurses.

Many school children have been discovered suffering from defective hearing, a more extensive study of which is proposed, the estimates carrying $850 for purchase of two audiometers for use in the schools.

Another innovation in the estimates is abolition of present methods of doing away with animals at the District pound. The health officer asked for $1,500 to provide a modern electric cage for their elimination.

Mosquito Fund Sought.

Despite the recent rumpus in the Senate over the mosquito item in the 1931 appropriation bill, the 1932 estimates carry an item of $45,000 for this purpose. This is a reduction of $15,000 from the 1931 bill amount, the difference being due to the fact that equipment provided in the 1931 bill will be on hand for use in 1932.

Of the total mosquito-fighting fund $12,200 is to go to the office of public buildings and parks, $5,000 to the United States Public Health Service and the balance to the District sewer department.

Additional equipment, building and sites are asked for the Fire Department in the 1932 estimates submitted the Commissioners by Fire Chief George S. Watson. The estimates total $2,541,490 which is $3,000 more than the figure carried in the 1931 appropriation bill pending in Congress.

Other Items Included.

Among the items is new joint quarters for No. 16 engine and N. 3 truck, now at Twelfth and D streets, and at Fourteenth street and Ohio avenue. Both will have to vacate the present buildings to make way for the Federal building program. It is planned to build the new house on K near Thirteenth street northwest. Including equipment it is estimated it will cost $168,750.

Other items include five aerial hook and ladder trucks, $15,000 each; five combination hose wagons at $8,000 each; one new water tower at $22,000, together with other smaller items.

The sum of $96,000 is asked for a truck house and site in the vicinity of Twelfth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast; $5,500 is asked for a site for an engine house at Branch avenue and Bowen road southeast, and $25,000 for a site for an engine house near Wisconsin avenue and Davis street northwest; $21,500 is provided for installation of a teletype communication system similar to that recently put in use in the Police Department; $1,900,000 for salaries, with an additional $10,607 to provide for a crew for the new engine company, No. 31, the building for which already has been authorized.

Gas Turned On by Error, Woman Is Overcome

Turning on a gas jet as well as an electric light switch on a combination lamp yesterday afternoon, Virginia Davis, 39 years old, of Varnum street between G and H streets northwest, was overcome by gas yesterday afternoon.

Emergency Hospital attendants and the No. 2 Rescue Squad rendered first aid and prescribed the woman "out of danger" later in the afternoon. She remained at her home. The woman told police that she thought she had merely turned on the light, and was unaware that she was releasing a flow of gas at the same time.

New Traffic Rule Used In Raising Man's Bond

Invoking the new rule that reckless driving cases should be judged on the basis of the gravity of the offense, Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in Traffic Court, yesterday raised the bond of Herbert Turner, 25 years old, on a charge of driving while under the influence of whisky. Turner, who was arrested Thursday night and was held by the police under $500 bond, thus found himself under $1,000 bond.

The action of Judge Hitt followed Turner's plea of not guilty and his demand for a jury trial. Turner was alleged to have collided with a tree on M street southeast. Attorney John P. Mullen appeared for the defendant.

Features in The Post Tomorrow

Representative John Garner, of Texas, recently created a mild stir and in some quarters considerable amusement by suggesting that Texas be partitioned into five States, thus giving the Democrats control of the Senate. David Rankin Barbee has delved into the subject with the result that Sunday Post readers have another good feature story in store for them.

Vanishing Hosts in Gray, which gather in Biloxi, Miss., next week, are described in a sympathetic manner in another article. Of the same era and spirit is John J. Daly's story of the old National Rifles unit that holds its reunion soon.

If you would like to know what makes the Sunday blue laws blue, turn to The Post tabloid magazine Sunday. And you may also find an account there of a vocation that is luring to the average American boy, but is hazardous to Tom Mix, the author.

Watch for these in THE SUNDAY POST.

Autoist Rushing to Get Gas Wins With Story in Court

A unique excuse for speeding was offered in Police Court yesterday morning, and probably due to the fact that it was a holiday it was tentatively accepted.

Herbert G. Reed was the defendant. Policeman J. R. Leach, of the Traffic Bureau, testified that when he arrested Reed Thursday afternoon that the defendant told him he was hastening to a garage to get some gasoline as his tank was almost dry.

"Um-m," said Judge Isaac R. Hitt in his characteristic manner. "How far did you have to go?"

"I don't know, your honor," answered the defendant. "All I know is that when I arrived at the filling station entrance I stalled because of lack of gas."

"Um-m," said Judge Hitt again. "Suspended sentence."

Traffic policemen pointed out later that it does not matter whether a car runs fast or slow, its gas supply will last just so far and no more.
